More Gold Coming.
One Man Hanged.
Build Character? Not Easy.
800 More Easy Millions.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE NEWS is that $42,000,000 in gold is on its way here on the Majestic. We go off the gold basis, and gold insists on coming here.

WOMEN FOUGHT beside the men in Vienna's revolt, called "a Socialist revolution." It is, in reality, an effort of half-starved workmen to better their conditions. They have no Franklin D. Roosevelt there, no government that can print paper dollars as good as anybody's gold dollars, and create jobs, well paid.

When women fight beside men you may be sure there is a reason for fighting.

Fifteen hundred have been killed, men, women and children, according to latest reports. Punishment has begun.

One rebellious shoemaker, forty-three years old, was hanged after a court-martial at four-thirty p. m. yesterday. Will he have a chance to tell his story before some other court?

FRANCE AND England are with the Austrian chancellor, Dollfuss, in his effort to suppress revolutionary civil war in Vienna and other Austrian cities. The French consider sending troops to help Dollfuss.

The British, through Foreign Secretary Simon, warn all Europe "that an object of British policy is the preservation of Austrian independence."

France and England are afraid that a successful revolution of half-starved Austrian workers might weaken the Dollfuss government, enabling Hitler to walk in and take possession. They don't want that.

WITH DOLLFUSS, howitzers, machine guns and British and French sympathies against them, the rioting workers have a poor chance. Possibly the angels sympathize with them.

A reporter of the American Associated Press testifies that not one of the workmen whom he saw defending the barricades but had a tattered coat and shoes with holes.

The men are fighting against poverty, hunger and abject misery. But that will not help them.

ROGER W. BABSON, who collects statistics about important things in general, says our national income has dropped from a peak of eighty billions to a depression income of fifty billions. A big drop, but fifty billions a year is still a big income.

One of several who do not think President Roosevelt is going about saving the country in the right way, he even predicts "a Republican landslide not later than 1940, or a conservative Fascist government."

Mr. Babson carries you into happy dreamland when he tells you that with intensive production, and proper distribution, "every family in the country should receive an income of ten thousand dollars a year, with everybody from 20 to 50 years old working eight months annually."

That sounds like Santa Claus. What would everybody do after fifty?

In his speech Mr. Babson said we need more "CHARACTER." He would have the President appoint a special cabinet officer to develop character.

As regards character, Mr. Babson knows that changes come slowly. It took a million years to get rid of cannibalism. Today we say a man doesn't amount to much who does not get enough money to make his children independent. One hundred centuries ago, a man didn't amount to much who hadn't the energy to kill another man and bring him home for his children to eat.

It may take as many centuries to convince men that it is as vicious now to accumulate for children more than they need as it once was to bring home a dead human body for the children to eat.

IN THE time of Henry the Second, in England, everybody of consequence, merchant, lord of the manor, bishop, king, insisted on having his own private gallows tree in each town and hanging somebody on it. It took centuries of character building to change that. Now nobody would want his private gallows.

THE GOVERNMENT borrows eight hundred million dollars more, "for re-financing," announces proudly an over-subscription, and the books are closed.

Government financiers are cheered "by the willingness to absorb" this second big offer, for they will borrow ten thousand million dollars more by the end of the fiscal year.

NOBODY REALLY paid in eight hundred millions. The banks pay 5 per cent on the amount of bonds allotted them, and may issue their own paper money against bonds that they hold.

The fact interesting to taxpayers is that borrowing ten billions on interest-bearing bonds means paying not only ten billions in principal, but more than ten billions in interest before the debt is cancelled.

Paying the ten billions in interest could be avoided if the government would issue currency, and call it at leisure, instead of redeeming bonds. Ten billion dollars could be saved.

SOCIALISTS YIELD IN AUSTRIA

Fighting in Vienna At End; Troops Aid Prince

Associated Press.

Government troops were sent to the aid of Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, leader of the Fascist Heimwehr, reported surrounded in Steyr. But the newspaper Tageblatt said fighting in that area had ceased and that Starhemberg would return to the capital today.

'MERCY OFFER'

Chancellor Dollfuss issued a "mercy offer" to Socialists if they would surrender their arms. Many accepted it.

The newspapers Giornale D'Italia in Rome and the Magyarsag in Budapest charged the government of Czechoslovakia had supported the Socialists in the rebellion against the Austrian government.

German newspapers bitterly attacked Dollfuss' radio appeal for support, charging he was responsible for morgues "filled with dead workmen."

Italy had 75,000 troops concentrated on the border of her little neighbor, prepared for possible action. The government said they were not there because of the Austrian situation.

Sir John Simon, Britsh foreign secretary, indicated to the House of Commons that his government would not interfere in the present situation.

Vienna Revolters Yield; Fighting Rages in Towns

VIENNA, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The Socialist rebellion against the government of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss collapsed in the capital today, but the Socialists continued to fight in the provinces where, in some localities, they appeared to be worsting the government troops.

Two thousand Socialists surrendered in a group at Laaberg on the southern outskirts of Vienna, but Prince Ernst von Starhemberg second Vice Chancellor of Austria and leader of the Fascist Heimwehr, was reported

War Test In Vienna Crisis

Editor's note—Forty-five out of fifty persons in Vienna—most of them Dollfuss supporters—are afraid the Chancellor cannot hold out against the Nazi movement longer than spring. H. R. Knickerbocker, touring Europe to find out "will war come" reports that the feeling in Vienna is generally that eventually Dollfuss will have to step down. Following is the fourth installment of Mr. Knickerbocker's series.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

VIENNA, Feb. 15.—How long can Dollfuss hold out against the Nazis? If this really is decisive for the peace of Europe, the question means: "How long can peace be preserved?"

Austria is under martial law. In front of the ministry in Vienna a company of soldiers stood at attention a few days ago before the present civil warfare broke out. Their eyes stared straight ahead under grim steel helmets. A pretty girl passed. The eyes of the guard wavered and a smile flickered down the line of martial faces.

The pretty girl was the only spectator of the changing of the guard before the Austrian Ministry of War. Twice a day the guard is changed in Berlin and twice a day two thousand people gather to watch the ceremony. Never in the history of the German army has a

ITALY MASSES TROOPS

Government officials, however, emphasized that these troops have not been placed as a result of developments across the line.

They have been moved up during the last five months as part of a fundamental change in Italian military policy, it is explained.

Previously, these troops were concentrated in cities further to the south, chiefly Verona and Padua.

Although Italian officials refused to commit themselves on the government's intentions in the event of further trouble, it was said today that Italy has no intention of invading Austria—even should the Socialists gain the upper hand over Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss.

YOUTH SLAIN IN HOLDUP HOAX

Pal Shot; Two Sleuths Held; State Police In 'Plot' Face Quiz

Two constables were jailed today following the killing of one youth and the wounding of another in what detectives said was a holdup arranged by state police and constables to snare a gang of holdup suspects, near Dorseyville, last night.

Three state police who figured in the gunplay, J. Bradbury, Charles E. Mullen and H. A. Stinnett, in charge of Capt. Jasper Oftedahl, of the Butler Barracks, reported to District Attorney A. T. Park this afternoon.

County detectives said their investibation showed the fatal shot was fired by Private Mullen in the barbecue of M. A. Sallade, Hart's Run road, Indiana Township. Reports were conflicting as to who fired the shot that struck the second youth.

POLICE IN AMBUSH

When the youths came in the three policemen and the two constables were waiting for them in a back room. Authorities do not agree on the number of shots that followed, but when the smoke cleared John Cottin, 19, of Culmerville, was dead, a bullet in his heart.

His companion, Milton Eckler, 19, of Culmerville, with a bullet in his chest, was writhing on the floor. The two constables, whom county detectives later arrested—Ivery L. Assay, 35, of East Deer Township, and William Brozek, 40, of Indiana Township—took him to St. Francis Hospital.

In the hospital Eckler told County Detectives Frank Ritz and John Duderstadt that he wasn't supposed to have been shot; that he had arranged the holdup with the police and detectives in a plan to capture Cottin.

Capt. Oftedahl said Eckler had tipped him off on the holdup yesterday and arrangements were made to capture the gang, but Eckler was not supposed to be with the holdup group.

AGREES TO STAGE HOLDUP

Assay, upon his arrest, corroborated the wounded youth's story, according to Ritz. So did Brozek, Ritz said. According to Ritz, Eckler met Brozek, Assay and Private Stinnett, of the state police, yesterday afternoon at Assay's home. The youth, they said, agreed to stage the holdup so that Cottin could be arrested.

Continuing, Ritz said, Assay gave Eckler his loaded gun, and agreed to meet him at the barbeque. Ritz said Eckler telephoned the barbeque a few minutes before the holdup, saying he was on his

CHAUFFEUR BARES TRIP TO CITY

Purchase of Bullets By Servant Also Revealed

The story of Rose Hardy's relations with Robert Soles began to unfold late today.

Soles' chauffer told of driving the couple to Pittsburgh on one occasion two months after LaRoux Soles was buried.

County Prosecutor John Haggerty, dumbfounded by the testimony of his own witnesses, entered three surprise pleas—twice for the same witness.

The courtroom reverbated with a direct charge from the prosecutor that the defendant, imperturable at the counsel table, had offered a bribe to two McKeesport policemen.

Williams was relating how he had gone to the hardware store for the handsome Army captain to purchase some bullets after the death of LaRouz. He first said he brought back two. He later changed it to three and finally said he got four.

BULLETS PURCHASED

Max Schrader, proprietor of the store, had previously testified he sold the chauffeur four bullets. He said it was an unusual order. Soles asked for four .45-caliber bullets with the shells removed. He said he called Soles to verify it.

When Williams testified also that there were four bullets, Haggerty entered his plea of surprice.

Haggerty brought out from a reluctant witness, Patrolman William R. Connelly, that twice within a few minutes Soles had made offers to the police. One of these, he testified, was when Soles indicated a wallet on the bedroom dresser and said:

"There's $6,000 in negotiable paper in there."

JURY WEIGHS BALLOT FRAUD

The fate of the five officials of the election board of the Seventh District, Fifteenth Ward, on trial before Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker on a charge of conspiring to falsify ballots at the general election in November, 1932, was placed in the hands of the jury today.

Each of the defendants, Clement Wessell, judge; Mrs. Mary Burns and John W. Stanton, inspectors, and Martin L. McTighe and Mark Stanton, clerks, went on the witness stand and made general denials of having changed or altered ballots, as alleged by the government.

This is the eighth case brought to trial involving members of election boards in the Third, Fourth and Fifteenth Wards. In the first seven cases there were 27 convictions and eight acquittals.

Pet Dog in Hunt For Beaten Boy, Missing 8 Days

ROCKFORD, Ill., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Police hunting Charlie Backus, 8, missing for eight days, since his father allegedly beat him unconscious, today released a shpherd dog with which the child had often played, in the hope that the animal's keener senses might lead them to the boy's body, in case he were dead.

The experiment with the dog supplemented the efforts of 200 volunteers who responded at dawn to a call sent out by Sheriff William C. Bell for men to hunt the woods and fields along Rock River and shacks and cellars in the neighborhood of the Backus home.

The police ,who have continued to question the boy's father, Charles Backus, in the hope of breaking down his story that the boy had run away, left headqquarters with him today for a farm in Love Park, a suburb.

Backus, accused by his wife and two stepdaughters of taking away the boy after slapping him into insensibility, denied the accusation and hinted at kidnaping.

Long questioning of the father failed to change his statement that the boy left the house alone and never returned, after being reprimanded by his mother for not changing his clothes after school.

Thaw, War Ace, Calls Police Twice to Home

Strange noises, barking dogs and a mysterious telephone call twice sent East End police to the home of William Thaw, noted war-time aviator, early today.

Thaw summoned the police to his home in Morewood place about 5 a. m. He told them, they said, prowlers apparently had been about the house. Nothing was found, and the police left.

The police were called again at 7:15. The Thaw dogs had barked, and Mr. Thaw roused his chauffeur and investigated. Then the telephone rang. A man's voice inquired if Mr. Thaw was at home. Informed that he was, the caller hung up his receiver.

Police said they found no explanation for the mysterious happenings.

Lollypop Driven in Boy's Throat in Fall Fatal

Regis V. Hughes, 8, of 460 Coolidge avenue, Mt. Lebanon, a pupil of St. Bernard's School, Washington road, is dead today, a victim of an unusual accident.

A lollypop, driven into his throat when he tripped and fell on his way home with other school children after attending Ash Wednesday services in St. Bernard's Church, caused his death, according to the Coroner's report. The stick broke off and the candy lodged in his throat.

Regis rose to his feet and, unable to speak, reached to a woman pedestrian for help, motioning frantically to his mouth. The woman seized the boy and shook him violently in an attempt to dislodge the candy.

The boy lost consciousness and was carried into the school building, where nuns and two priests attempted to remove the lollypop from his throat. Two physicians were called and they joined in the valiant fight to revive the boy. After working almost an hour, Dr. M. F. Phillips pronounced him dead from strangulation.

Regis was the youngest of five children of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Hughes.

ROOSEVELT MESSAGE IN AIR MAIL FURORE EXPECTED

BROWN'S PLEA WINS HEARING IN CONGRESS

Senate, House Leaders To Hear Defense On Charges

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt soon may draft a special message to Congress on the air mail situation, reports in postal circles said today.

The reports, following an open charge by Postmaster General Farley that all domestic air mail contracts except one were products of conspiracy, did not disclose what the President will recommend.

Some hope is being held out that several companies charged by Farley with "collusion" might be brought back into the air mail picture by drastic self-reorganization. Otherwise, they would be barred from bidding for five years.

AGREE TO BROWN PLAN

Walter F. Brown, postmaster general in the Hoover administration, asked the Senate Air Mail Inquiry Committee today to permit him to testify "voluntarily" at the earliest possible date and promised he would waive immunity from prosecution as a result of anything he had to say.

Brown was charged in Farley's letter with having acted "illegally" in extending five contracts beyond the normal date of their expiration.

Senator Fess, Rep.), of Ohio, read the Brown request to the Senate and Chairman Black, of the investigating committee, promised he would give Brown an early hearing.

At the same time Chairman Mead (Dem.), of New York, today said the House Postoffice Committee would hear Brown and representatives of aviation companies on the air mail contracts which have been cancelled.

Mead told newsmen after a committee hearing in which Postoffice Department officials asked enactment of temporary emergency legislation to permit the Army to pay the expenses of carrying the mails:

WOULD HEAR LINDBERGH

Representative Kelly, (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, remarked just before the committee meeting adjourned that since "all these contractors have been held guilty of fraud and collusion, they should be allowed to state their case in public."

Kelly suggested that Brown and Charles A. Lindbergh, as well as representatives of the companies involved, should be heard.

As the Roosevelt administration prepared for a court battle over the dramatic cancellation of the air companies' contracts, Farley issued an open letter last night. It asserted flatly that chiefs of 14 aviation companies met in the big gray stone Postoffice Department here in 1930 and that 13 came out with lucrative holdings.

Competitive bidding was abandoned, Farley charged, and other companies were excluded from the meeting. He declared also that a system of extending contracts, maintained under the Hoover administration, was "illegal."

PREPARE FOR FIGHT

Both the Justice and Postoffice Departments co-operated today in preparing to fight an order in a New York court, designed to restrain the government from canceling all contracts and having the Army fly the mail. A first step will be a fight on jurisdiction, an attempt to move the battle to the District of Columbia courts.

In any event a protracted court battle was expected by some officials. Barring a court order—which officials said they do not expect—the Army will pick up the air mail Monday at midnight.

Farley's open letter was addressed to Chairman Black, of the Senate air mail investigating committee, which turned up evidence that led to the wholesale cancellation and the Senate's just-completed air mail trials.

Farley said that only the National Parks Airways emerged empty-handed from the 1930 conference. That concern alone, he asserted, will be given a further hearing.

Two Runaway Girls Held for Relatives

Two young girls, confessed runaways from New Albany, Ind., were being detained today by Morals Court awaiting arrival of relatives. Stella Edwards, 16, and Pauline Brown, 18, were arrested last night in the Fairfax Hotel where they had obtained employment, it was brought out at their hearing today before Magistrate Howard B. McNutt. The girls said they had been in Pittsburgh since February 6.

way, but Assay's statement does not corroborate the story. Assay's statement follows:

"Harry Stinnett came down from Butler yesterday and went out to see Eckler. Eckler told us the gang planned to rob the Saxonburg bakery tonight. As there wasn't time for Stinnett to get to Saxonburg in time for the robbery, we planned the robbery tonight.

"We waited at Squire Davidson's office until 7:30 o'clock, when we were joined by three state officers. We went to the barbeque and hid in the back room. We waited 45 minutes when a machine came down the road, turned around and turned out its lights.

"We had planned as soon as they got in the place Stinnett was to say 'Put up your hands.' We (Brozek and Assay) were to slip out the back and cover the front. So when he heard them coming we went out the back. Then we heard the shooting."

WHIPS OUT GUN

Patrolman Stinnett said he stepped from the back room when the youths entered. Cottin, he said, wheeled with a drawn gun, and Mullen, thinking he was about to shoot Stinnett, fired. Stinnett said:

"We received a tip that the barbeque was to be held up tonight. Mullen and I were hidden in a back room when the men entered. We stepped out with drawn revolvers. The man wearing the long mask wheeled with his gun pointing at me. It was a large automatic. Mullin stepped from behind me and fired one shot. That was the only shot fired by the troopers."

When Cottin fell to the floor, Stinnett said, Sallade grabbed a gun from under his counter and opened fire on Eckler.

Ritz said his investigation indicated Mullen had emptied his revolver, and that his bullets had struck both men.

REVOLVER EMPTIED

Stinnett reported the automobile was stolen from Robert Schmidt, of Culmerville, and that the youths stole five gallons of gas from a service station. Ritz said Assay told him that he had arranged with Eckler for them to steal an automobile. The arrangements, Ritz said, were made with the Smith Motor Company.

Stinnett said Cottin was a member of a gang that had staged several holdups in the vicinity.

Ritz said he was unable to find Sallade after the holdup. He was to be questioned today.

BAKERY STRIKE MEET CALLED

Five hundred striking employes of the Ward and Baur baking companies were scheduled to meet today and discuss terms of a tentative settlement reached yesterday. The men have been on strike five weeks.

The tentative agreement was announced late yesterday afternoon by Judge John P. Egan after a lengthy conference with both sides. Judge Egan was to have heard argument on application by the Ward Baking Company for a permanent injunction against violence and intimidation, but postponed the hearing until Tuesday.

Judge Egan announced from the bench that "the groundwork had been laid for settlement of the real differences." He said:

"All matters — wages, hours, unions—were considered. And a tentative agreement satisfactory to both sides was reached all along the line."

GROCERS NAME NRA AUTHORITY

An NRA code authority for food and grocery distributors of Allegheny County was chosen at a meeting last night in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

Those chosen were Charles Wolff, president of the Retail Grocers' Association of Allegheny County, as representative of the retailers; R. R. King, chain stores; Louis Quantz, retailer-owned wholesalers; George L. Ewing, Retail Meat Dealers' Association; Fred Fichtel, independent wholesalers, and Carl V. Behrhorst, voluntary group.

Edward W. Talenfeld, secretary of the Merchants Co-Operative Association of the Hill district, nominated to represent the retailers, charged from the floor that the ballot box was being "stuffed," as the vote was being taken. When the vote was counted Wolff was shown to have received 143 votes against 23 for Talenfeld. The number of slips signed by those qualified to vote tallied with the votes cast, the tellers announced. No further objection was forthcoming.

AIR OFFICIAL BEGINS TERM IN JAIL

M'Cracken Posts Bond, Prepares to Fight Senate Penalty

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—L. H. Britten, vice president of Northwest Airways, entered jail today to serve his 10-day sentence for contempt of the Senate.

After leaving Britten at the jail, Senate Sergeant-at-Arms Jurney quoted the prisoner as saying he didn't have enough money to perfect an appeal, that he was "broke," had been "fired" by his company, and "might as well go to jail."

Meanwhile William P. MacCracken, convicted with Britten, planned today to appeal to the courts from his 10-day jail sentence for contempt.

MacCracken, former assistant secretary of commerce for air, and Britten were given the jail sentences by the Senate last night for disregarding subpenas for airmail records.

Bond for MacCracken was fixed at $5,000 and he was freed pending his appeal.

Harris M. Manshue and Gilbert L. Givvin, president and representative of Western Air Express, were voted not guilty and both today were free.

All four were placed on trial before the Senate bar on charges of removing air mail correspondence from MacCracken's law office.

Both men voted guilty took the Senate's sentence quietly.

MacCracken, sitting in the well of the chamber, did not move when announcement came that he had been voted guilty, 64 to 20.

Brittin sat with folded arms but gave a slight gulp and allowed his foot to twitch as the vote against him was made known.

Analysis of the Senate votes showed that all of the 20 who voted "not guilty" on MacCracken were Republicans. Nine Republicans, 54 Democrats and the one Farmer-Labor member voted "guilty."

SCHOOL APPEAL MADE IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—George F. Zook, education commissioner who for months has been urging emergency measures to aid the school system, today told the House Education Committee that the condition of the public schools was critical.

Zook's appearance was preliminary to general hearings on the entire education situation to open February 26, when a dozen emergency education bills will be considered. Chairman Douglas (Dem.), of Massachusetts, said:

"Their general tenor is to provide $50,000,000 federal relief funds this school year, and $100,000,000 next year."

NEW WAGE CUT BY RAILROADS STIRS UNIONS

Conferences Planned On Pay Rate; Workers Dissatisfied

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Representatives of railway unions and brotherhoods expressed surprise here today when informed of the carriers' notice of a 15 per cent cut in basic wage rates.

A. F. Whitney, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' Association, said the news dispatches were t he first word the brotherhods have had of the cut and that until official notice was received they would have nothing to say.

Railroad men at present are working under a 10 per cent cut which expires on June 30. The cut was continued for a year last summer after Joseph B. Eastman, co-ordinator of transportaion, acting for President Roosevelt, urged the railroads and the brotherhoods to leave the situation as it was.

GOVERNMENT MEDIATOR

tA that time the railroads sought a 20 per cent reduction in basic rates. When reports were current last week that a new cut might be proposed, Whitney said the brotherhoods would insist on removal of the current reduction and might even ask for a 5 or 10 per cent increase of basic rates in view of the rising cost of living and devaluation of the dollar.

Within the next 30 days the brotherhoods and representatives of the railroad managements will get together in a series of conferences. They will be held in Washington, where Co-ordinator Eastman or some other designated government official can act as a mediator and seek to prevent any dispute from going far enough to require intervention of the United States Board of Mediation.

CONFERENCE MARCH 1

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Formal notice of a 15 per cent reduction in basic rates of pay was served on all railroad labor union executives today by executives of Western, Eastern and Southeastern lines.

The cut will substitute for a 10 per cent deduction from pay checks now in effect under an agreement made a year ago. It will amount to a 5 per cent additional cut.

The notice of the intended reduction included a proposal for a conference on the subject to be held in Chicago, March 1.

TAXLESS BOND BILL BLOCKED

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Prospect of legislation at this session to end the issuance of tax-exempt bonds faded today when the administration blocked consideration.

With billions of dollars in new securites to be floated, the Treasury was reported to be fearful of the legislation's effect on the bond market. At least, legislation would force higher interest rates at a time when the President is seeking generally lower interest rates.

The immediate object of the administration's attention, however, was the 258 million dollars income tax revision bill now pending in the House. Adoption of the strict "gag" rule yesterday is now said to have been partly the result of the administration's effort to submerge efforts to make tax-exempt bonds subject to a heavy tax.

CHARLOTTE NASH NIXON

NIXON BEAUTY'S ROMANCE AIRED

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—A cablegram signed "Charlotte" and demanding $50,000 from Frederick G. Nixon-Nirdlinger was read into the record today in the legal action of Mrs. Charlotte Nash Nixon, the slain theatrical magnate's widow, for a larger share in his estate.

Counsel for Mrs. Lura McKenna Nixon-Nirdlinger, a former wife of the theater owner, introduced the cablegram in cross examination of Mrs. James B. Nash, of St. Louis, mother of Mrs. Nixon.

Mrs. Nixon, the former Charlotte Nash, who was "Miss St. Louis" of the Atlantic City beauty pageant of 1923, seeks one-third of Nixon-Nirdlinger's entire estate, which has been estimated to be worth $1,000,000.

Nixon-Nirdlinger was shot to death in Nice, France, a few years ago. Mrs. Nixon, who has received court permission to drop the "Nirdlinger" from her name, was acquitted in the slaying by a French court.

Counsel for Mrs. McKeena Nixon-Nirdlinger questioned Mrs. Nash about her daughter's life from the time she met Nirdlinger. Mrs. Nash testified that she came East at Christmas time in 1923, and her daughter told her that she and Nixon-Nirdlinger were engaged. Mrs. Nash was asked:

"Did you ask Mr. Nirdlinger where his wife fitted into the picture when he was engaged to your daughter?"

"Did you ever ask your daughter why she married him, as you have testified both you and she knew he was married?"

"Charlotte said that he got down on his knees and cried, and begged her to marry him. She said he told her he had a right to marry."

Bomber of Exchange Gets 30-Day Term

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—Eugene S. Daniell, Jr., Boston lawyer and Harvard graduate, who was convicted on February 1 of assault in the third degree in connection with placing two tear gas bombs in the ventilating system of the New York Stock Exchange, today was fined $500, with the alternative of serving 30 days in The Tombs. He did not pay the fine and was committed to the prison.

Father, Child Perish In Gas-Filled Room

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Overcome by gas in the two-room apartment into which they had moved several days ago, Archie Hoag, 27, a CWA worker, and his 22-month-old child are dead. His wife is in a serious condition.

ARTISTS HERE TOLD TO QUIT BY CWA

50 of Them Cut Off Payroll, Many Jobs Not Finished

Fifty artists employed by the CWA in the county will drop their brushes today with the arrival of the deadline on all art projects subsidized by federal funds.

Those who have not finished their work may continue if they wish, according to John O'Connor, secretary of the CWA Regional Art Committee, but they will not be paid. The original order was that such jobs were to be ended by February 15, he said, and the order has not been cancelled.

Resumption of the projects is possible, O'Connor declared, and probably will depend on the results of a conference of regional art directors he is to attend in Washington next week.

Effective at midnight tonight an order halting all federal CWA projects not being operated on federal property will endanger the jobs of about 1,200 men employed on mine sealing work in Western Pennsylvania. About 250 will be affected in Allegheny County.

Clearing of the $950,000,000 appropriation bill for the CWA and distress relief through the Senate yesterday solved the pay problem in the local CWA disbursing office. According to James L. Cleary, paymaster, funds on hand are sufficient to pay only part of the payroll ending today.

200,000 to Be Dropped From CWA Payroll

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The Civil Works Administration jingled millions in its jeans today to assure immediate pay envelopes to 3,800,000 persons—but for some 200,000 it will be the last visit to the federal cashier.

Even as Congress stopped arguing, to drop $450,000,000 into the empty CWA till, Administrator Harry L. Hopkins told Government agencies to reduce their Civil Works forces from 50 to 90 per cent.

At the same time he ordered cessation of Federal Civil Works not on Federal or other public property.

With practically all of its first $400,000,000 fund exhausted last Saturday, the CWA appeared about to halt stock-still or at least go payroll-less.

But even with this problem answered, Hopkins served notice that plans for reducing the force were still in effect.

He intends to cut the total of employes by about 10 per cent a week, until the army will have practically vanished by May 1. Once at a peak of 4,000,000 men, it already is 200,000 below that figure.

BOARD SILENT ON WEIRTON

The National Labor Board today had cloaked with silence its plans to meet the challenge of its powers made by the Weirton Steel Company.

The board met yesterday in Washington, according to the Associated Press, and during the meeting, Chairman Robert F. Wagner left for Cleveland. It was understood the Weirton case was discussed, but board members declined to make any statements, saying it was decided to withhold publicity.

The board had planned to poll the Weirton workers on whether they want another election of employe representatives in collective bargaining at the company mills, but ran into a snag when the company refused to submit a list of its employes for the purposes of the poll.

E. T. Weir's refusal as chairman of the company to co-operate with the board in holding a new election, which might upset the present company union set-up in the mills, was expected to lead to a court test of the board's powers if it persists in its intention to hold another election.

Gospel Held Useless To Less Intelligent

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Delegates to the International Council of Religious Education were told by Dr. William S. Sadler, "The Gospel of Jesus Christ will have no effect" on persons whose intelligence quotients are below 70 or 80. He spoke yesterday, saying:

"When the intelligence quotient runs that low there is no hope. For these people praying is a purely motional experience and they will go right from it to sinning.

"Of course, we go ahead and preach the Gospel to them as to everyone, but don't try any personality readjustment for those who have not the intellectual foundation."

A pastor asked:

"What would be done with the 70 per cent I. Q.'s to keep them from possible criminality if religion offers no hope?"

The doctor replied:

Big P. R. R. Steel Order To Boom Jobs Here

The Tri-State district steel industry today received a new impetus as the Pennsylvania Railroad placed orders for more than three million dollars' worth of steel.

More than 72,000 tons of steel was ordered from 21 companies, most of them in this district. It will be used in construction of 7,000 new freight cars in the railroad shops at Pittsburgh, Altoona and Harrisburg.

More than 1,200 men will return to active duty in the railroad shops, officials said, in addition to the employment boost provided in the steel mills.

The orders released yesterday and others placed Tuesday total more than $4,000,000. Officials said it was one of the largest steel orders placed by a railroad in recent years.

The car construction is part of the employment and improvement program of the Pennsylvania, financed by the Public Works Administration.

RECONCILIATION FORECAST BY FRIENDS

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 15.—Although the divorce action of Lord Ashley may complicate matters, there is still reason to believe that Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., may smooth out their differences and effect a reconciliation, friends of the famous film couple revealed today.

Miss Pickford has pending in Los Angeles a suit for divorce against Fairbanks on the nominal grounds of cruelty. Lord Ashley, in petitioning for divorce in London against Lady Ashley, named Fairbanks as co-respondent.

Only a day or so before Lord Ashley filed his action, Fairbanks, from London, tlegraphed Mary Pickford, in the East on a stage tour, asking her to delay her divorce action, it was learned here.

DELAY LIKELY

"It is difficult to say what bearing Lord Ashley's action will have on the tentative attempts of Mr. Fairbanks and Miss Pickford to reach some sort of an understanding.

"This may delay matters for some time, but there is considerable reason to believe that in time some sort of a reconciliation may be worked out."

Fairbanks and Miss Pickford have been in communication with each other ever since their separation last year it was revealed. Transatlantic telephone and intermediaries were used.

RECONCILIATION HINTED

The report that the two may yet come together again was revived a few days ago with the return from Europe of Joseph Schenck, movie producer, who said he had brought back from England a personal mesage for Miss Pickford as well as a "kiss from Doug."

Other evidence pointing toward a reconsideration of their separation plans was seen when Pickfair, famous mansion atop the Hollywood hills where Doug and Mary entertained the royalty of the world, had been withdrawn from the market after being offered for sale when Miss Pickford admitted that the two were separated.

TRAYLOR, NOTED BANKER, DIES

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Death has closed the career of Melvin A. Traylor, the banker, who rose from a humble beginning in a Kentucky log cabin to become an international figure in banking and a national power in politics.

His heart weakened by a 35-day siege of pneumonia, the 55-year-old president of the First National Bank—a $900,000,000 institution, died at 11:08 o'clock last night at his home.

In Traylor's illness physicians were confronted by a rare form of the ailment complicated by the presence of the Friedlander bacillus, a micro-organism discovered in 1883 by a German scientist and which doctors said was the cause of pneumonia only in about one case in 60.

Artificial respiration, an oxygen tent, a serum made from the blood of Mrs. Taylor, who had recovered from an ordinary attack of pneumonia, were used, but to no avail.

THE NOTE, SIGNED "LaROUX," THAT MRS. SOLES IS SAID TO HAVE WRITTEN . . . PROBLEM: WHY DID SHE?

The all-important note in the Soles case, admitted as evidence now. Experts have studied it for traces of shakiness that might be laid to the infirmity of a seriously-wounded woman—because if the commonwealth could prove that Mrs. Soles wrote it to shield her husband, Robert S. Soles might be convicted of murder.

Women Cheer Verdict Exonerating Murrel

Army's Ex-Grid Hero Cleared in Attack On Divorcee

International News Service.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 15.—Lieut. John H. Murrel, former West Point football hero, stood acquitted by a Federal Court jury today on a charge of attacking Mrs. Blanche Ralls Boisclair, attractive Birmingham (Ala.) divorcee.

Requiring only 55 minutes to return its verdict, the jury of 12 men late yesterday cleared the young Army officer on both charges for which he was tried, attempted attack and attack.

The trial, heard before Judge R. J. McMillan, lasted but three days.

Testifying in his own defense, Lieut. Murrell emphatically denied the charges of Mrs. Boisclair that he attacked her on the Fort Sam Houston military reservation October 22 after a night club party. The officer said his companion was intoxicated and explained he was driving her home so his mother could care for her.

WOMEN CHEER VERDICT

Women spectators, who had waited in the courtroom for the jury's decision, cheered the verdict when it was read. Bailiffs tried in vain to halt the rush of spectators as they pressed forward to congratulate Lieut. Murrel on his acquittal. Mrs. Boisclair was not in the courtroom when the verdict was read.

When he heard the words pronouncing his acquittal Lieut. Murrel joyously embraced his mother, who had been with him in the courtroom since the trial began Monday morning.

JUDGE'S CHARGE

Three hours were required for final arguments, after which Judge McMillan curtly instructed the jury to do nothing more than determine the innocence or guilt of the infantry officer.

With the trial concluded Lieut. Murrel was ordered to return to his post at Fort Sam Houston. Since his release on bail last November Lieut. Murrel had been acting as assistant adjutant of the 2nd Army Division.

HIGHBALL DEATH DOCTOR TO WED

International News Service.

GREENWOOD, Miss., Feb. 15.—Cured of the affection which led her to write burning love letters to the man she is accused of killing, Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean will seek a new happiness in marriage if she wins the acquital she so confidently expects.

Such was the report which circulated among townspeople today as Dr. Dean's trial for the "poison highball" slaying of Dr. J. Preston Kennedy was resumed.

It was learned that Dr. Dean had planned to become the wife of a certain Capt. Maulk, of Dover, Del., at the time of her arrest.

Maulk, commander of a Delaware river steamboat, was present for the first two days of the trial, but was called away because of the illness of relatives. This spared him the ordeal of listening to fervent letters written by the defendant to the late Dr. Kennedy.

Dr. Dean, for the first time in the trial, broke down yesterday her blue eyes filled with tears, but she withstood the ordeal without uttering a word.

CHILD TORTURE TOLD AT TRIAL

International News Service.

DENVER, Feb. 15.—The bitterness of years of pent-up hatred broke out in the trial at Littleton, Col., today, of Donald K. Smith, 31, for the killing of his 3-year-old son, Donald, Jr.

Smith and his wife hurled charges of unbelievably cruel tortures at one another as they told widely-differing versions of events leading up to the child's death.

Smith, on trial for his life, is charged with killing the child in a fit of rage because the youngster could not distinguish between the words "breakfast" and "supper."

Mrs. Mabel Smith, the child's mother, said he slapped the child with a flyswatter, stuck him with a hatpin, forced him to eat soap, pricked him with a two-tined meat fork and pinched him with pliers.

GUARD BEAUTY, FEAR KIDNAPING

International News Service.

BOSTON, Feb. 15.—Mrs. Raymond W. Lapham, the former Madge Jarratt, "princess" in the 1929 annual fiesta in her home city of San Antonio, Texas, today was under police guard as a result of a mysterious telephone call, which authorities interpreted as the first move in an attempt to kidnap the young society matron.

At the same time, Boston police admitted that officers have been guarding Miss Charlotte Condit Lyman, socially prominent bride-to-be, because of a report that a gang sought to abduct her. The guards were withdrawn last night, however, when police determined a kidnap threat emanated from a former employe of her father.

Whether a practical joker was at work or Mrs. Lapham escaped being the victim of a plot were questions police were trying to answer.

Poisoned Needle Kills 4 Dogs for Attack

CORTLAND, N. Y., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—A poisoned needle, wielded by the law, executed four mongrel dogs today for a pack attack which crippled Joyce Hammond, 6-year-old school girl.

Appeals from animal-lovers all over the country failed to save the dogs. They were taken from cells shortly after midnight to an animal hospital, where County Veterinarian E. V. Moore carried out the death sentences imposed by Justice of the Peace A. P. McGraw.

Dr. Moore plunged a poisoned needle into each dog. Then an anesthetic was administered. The dogs, which only a moment before had been yelping for joy at being released from the cells, fell into a sleep and died quickly. Curly succumbed first, then Pal, Jack and Sport.

Dr. Moore declared his method of execution was approved by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals as the "most humane."

Little Joyce, who may never recover the use of an arm the dogs mangled, slept at her home a few blocks from the hospital while the dogs were being killed. Unaware of the impending execution, she had spent a busy day yesterday looking over hundreds of valentines, chewing gum and a "sunshine basket" of toys sent her.

LIQUOR STORES CUT 'DRUNKS'

The number of drunks arrested in Pittsburgh since the opening of the state liquor stores has dropped "markedly," according to Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall. The police head today said Pittsburghers were becoming "home drinkers."

Arrests for drunkenness during January, the first month state stores were in operation here, declined to 1,516 from the 2,100 in December, Marshall said. The largest number of arrests was reported for the Hill district, with 346 persons arraigned in Center Avenue Police Court.

The soberest district in the city for the month was Hazelwood, with only 16 arraignments at No. 10 Police Station, according to Marshall's report. And this is what the superintendent thinks of the liquor stores:

"The decrease in the number of drunks arrested was due to the establishment and opening of the state stores. Those wishing to drink went to the stores, bought their liquor and took it home."

DEATH TAKES M'KNIGHT SON

Felix P. (Chunie) McKnight, 32, of 302 Coltart street, son of the late Patrick (Paddy) McKnight, Soho political boss and slot machine baron, died in the Homeopathic Hospital early today from pneumonia.

He had been ill at the home of his brother less than a week, relatives said.

Play Forbidden, Girl Takes Poison

A 15-year-old girl living in Foxway was reported recovering today in South Side Hospital from the effects of poison swallowed police said, when her mother refused to let her out to play with the neighborhood children late yesterday after returning from school.

Because of the child's age, the Sun-Telegraph will not publish her name.

ROBBER'S WIFE ESCAPES TERM

Separated from her bank robber husband by a long prison term, Irene Sadvary, 20-year-old Braddock High School graduate, today had narrowly escaped a reformatory sentence.

Sentences of one year in the House of Correction in Philadelphia were imposed yesterday on the girl, her brother, John, and a friend, David Getsie, all of Braddock, but were rescinded with a stipulation that they must leave Philadelphia at once.

The girl's husband, William (Quick Willie) Sutton, was sentenced Monday to serve 25 to 50 years in Eastern Penitentiary in a Philadelphia bank holdup. The wife, John Sadvary, and Getsie were convicted of being "idle and disorderly persons without visible means of support."

The girl said she married Sutton, an escaped Sing Sing convict, believing he was a prosperous real estate dealer. After her sentence was rescinded, she left for New York.

Flier Killed After Arranging for Death

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Capt. W. Merle Nelson, 36, Los Angeles stunt flier, who a week ago asked Shushan Airport officials in the event of a fatal accident to have his body cremated and the ashes strewn over the airfield by fellow aviators, is dead.

Trapped in his plane which crashed and caught fire after failing to become righted from a loop at 600 feet, the flier was burned to death last night.

Mrs. Roosevelt Totes Pistol on Auto Tours

WASHINGTON, Feb 15.—(AP.)—A shooting gallery was reported unofficially today to have been installed in the White House at the instance of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

It is understood the range will be used for pistol practice. Mrs. Roosevelt is known to be a skillful shot and to carry a pistol with her on motor trips. She is on such a trip now, but her itinerary has not been announced.

The gallery is said to be a long metal tunnel on the first floor of the East wing of the White House, properly safeguarded against bullets going wild. The Washington Post says it is 55 feet long and about three feet wide and high.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Feb. 15.—(AP.)—A small blue coupe drew up beside Traffic Officer Wert Kendall yesterday and the woman driver asked directions to Elmira Reformatory.

As the car moved on, Officer Kendall noticed the license, and exclaimed:

"By golly, it was Mrs. Roosevelt and I forgot even to take off my hat."

Dormont Traffic Snarl Laid to Rum Store

The Dormont State Liquor Store was blamed last night for Saturday night traffic tie-ups in Tennessee avenue.

Charles Phillis asked Council to prohibit parking in the vicinity of the store between West Liberty and Texas avenues. He said:

"There were 30 or more machines parked along that street Saturday night. It's dangerous to drive by the liquor store as cars are starting every few minutes."

Council referred the request to Burgess Charles Chamberlain, who said that the store sells $2,500 worth of liquor a week.

Plan Curb on Marriage Of Divorced Persons

Utmost care in remarriage of divorced persons, particularly those of other denominations, will be required of mininters of the proposed Presbyterian Church of America, if merger of the Presbyterian and United Presbyterian churches is authorized.

The Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, in an article "The Provisional Directory for Worship", points out this statement in that document:

"They (ministers) should also refuse to unite in marriage any member of any other denomination whose remarriage is known to be prohibited by the laws of the church in which such person holds membership, unless the minister believes that in the peculiar circumstances of a given case his refusal would do injustice to an innocent person who has been divorced for scriptural reasons."

The edict is believed to apply especially to members of the Catholic Church which forbids remarriage of divorced persons.

CHAUFFEUR LINKS WOMAN TO SOLES CASE; BARES TRIP

testified he had heard Lieut. Charles Eckles say:

"No, we can't take that, Bob. Put it away."

TESTIMONY SURPRISE

Even with this testimony from Connelly, Haggerty for the second time in two days was forced to plead that other testimony of this witness had surprised him—and he cross-examined his own witness.

Connelly startled the courtroom when he testified that Soles, in that bedroom shortly after the shooting, had told him and Eckles that a successful attempt had been made to blackmail his wife by a man apparently named Watt Martin.

This was the essence of Soles' revelations, as reported by the McKeesport policeman:

"Fellows, I'm going to tell you something. That dirty —— has been in town since Friday. He was in this (bed) room last night. . . . My wife has been blackmailed . . . I'll spend everything I've got to get that ——."

'GO AHEAD, TELL.'

Connelly testified, too, that in the McKeesport Hospital's emergency room, while LaRoux lay dying on a stretcher, he heard Soles say to his wife:

"Go ahead, Spite, tell them all. Tell them I done it."

(Spite was a nickname Soles had for his wife, according to testimony.)

About the same time Connelly said he heard LaRoux tell her husband she had planned to end her life for "a long time."

Haggerty pleaded surprise at Connelly's testimony twice—the first time when Connelly testified that Soles had walked into the bedroom to tell of the alleged blackmail attempt with a letter in his hand.

INSISTS ON TELEGRAM

Haggerty barked out that in previous statements to him Connelly had insisted it was a telegram.

The second time Haggerty objected was when Connelly quoted LaRoux Soles as telling her husband, in the hospital emergency room, that she had planned for a long time to commit suicide.

Soles was drunk—very drunk—the night LaRoux Soles either was murdered by him or shot herself, according to testimony brought out late yesterday as the third day of the trial was completed.

And this revelation was furnished by counsel for the prosperous McKeesporter, who is charged with shooting his wife, then urging her—successfully—to write a suicide note.

The ex-Army captain was in the state of a "drunk" who weaves his way about, according to the records.

Dr. W. C. Heisey, McKeesport surgeon, who attended the dying LaRoux in her bedroom before she was taken to the hospital, was being cross-examined on this point by Soles' counsel, Attorney O. K. Eaton, who asked:

'SWAYED IN HIS WALK'

"You saw Soles at home. Had he been drinking?"

"Yes. He impressed me as though he had been drinking."

"To what extent?"

"He could not pronounce words. He swayed in his walk. There was no co-ordination of thought."

Listening intently to all this was the blondish, unsmiling Rose Hardy, good friend of Soles, with whom, in fact, he spent several hours before he returned to his home that fatal June night, according to the prosecution.

Mrs. Hardy was stylishly garbed, but there was little comfort for her in this, for she was in pain. A recent attack of tonsilitis and a nervous condition left her wan. Yesterday, a physician's services were offered her just before it was thought she might go on the stand.

THE NURSE'S STORY

She refused, but if she had accepted and left her frist-row seat in the courtroom, she might have been spared hearing testimony upon which Prosecutor John Haggerty placed great hopes—the story of demure Alice Brown, nurse at the McKeesport Hospital.

The aggressive prosecutor was asking the nurse what conversations she had with Soles in the hospital room where the attractive LaRoux finally died:

"What did he say to you?"

There was a buzz of voices and a short collective gasp in the crowded courtroom when the nurse replied:

"You shouldn't give her that treatment. She wanted to die. Why don't you let her die?"

"Did his wife hear him say that?"

"I suppose she did."

"What did she do?"

"She just opened her eyes and looked at him and said nothing."

Then she told of LaRoux's deathbed promise that she would "always" love her husband.

STORY OF LAROUX SOLES' DEATH AS TOLD ON WITNESS STAND

Following is a question and answer story of the latest testimony in the Soles murder trial:

Prosecutor Haggerty questioned:

Q.—When did you first learn of trouble at the Soles home?

A.—4:50 a. m.

Q.—Where were you?

Q.—Prior to your start to the hospital had you any information about what happened?

A.—No.

Q.—Who did you first see at the hospital.

A.—Well, we went to the emergency room first and there was Dr. Jordan, Dr. Heisey, Miss Sinatra, a nurse; Miss McLaughlin, another nurse, and a woman on the emergency cot.

Q.—Was the defendant there?

A.—Yes, he was there, he was holding the woman's head.

Q.—Now, just go ahead and tell what happened there.

A.—Well, when we walked in and saw the woman lying on the table and Soles standing there alongside with his arm under her head, the lieutenant asked what was wrong and what was the name of the woman. Soles called out "Smith." I went up to him and said "I'm sorry to cause your wife any pain, but it's necessary that we get the name and what happened." Soles turned to his wife and said to her: "Go ahead, Spite (Spite was a nickname Soles had for his wife, according to testimony)—tell them all. Tell them I done it." The woman said: "No, officer, Bob didn't do it, I done it myself." Soles and I walked outside then and he told me he had arrived home about 1:45 a. m. He said he heard his wife moaning, but he didn't pay any attention at first, but afterwards he said he went in and she told him she had shot herself.

'LYING ON BED'

Q.—Did you put all this in your report?

A.—I did.

Q.—Was anybody else with you at the time?

A.—Yes, Lieut. Charles Eckles.

Q.—Does your report show what time Mrs. Soles was admitted to the hospital?

A.—Yes, 4:20.

Q.—What time did Soles say he arrived home?

A.—About 1:45.

Q.—Where did he find her?

A.—Lying on the bed.

Q.—Did you see the defendant use the phone?

A.—Yes. When I asked him what time he arrived home, he said he'd find out, and he went to the phone and called up. He turned around after he was through talking and said 1:45.

Q.—Whom did he talk to?

A.—I don't know.

A.—Yes; Dr. Jordan had it.

Q.—What else did he have?

A.—An empty shell.

Q.—What did Dr. Jordan do with these articles?

A.—He turned them over to Lieut. Eckles.

Q.—Did the lieutenant say anything to Soles?

SCOLDED SOLES

A.—Yes, he reprimanded him for removing the shells from the gun.

Q.—Had the shells been taken out?

A.—Yes. The lieutenant asked Soles where they were and Soles told him they were at his home.

Q.—Then what did you do?

A.—We went up to the Soles house.

Q.—What time was that?

A.—About a quarter to 7 or 7 o'clock.

Q.—Who arrived first, you or Soles.

A.—We got there first. Soles followed us in his automobile.

Q.—What happened then.

A.—Soles opened the door and took us to the bedroom. He opened the door and said, "There it is boys, see what you can make of it." We walked in and looked around.

Q.—What did you find?

A.—Well, the lieutenant asked where the shells were and Soles walked over to the dresser and took out the shells.

Q.—How many shells?

A.—Five.

Q.—Were they in the drawer?

A.—I don't know . . . he went over to the dresser to get them.

Q.—What else did you do?

A.—We looked at the bed. There was a large spot of blood on the sheets.

DRUMMED ON PIANO

Haggerty asked Patrolman Connelly whether Soles had left the bedroom while the police were there a few hours after the shooting. The witness said he had.

Q.—What did he do?

A.—He walked across the hallway and walked up and down, then he went into the room across the hall from the bedroom.

Q.—What did he do then?

A.—He drummed on the piano.

Q.—Did he sit down at the piano?

A.—He sat sideways like this. (The witness illustrated the sitting posture and the piano drumming).

Q.—Did he say anything to you later in the bedroom?

A.—Yes. He said: "Fellows, I'm going to tell you something. That dirty —— has been in town since Friday and he was in this room last night." I said to him, "Who is this guy?" and he didn't say anything for a while. Then he said, "Well, I'll tell you, my wife has been blackmailed." Then he went out and got a letter and came back and said, "I'll spend everything I have to get that ——."

PROSECUTOR SURPRISED

Haggerty then jumped to his feet and pleaded that the testimony of his own witness had surprised him. This gave the prosecutor the privilege of cross-examining his own witness.

Q.—Mr. Connelly, didn't you tell me Friday it was a telegram and not a letter?

A.—It was a telegram first, then a letter.

Q.—What did you say to Soles then?

A.—I said, "Who's blackmailing you?" Soles sat on the bed and said, "What's that fellow's name, the ballplayer — Pepper Martin?" I said there was a ballplayer by that name. Soles said, "Oh, that isn't the name; it's Watt Martin."

Connelly then quoted Soles as saying he had given his wife a $500 check on the Friday before the shooting.

Q.—You didn't tell me that last Friday, Mr. Connelly? . . . Did you see Soles offer the lieutenant (Charles Eckles) anything?

A.—No, sir. I heard the lieutenant say to Soles, "No, we can't take that, Bob. Put it away."

Q.—What had Soles said before that?

NO CIGARS FOR POLICE

A.—He said he was sorry he had no cigars or cigarets to offer us.

Q.—You saw a wallet on the bed?

A.—Soles threw a wallet on the dresser and said, "There's $6,000 negotiable paper in there."

After the bedroom draperies, through which the fatal bullet ripped, had been introduced and examined, Haggerty asked:

Q.—Did Soles give you anything?

A.—Yes, sir. He pulled a .45-caliber Colt out of a drawer and said, "Here's a nice gun. I carried it all through France during the war." I handed it back to him and he said, "Do you want it?" I said, "No, Mr. Soles, we aren't allowed to take that." Just then the lieutenant came in and said it was all right to take it.

Q.—Why did he give you this as a present?

A.—He told me he had never used it and he said he wished he had never had a gun.

Q.—Tell us what else you did that morning.

A.—Well, I made out my report and gave it to the chief.

Q.—That was the end of it?

A.—Yes.

Eaton took the witness at this point. He showed Connelly the mystery letter and asked:

Q.—Is this letter similar to the one Soles looked at that morning in the bedroom?

A.—Yes.

SAW YELLOW PAPER

Then he showed him the telegram.

Q.—Is this similar to the telegram, or wire, he had that morning?

Q.—Did he use any other name in connection with that telegram?

A.—Yes, Watt Martin.

Q.—Did you hear Soles or anyone else say anything about the shooting that morning?

A.—Yes, I heard her say to Bob that she planned to do it for a long time. I didn't catch all of it because I had stepped back.

Q.—Was there any reason for that?

A.—She said something about her children (both dead).

Q.—Did you see any nurse take rings from Mrs. Soles' hands?

A.—No.

NURSE GIVES RINGS

Q—Did you see any rings up at the house?

A—I saw Miss McLaughlin, the nurse, give Mr. Soles two rings outside the emergency room.

Eaton produced two rings tagged defense exhibits. One was a solitaire diamond and other a dinner ring with three large diamonds and a number of rhinestones, or small diamonds. He showed them to the witnes.

Q.—Are these the rings?

A.—I know she gave him two rings, but I don't know whether those are the ones or not.

Haggerty at this juncture pleaded surprise again. To the witness, he addressed this question:

Q.—Did I understand you to tell this court and jury that you heard Mrs. Soles say she planned it for a long time?

A.—Yes.

STATE 'EXPLODES'

Q.—Up in my office last week didn't I ask you whether you knew anything else about this case. (He read into the record a long question asked the witness on that occasion.)

A.—You did.

Q.—Why didn't you tell me about this at that time?

A.—I wasn't asked.

Q.—Why didn't you tell Connors (county detective)?

A.—I wasn't asked.

Q.—Didn't you think it important enough to tell the district attorney and the county detectives and the coroner.

A.—No.

Q.—How long have you been a police officer?

Eaton rose to an objection. Without waiting for the court to rule, Haggerty exploded.

"That's all."

Robert Hurley, McKeesport policeman, was called.

Q.—Did you see the gun that Soles gave to Officer Connelly?

A.—Yes. Connelly gave me the gun and asked me to clean it.

John Sellman, McKeesport policeman, was called next.

Q.—Did you receive a gun from Connelly?

A.—Yes, I saw Connelly with

Mrs. Walsh asked that $60,000 of $69,000 in United States government bonds in the estate be divided equally between her and the senator's daughter, Mrs. Genevieve Walsh Gudger. The widow said the remaining $9,000 would be ample to meet obligations outstanding against the estate.

LAW TO BARE PROFITS URGED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—A recommendation that corporations be required to report quarterly their sales and profits for the information of small investors was made today by Fred Y. Presley, of New York.

LAROUX SOLES' DEATH AS REVEALED IN TESTIMONY

OFFICER TELLS OF SCENE IN HOME

the gun and I bought it from him.

Q.—How much did you pay for the gun?

Eaton objected.

BRIBERY CHARGED

Before the judge could rule Haggerty jumped to his feet. He said:

"Your honor, this is an indirect bribery. This gun was given by Soles to Connelly as a bribe."

Eaton remarked:

"Oh, don't be silly."

Q.—Tell us what conversation you had with Connelly about the gun.

A.—He told me Capt. Soles gave him the gun. This gun had been carried by the captain in France and I wanted it.

Q.—Did he give it to you?

A.—Well, he practically gave it to me.

Q.—Didn't you say you gave him $8 for the gun?

A.—I said I would, but I haven't given it to him yet.

Mrs. Helen Cockrill, of Lewisville, Ind., close friend of LaRoux, was called.

WIFE'S FRIEND TESTIFIES

Haggerty questioned:

A.—No.

Q.—What spirits was she in?

A.—I thought she was all right.

Q.—Do you know how she came up from Florida to your home?

A.—Yes, she drove up in an automobile.

Q.—Do you know who drove?

A.—Yes, a chauffeur.

Q.—When did you next see her after that visit?

A.—When I came on to visit her.

A.—Yes.

Q.—How did she look before she went to Atlantic City?

A.—All right.

Q.—Do you know why she went to Atlantic City?

A.—Only what she told me.

Q.—Why?

'DRINKING A LOT'

A.—Well, he (Soles) told me he hadn't been feeling very well.

Q.—During your visit was there any discussion about Mrs. Soles' health?

A.—Not that I heard.

Q.—What was the conduct of the defendant towards his wife?

A.—Not so good.

Q.—Well, tell us what you mean by that?

A.—He didn't eat his meals regularly and he stayed in his room a lot.

Q.—You say he wasn't around a lot—where was he?

A.—Why?

A.—Well, he had been drinking a lot.

Q.—When you came over from Lewisville at the time of the funeral, did you have any conversation with Mr. Soles about his wife's death?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What was that?

A.—When I got there, he met me as I came into the house. He took my arm and led me back to the room where LaRoux was and I started to cry. He said to me, "You musn't feel that way—It's just so much water over the dam."

MRS. HARDY MENTIONED

Rose Hardy's name was mentioned in the testimony for the first time when Haggerty asked Mrs. Cockrill who was in the Soles house on the day after the funeral.

A.—Miss Free, Minnie Buchweitz and Rose Hardy were upstairs in the house.

Q.—Do you know what they were doing?

A.—Well, they had pads and pencil. Miss Buchweitz (Soles secretary) had a pad.

Q.—Were you in the house again?

A.—Yes. Monday. Mr. Soles called me up and said we'd have to remove Mr. Lynch's belongings . . . We did.

Q.—Did you talk to Soles there?

A.—Yes. We went into the bedroom and talked. He said, 'Why did the old man (Lynch) move his stuff out?' and I told him he had told us to. Then he said, 'Well, he has to live and I have to live, why can't we live here?'

Q.—Was there any other conversation?

CALLED THEM 'YELLOW'

A.—Yes. He said, 'Do you think I could sleep here if my conscience bothered me after I found LaRoux on the floor shot?' Then he said, 'Can you think of any time I was not good to her?' And I said, 'Yes, when you were drinking or drunk.' . . . He said we are 'just a bunch of nickel-grabbing—and if we weren't yellow—we'd resent being called that.

Haggerty then tried to imply that Soles included his late wife in that category.

Q.—Did you ever hear the defendant say anything about a divorce?

A.—Yes. Once he said, "No woman will ever leave me."

Q.—Was Mrs. Soles there when he said that?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you ever know of Mrs. Soles being melancholy over the death of her two children? Did she ever discuss the children?

A.—No more than the average mother.

The witness then told of Mrs. Soles' first child dying in 1926 and of a second child, premature, that died at birth. Haggerty was trying to show that Mrs. Soles did not take her own life because she was melancholy over the death of the children.

RECEIVED ORNAMENT

Mrs. Cockrill was placed on the stand again after the noon recess. Prosecutor Haggerty took up the questioning.

Q.—When you went back to the Soles home after the funeral services or any other time, were any of Mrs. Soles' personal effects offered to you.

A.—Mr. Soles asked me if there was anything I wanted.

Q.—Did you ask for anything?

Q.—Did you get it?

A.—Yes.

Eaton took the witness for cross-examination.

Q.—From June, 1932, until the early port of May, 1933, Mrs. Cockrill, did you receive a number of letters from the Soles.

A.—Yes, several.

Q.—Would you say about a dozen?

A.—I couldn't say how many. There were several.

Q.—Well, would you say you received a letter about once a month.

A.—Perhaps that often.

Q.—How long had you known Mrs. Soles?

A.—Twenty-eight years.

Q.—Was she alway jovial . . . in god spirits?

A.—Yes.

NURSE RECALLED

Mary Jane Crossen, the nurse, was recalled by Haggerty. She identified a band ring taken from LaRoux's finger by her in the hospital. She testified she gave the ring to Soles.

Connelly, the McKeesport policeman who twice before surprised Haggerty, was then recalled. He produced a copy of his report to Lieut. Eckles on the Soles case, testifying the original had been destroyed. Haggerty pursued his surprise questioning:

Q.—You say the original was destroyed . . . who made this up?

A.—Chief Whalen.

Q.—There's nothing in the report about what you said you heard Mrs. Soles say about "planning it for a long time." Didn't you think that it was important enough to put in the report?

A.—No.

Q.—Why?

A.—Well, Mr. Lynch asked me to make the report short. He said he didn't want any publicity about the case.

Q.—Why didn't you tell me or Mr. Connors what you heard her say, didn't you think it was importane enough?

A.—I did tell you what she said. I told you I heard her say "Bob didn't do it" and you got angry . . .

Q.—That isn't what I'm asking you. Do you mean to tell me you told me you heard her say "I planned it for a long time?"

FAILS TO REMEMBER

The witness flushed and slouched down in the chair:

"I don't remember."

Eaton took the witness.

Q.—You did tell someone that you heard Mrs. Soles say that, didn't you, officer?

A.—Yes, I told the investigator who came to the police station with Mr. Lynch.

Q.—Who was that?

A.—He was introduced to me as Mr. Dunn.

Q.—You mean the lawyer from Florida who has been sitting at the counsel table over there (pointing to commonwealth side where William J. Dunn, retained by Lynch, had been sitting)?

A.—Yes.

Haggerty jumped up and roared another question.

Q.—How long ago did you tell him?

A.—In October.

Q.—Last October?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Oh, you remembered to tell it last October, but you didn't it important to tell me last week . . . That's all.

DEATHBED SCENE

Late yesterday the state had entered the testimony of Sarah Jane Crossen, private nurse to Mrs. Soles in the hospital. The high point of her testimony concerned conversations between Soles and his wife. She said Soles always asked whether Mrs. Soles loved him and the patient always said, "Yes, Robert, I do love you." Haggerty then asked:

Q.—When did he draw your attention to the conversation with his wife?

A.—He said "Nurse, did you hear that?" I walked over to the bed and she repeated, "Bob didn't do it."

Q.—What did he say when she said this?

A.—He put his head on the bed and said, "Let every one hear you."

The witness said Soles wasn't present when his wife died. She said she did not know of Mrs. Soles telling any person that she was despondent.

Previously Dr. W. B. Harvey, of the North Side, cousin of Mrs. Soles, had testified to the general condition of her health, during a three-year period. He said she was in ordinary health and estimated that Mrs. Soles had lost 10 pounds in weight during her trip to Florida, instead of 30 pounds as Attorney Eaton had implied. Under cross-examination he said he wouldn't feel qualified to say she was not a neurotic. In answer to Eaton's question "What is a neurotic?" he replied:

"I don't know."

AMBRIDGE QUIZ OFFER STUDIED

A Pitt professor and a City Councilman today were considering whether they will accept commissions to investigate private employment of deputy sheriffs in labor disputes.

They are J. W. Madden, University of Pittsburgh professor of law, and Councilman John J. Kane, an active labor leader. Gov. Pinchot asked them to serve on a state-wide investigating body which would deal particularly with the strike riots in Ambridge last October.

Both Madden and Kane said they were considering the appointments, but neither was certain what his decision would be.

One person was killed and more than 50 injured in the Ambridge riots. Gov. Pinchot said he had waited in vain for local authorities to investigate.

The commission would be composed of five members, headed by Special Deputy Attorney General Shippen Lewis, of Philadelphia.

MELLON ESTATE HELD IN FIRST GENERATION

Will the future Mellons, Fords and Rockefellers revert to shirtsleeves.

Will the fortunes of these families disappear as other great fortunes have vanished?

Samuel Crowther, in the March Cosmopolitan, "From Shirtsleeves to Shirtsleeves," asserts that "no one knows a sure way to keep a fortune."

Large fortunes rarely survive the second generation, the writer points out, citing the vast estates of the Hohenzollerns, largely dissipated through reduced bond values and the holdings of the Hapsburgs, divided among the many petty princes.

For any fortune dating back more than 300 years one must turn to the Orient, Crowther holds. Indian potentates hoard their wealth in gold and silver coins and precious stones. But these rulers are not lavish spenders, they simply "take part of the treasury out for a walk."

Regarding the Mellon millions the writer says:

"The three really large estates in this country—the Rockefeller, Ford and Mellon — are still in the first generation. Although Judge Mellon founded the fortune, it was his sons, Andrew W. and the late Richard B., who carried it to great heights.

"The present fortune consists of interests in a considerable number of diverse industries, as well as in banks and real estate, and is really in the shape of a diversified management trust."

COOK FOR 75 FINDS HELP IN RECIPES

Orphans Are Given Variety Through Contest

Even Popeye with his yen for spinach is entering Prudence Penny's contest, for, lo and behold, in today's $1 prize winners is Popeye's Special with spinach that "makes you strong" its chief ingredient.

Also among the latest recipes put at your disposal is "Cimma-Kuchen," which, according to its sender, Mrs. Laurence H. Keil, has been a prime favorite with several generations of her family. She tells Prudence Penny:

"'Cimma - Kuchen' has been handed down from my great-grandmother, whose 150-year-old estate on which she baked this dish still stands near Vienna, Austria."

Do as Mrs. H. C. Hocks did, who sent in a number of recipes because:

Address your letters to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. She daily awards one $5 and 10 $1 prizes to the best recipes received. No recipes are returned.

One chopped hard-cooked egg.
Two tablespoons cream.

Grease a casserole or pan with olive oil and rub with garlic. Scoop out pulp of tomatoes. Blend the mixture with cream. Sprinkle the filled tomatoes with bread crumbs and pour a little olive oil on each. Bake in moderate oven 20 minutes. Good with veal chops.

ORANGE PUMPKIN PIE

Grate the rind and extract the juice from one orange. Mix with one and a half cupfuls of cooked and strained pumpkin, half a cupful of sugar, one well-beaten egg, one cupful of milk, scalded, with a tablespoonful of butter, and thickened slightly with two teaspoons of corn starch, a dash of salt, half teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg and ginger to taste. Mix well, then pour into a pastry-lined pan and bake in a moderate oven. A sprinkling of cocoanut or finely chopped nut meats makes a nice topping for this good pie.

MRS. JOHN HUGHES,
36 North Howard avenue, Bellevue.
FLOATING ROCKAWAY

Two cups of white sugar.
Three tablespoons of cornstarch.
Juice of two lemons and one orange.
One pint of boiling water.

SAUCE

One pint of milk.
Four tablespoons of sugar.
Yokes of four eggs beaten lightly.

Stir constantly until it begins to thicken but do not let boil. (If it boils it will curdle). Leave in icebox until thoroughly chilled.

MRS. RUTH REAGAN,
1256 Graham avenue, Monessen.
CREOLE CHICKEN

One medium-sized chicken.
Six tomatoes or one No. 2 can of tomatoes.
Two sweet red peppers, cut into cubes.
One-fourth pound ham or two or three slices of bacon chopped fine.
One bay leaf.
One tablespoon chopped parsley.
Two teaspoons salt.
One onion (size of egg).
Two tablespoons butter or bacon drippings.

Cut chicken as for stew, and sere by dropping one pint of boiling water. Let simmer for one half hour. Cook the chopped onion in butter or bacon drippings until light yellow. Simmer tomatoes for 15 minutes with the bay leaf. Strain and pour over the onions. Add minced ham and parsley and cook for 15 minutes longer. To this mixture add the chopped peppers and the chicken stock and bring to a boil. Put the chicken into the fireless cooker vessel and pour over it mixture of vegetables and let boil five minutes. With the hot soapstone base allow the chicken to remain in the cooker with the base for two hours, and without the base for an additional three hours.

A ham bone may be substituted for the ham or bacon. If this is done boil the bone one half hour in enough water to cover it, then add one cup of ham broth to the tomatoes before cooking with the bay leaf. This is an excellent way to prepare chicken which is too old to fry or roast.

Then add grated rind of one lemon and one level teaspoon salt and one cup sugar and cream. Add to this two or three eggs beaten until light; then add one pint lukewarm milk and the yeast. Add flour and continue beating until batter is thicker than cake dough, but not as thick as bread. Set in warm place and let rise over night. In the morning beat again, fill pans (10x6½x1¼, makes five cakes), one-half full, let rise until three-fourths full. Then cover with beaten egg and with mixture made of sugar, little flour and pieces of butter rubbed with finger tips and over all sprinkle generously ground cinnamon. THREE CHANGES ON 'Y' STAFF

Three personnel changes in the secretarial staff of the Pittsburgh Y. M. C. A. were announced today by S. E. Hening, general secretary.

R. L. Williams, for several years metropolitan program secretary, becomes first executive of the newly-created camping and council branch, which will co-ordinate and supervise all camping activities of the association.

Herbert R. Rogers, for four years executive of the Lawrenceville Community branch, becomes executive of the new South Hills branch, established February 1. This includes the area from Brentwood to Greentree, and includes the district formerly served by the Hill Top branch in Knoxville, now merged with the South Hills branch.

George Nichols, Jr., of the metropolitan staff, who has directed the Kon-O-Kwee camps near Zelienople for five years, succeeds Rogers as executive of the Lawrenceville branch.

COUNTY LOSES ON SPAN COSTS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The Public Service Commission today announced dismissal of the petition of Allegheny County for an allocation of the costs of building the Sixteenth Street Bridge in Pittsburgh.

The county sought to have Pittsburgh reimburse it for a portion of the construction costs.

In a report and order the commission said it has no power to allocate the costs.

Mortimer Lesher, special county solicitor, said today that about 12 years ago City Council and county officials entered into a verbal agreement under which the city would pay property damage costs involved in the construction of the bridge amounting to approximately $340,000. The damages were paid by the county after the city's refusal to pay, according to Lesher.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face — dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

Saves Big Dollars! No Cooking!

Millions of housewives have found that, by mixing their own cough medicine, they get a purer, more effective remedy. They use a recipe which costs only one-fourth as much as ready-made medicine, but which really has no equal for breaking up obstinate coughs.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. The syrup is easily made with 2 cups sugar and one cup water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and makes the most effective remedy that money could buy. Keeps perfectly, and children love its taste.

Its quick action in loosening the phlegm, clearing the air passages, and soothing away the inflammation, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

COUNTY WINNER IN LAND SUIT

A $13,000 damage suit against Allegheny County brought by John and Ida Fischmeier, of Ross Township, ended today in Common Pleas Court with a verdict for the county.

The damage, the Fischmeiers claimed, resulted to their property near Millvale when the county rebuilt Babcock boulevard several years ago. A barbecue stand owned by the Fischmeiers adjoining the old highway was 200 feet from the new boulevard.

WAR HANGS ON POWERS' AUSTRIAN STAND

On the Austrian side the soldiers smile. On the German side they scowl. Nevertheless, Chancellor Dollfuss who today is commander of Austria, was once commander of a machine gun company in the war. It was in a part of the Tyrolean Alps near Bozen. The monstrous rock formations he defended were immortalized by Dante. In the "Divine Comedy" the Gates of Hell are an exact description of the valley Dollfuss fought in. Dante had visited the valley in his youth.

It is on the west side of the Zugna-Toria. In the midst of its blocks of rocks, big as houses, Dollfuss fashioned a fortress. The young lieutenant, smallest man in the Austrian army, had only a handful of men to defend it. The enemy wanted it badly. From the beginning of 1917 to October, for 10 months they launched overwhelming forces against the Dollfuss fort. They never took it. The army named the rocks "Dollfuss Rocks."

Today 45 out of 50 persons in Vienna declare that Dollfuss "can't hold out." Most of them say he is "bound to fall in the spring." And of the 50 persons questioned nearly all were persons sympathetic to Dollfuss. They would prefer to see him stay, but they do not believe it possible.

ASSETS COUNTED

They count his assets. First, his nerve. Second, his unlimited dictatorial power. His position is quite different from that of Bruening's in Germany before Hitler came to power. Germany had a Hindenburg for president, who forced Bruening to resign. There is nobody in Austria who can make Dollfuss resign. President Miklas, if he tried it, would simply be ignored. In this sense Dollfuss can stay just as long as his nerve holds out.

Third asset is his armed power: 22,000 regular army, 8,000 military auxiliary corps, 8,000 police, 6,000 gendarmerie, 5,000 auxiliary police, 30,000 heimwehr, making around 80,000. These figures seem large, but were supplied by a Dollfuss official.

Fourth asset is the Catholic church, which supports Dollfuss as fervently as he is himself a fervent Catholic.

Fifth asset is the fact that the economic condition of Austria has begun to improve.

Final asset is the sympathy and support of Italy, France, England and the Little Entente.

HITLER CHIEF MENACE

These are his assets. His debits, are headed today by the newest: the fact that Hitler, having signed a non-aggression pact with Poland, has protected his back and today has his hands free to concentrate his principal attention on acquiring Austria.

Second, according even to the friendly critics of Dollfuss, it is obvious that his government is merely negative, only anti-Nazi. True, the Dollfuss party say "no, we are pro-Austrian," but the fact is that the Nazis keep Dollfuss permanently on the defensive.

Third debit is that a probable majority of the population, including virtually the entire youth, is against him. In the opposition are even the social Democrats who proved unable to learn from the experience of their comrades the diference between a Nazi concentration camp and a Dollfuss detention camp.

Fourth debit, according to his critics: The armed forces are not all loyal. The Heimwehr, the backbone of his civilian military, lacks the fire and spirit of the Nazi youth.

The Catholic church failed to prevent Bavaria from going Nazi. And as far as economic improvement goes, Germany also is improving economically.

Finally, however, the Austrian problem boils down to the attitude of the great powers. Just how much of their support is "sympathy" and how much is support?

MUSSOLINI'S DILEMMA

Mussolini, according to all accounts, has promised Dollfuss that if German Nazi troops, or Austrian Nazi troops now in Germany, come over the border to overthrow his government, Italian troops will march in and "throw the Germans out." If Mussolini did that, the Jugoslavs would march into Carinthia, because they would believe that the Italians, coveting Dalmatia, had only seized a pretext to descend upon them via Austria, the only feasible military route from Italy to Jugoslavia.

With Italian and Jugoslav troops facing each other on foreign soil, the outcome could be a disaster of the first magnitude. General European war could easily follow. Again, if Mussolini did march, almost inevitably the first result would be to turn all Austria Nazi, thus defeating his aim. Finally, would the Italians get out if they ever occupied the Tyrol? If they did, the Nazis would come right back. If they did not, then Italy would have Germany for a neighbor, which is precisely the position she is trying to avoid.

The consensus is that Mussolini would only march if Germany openly and flagrantly invaded Austria. Sound judges also believe that he certainly would not march if the Austrian Nazis of themselves overthrew Dollfuss.

FRANCE TOO BUSY

From France no material support has been received and none is expected. She is too busy quelling her own domestic political revolts to realize that here is being settled a portion of her destiny. England is too pacifistic for Austria to hope for genuine assistance from her. The Sunday Times writes:

"This is an Austrian problem which must be solved by the Austrian people."

Czechoslovakia is too weak to be of much use. Rumania is too far away to be interested. Jugoslavia, a member of the Little Entente and thus committed to fighting the Anschluss, would secretly be glad to see Germany get Austria because it would cow Italy.

Mussolini's threat remains about the only real support Austria has received, or can expect. But this threat has not prevented an estimated total of at least ten million dollars coming over the border for the support of the still active 30,000 professional Nazis in Austria; nor has it kept out tons of literature, stink bombs, kites, placards, stickers and other spiritual weapons.

The sympathy of the great powers has been expressed in diplomatic protests to Germany against these aggressions. Germany has been, and, by all signs, will continue to be utterly unmoved by such protests. Hitler feels that this is a family affair between the sister states, and nobody else's business.

INVASION UNLIKELY

Germany today certainly does not contemplate open invasion of Austria. On the contrary it is the German feeling, shared by many neutral observers in Austria, that if Austria goes Nazi, it will do so from within. Some Austrian Papen will succeed an exhausted Dollfuss, and perhaps after a succession of governments, the door will be opened to the Nazis by the calling of an election. The mere fact that elections were called would be a Nazi victory. Then so many robust citizens would be eager to get on the band wagon that all would be over save the singing of the Horst Wessel Lied.

Thereafter Austria need not for a long time proclaim its legal union with Germany. De facto, Hitler would be the Chancellor of Austria, as his partisans here have already declared him.

What nation could make war then? To an outsider it appears that the threat of war here has been useful perhaps against the Nazis, but that it will only remain a threat. Who could even protest in case the Nazis came in by this method?

Only perhaps the Jews. There are 220,000 Jews listed by religion in Austria, and probably 400,000 by race. Most of them are in Vienna. They suffer today the agonies of anticipated pogroms. Their only hope is that Nazi Austria might be like Nazi Danzig—a part of the Third Reich, but minus the excesses of the parent revolution in Germany. Vienna's Jews hope this, but they do not believe it.

Congress Watches Knickerbocker War Articles

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—(INS)—Members of Congress are following closely the series of analytical articles, "Will War Come?" by H. R. Knickerbocker, International News Service staff correspondent. Representative Hamilton Fish (Rep.), of New York, said:

"Mr. Knickerbocker is one of the best and fairest reporters now writing on interantional affairs.

"He made a splendid study of the Russian situation a few years ago, and he is now doing the same thing with relation to Germany and the countries of Central Europe. His articles are fair and very worth while reading."

Bad Breath Needs Medicine Doctors Say

Don't fool yourself into believing that you are secure simply because a rinse or gargle with a mouthwash leaves your mouth tingling with a clean, pleasant taste.

To get rid of bad breath and taste you must get at the root of the trouble. That's in your stomach if you're an average person. Excess acids ferment foods, form abnoxious gases that rise up into the mouth and cause embarrassment.

So naturally the easiest, surest way to get relief is to get at the root of the trouble. Doctors advise a teaspoonful of BiSoDoL in water morning and night.

This pleasant-tasting blend of six valuable digestive remedies works wonders. It swiftly neutralizes excess acids, soothes and heals the inflamed mucous membranes. And keeps your stomach so settled and sweet that you are sure of waking up in the morning with a clean, pleasant taste and certain of having a sweet, inconspicuous breath all day!

Don't forget that your breath is only as sweet as your stomach and nothing can keep the stomach any sweeter than BiSoDoL. Try it. Also when you have indigestion, gas, heartburn or any other distressing acid trouble take BiSoDoL. It's the improved, quicker-acting way to get rid of pain and discomfort that doctors have used for many years with remarkable success. All druggists sell it for only 25c a package.

REVOLTERS LAY DOWN ARMS IN VIENNA

surrounded with his men in Steyr.

Government troops were dispatched from Vienna in an attempt to cut through machine gun nests which ringed him.

The Viennese sector of the civil war was definitely in the hands of the government after the Goethe Hof, a giant Socialist apartment building, surrendered to superior forces.

GARRISON OF WOMEN

Government troops, which had shelled the building with artillery when a wicked machine gun fire drove off their repeated attacks, marched in to find the Goethe Hof garrison was only women and children.

All through the Socialist section marched the "mopping up" squads of government troops. Wearing steel helmets and with bayonets fixed they operated systematically, moving slowly through the section like the pieces on a chess board, cleaning up desultory opposition square by square.

The majority of the men who previously had fought from the windows of the Goethe Hof, retreated across the ice of surrounding canals and fled to the countryside where, it was assumed, they sought to join their more successful brothers-in-arms.

An airplane flew low over Vienna today creating excitement, but handbills rather than explosives were thrown from it into the city.

International Army Urged to Aid Austria

PARIS, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—Formation of an international army, directed by the League of Nations, to guarantee Austria's independence will be discussed here tomorrow by representatives of the French, British and Czechoslovakian governments, with Italy being kept informed of the developments.

The suggestion was made in government circles today that it probably would not be necessary actually to send armed forces across the Austrian frontier but that the placing of Italian, Czechoslovakian and Jugoslavian detachments near the border and subject to Chancellor Dollfuss' call would have a salutary effect upon Nazi elements eager to convert Austria into a German province.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 15.—(INS.)—Czechoslovakian border guards along the Ausian frontier were heavily reinforced today.

The cabinet, which met expressly to discuss the Austrian crisis, was understood to have decided on a course of strict neutrality.

U. S. Envoy Hastens Back to Austria

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—"Sick at heart" over the civil strife gripping Austria, George H. Earle III, United States Minister to the Dollfuss government, sailed on the liner Washington today after cutting short his furlough to return to Vienna and his family.

The American diplomat's face was unsmiling and his demeanor stern as he came abroad the Washington just before sailing time.

Aboard also was William C. Bullitt, United States Ambassador to Russia, whose cheery greeting to his fellow-diplomat on the forward deck of the ship received only a grave response.

Bullitt, as he observed the photographers and news reel men taking pictures of Earle, said:

"George, you are very handsome."

The Austrian Minister smiled absently. Of the Austrian fighting he said:

"I'm absolutely sick at heart? that these two partiest — he Facist and Socialist — which have so much in common, should get into this terrible situation.

"That this wonderful little nation, fighting so hard for its independence, should have so much bloodshed is heartbreaking and sickening to me."

Europe Is Serving Same Old Dishes; War Now Ala Carte

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Wars are getting bigger and better.

Trouble always starts in big towns. That's because it's so easy to call on your neighbors.

Europe looks like the same old dish. With a little more parsley on the side. The last time it was table d'hote. This time it will be ala carte.

We hope we won't get into this thing. But we are so artistic we will go any place they have a statue of Lafayette.

PARMELEE CAB SYSTEM HIT AT TAXI QUIZ

The Zone Cab Corporation of Cleveland, seeking permission to enter Pittsburgh with a fleet of low-fare taxicabs, today sought to show labor troubles of the Parmelee system here had caused many persons to refuse to ride in the Yellow and Green cabs.

At the continued hearing before Public Service Commissioner Herman Goldberg, Paul L. Houston, president of the Pittsburgh Transportation Company and the Yellow Cab Company, subsidiaries of Parmelee, was asked by Attorney Fred W. Zimmerman, for the Zone corporation:

"Isn't it true that between 300,000 and 400,000 people won't use Yellow cabs due to the labor history of your company?"

OBJECTION VETOED

Attorney C. K. Robinson, for the Parmelee company, shouted an objection. He was overruled. Houston replied he had no knowledge of persons refusing to use his cabs.

Zimmerman told the commissioner it was his intention to bring in witnesses to testify they would not use the Parmelee cabs.

On examination Houston testified that his company formerly had 180 call boxes, but that at present there were only 85 stands with phones and seven without phones.

HEATED DEBATE

Robinson and Zimmerman engaged in a heated debate over charges by both sides that taxi drivers here and in Cleveland were on the welfare because they couldn't earn a living.

The only new equipment bought by his company in three years were five new lightweight cabs yesterday and today, Houston said.

Robinson asked that Arthur McBride, president of Zone Cab, be requested to appear at the hearing. McBride was brought into the testimony yesterday when Robinson attempted to show through Daniel Sherby, secretary-treasurer of Zone Cab, that McBride became owner of 50 per cent of the stock on the same date a Cleveland taxi strike was settled.

M'GINNIS QUITS CIVIL SERVICE

The resignation of Attorney B. B. McGinnis from the Civil Service Commission at the request of Mayor McNair has brought the announcement of a new code for the city law department.

City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully stated that assistant city solicitors must not appear in suits against the city.

Mayor McNair's proposed rejection of about 800 persons who passed civil service examinations for city jobs, meanwhile, won the support of his budget advisor, Mrs. R. Templeton Smith. McNair, Mrs. Smith, Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith, and Mrs. J. O. Miller met today to discuss McGinnis' successor.

The Mayor proposed rejection of the applicants on the ground that there were irregularities in conducting the test.

McGinnis is attorney of record for Neils Bork in a personal injury case filed against the city in 1931 which is soon to come to trial.

The Mayor yesterday suggested to McGinnis that it did not seem proper for a city official to appear in a case against the city. McGinnis said he would not try the case personally, but as this did not satisfy the Mayor's objection, he resigned verbally and will follow it with a confirming letter today.

M'NAIR TO GET TAX HEARING

Following an opinion by the city law department, Mayor McNair will have the opportunity to air his views on a new ground rent bill before Council next Monday.

The bill was presented by Councilman John J. Kane, with the statement that he was acting at the request of the Mayor. Kane said the Mayor differed with the law department's definition of ground rent and thought the proposition had not been fairly considered.

In an opinion of a previous proposal, City Solicitor C. D. Scully said that only ground rents in the legal sense could be taxed. The new bill, however, comprehends more than the legal ground rent, additions to which have been discontinued by statute.

Plan Commission Appointees Approved

The Public Works Committee of Council has affirmed the appointments of Henry Brockman and Frank Vittor as members of the City Planning Commission.

REGISTER HERE ON MARCH 29

Citizens of Pittsburgh will see the wheels of the new permanent registration system at work for the first time March 29.

This was the first of four registration dates announced today by the recently named Board of Registration Commissioners consisting of Jacob Frank, Republican and Thomas Joyce, Democrat.

The other dates are April 21, May 2 and October 4.

On any of these days qualified residents may register without bothering with tax receipts, the bane of registration days heretofore. They will need to take oath as to name and residence and, if naturalized, will have to produce naturalization papers or certified copies of them.

Under provisions of the Harris Act, signed by Gov. Pinchot January 18, no one need ever register again unless he fails to vote for a period of two years.

TAX EXEMPTION LEGAL ISSUE

If George E. Evans can convince the City Law Department that tax exemption for new homes costing $6,000 or less is legal, Council will give him a hearing.

That was the opinion of Council yesterday when Evans brought up the plan, espoused by himself and Mayor McNair. Council had previously declared it illegal, but Evans said he had advice to the contrary.

Evans said the plan had been applied elsewhere in Pennsylvania and that in any event it could be justified as an emergency measure. Assistant City Solicitor Thomas M. Benner said in his opinion it could not be applied in Pittsburgh.

M'NAIR SHUNS VETO, METER TAX SURE

Mayor McNair today announced that he will not veto the bill passed by Council calling for a $2 tax on utility meters. The Mayor said:

"Of course, I might change my mind. I don't see what good it will do. Councilmen tell me they have seven votes and will pass it over my veto."

The Mayor, however, will not sign the bill. The bill will thus automatically become a law Saturday.

McNair explained that he had intended to veto the bill, but such action would have required a message to Council stating his objections. The veto message, he said, would furnish utility attorneys with briefs when the utilities fought the ordinance in court.

LEASE ON EXPO SITE APPROVED

A 50-year lease for the Greater Pittsburgh Exposition Society on the exposition site at the Point has been given an affirmative recommendation in Finance Committee of City Council.

The society proposes to construct a $5,500,000 auditorium and exhibition building. It is planned to ask a loan from the federal Public Works Administration based on long-term leases for exhibit space which the society will seek to sell to Pittsburgh industries.

The project was presented to PWA engineers in Washington last week shortly before the deadline on new projects was announced by Public Works Director Harold L. Ickes.

The building would contain an auditorium seating 14,000 persons, available for conventions and sporting events. Under the proposed lease, the city would receive 3 per cent of the annual gross revenue with a minimum guarantee of $22,560 a year, the amount which the city now receives from tenants in the old building.

Jobless Man Ends Life With Bullet

Andrew Weimer, 60, of 604 Griffin street, Mt. Washington, ended his life by firing a bullet into his right temple in the cellar of his home last night, according to a coroner's report. Weimer, an unemployed carpenter, was in ill health, the report said.

Attorney Cummins Dies at Edgewood

The death of Robert Wallace Cummins, 79, senior counsel for the South Penn Oil Company and veteran member of the Allegheny County Bar, was announced today in Common Pleas Court. He died last night at his home in Edgewood.

Demmler Fears Chaos for City Trolley System

The five-cent trolley fare is presented as the panacea for transportation ills in a speech prepared by Councilman Walter R. Demmler in supporting his lower fare resolution of earlier in the week.

The resolution asked lower fares and better service, with the provision that if these are not forthcoming the city should refuse to extend the traction conference agreement.

In his speech, passed to Council members yesterday, Demmler declared:

"The city must reach final conclusion before May 1; otherwise we may find ourselves in street car chaos."

Demmler suggested that instead of trying to unravel the exact meaning of the railways contract, the duty of the city in the matter of fares lay in seeing that the public was served.

Drawn along the general lines of a report prepared by a committee on transportation headed by Attorney Andrew G. Smith, Demmler's speech attacked street car service as inadequate, especially at rush hours.

He stated a belief that restoration of the charter with its proposed 5-cent fare would place legitimate corporation solvency beyond question.

Wesoky to Run For Legislature

J. M. Wesoky, the young man who studied single tax at the suggestion of Mayor William N. McNair so that he could qualify for the non-existent job of advertising manager for the city of Pittsburgh, announced today that he's going to run for public office —the Legislature.

Wesoky lives in the Second District, which has two seats in the Legislature. They are held by P. J. Maloney and William Gallagher.

FIX THAT COLD AND FIX IT RIGHT!
Don't Let It Take Root and Grow!

A cold neglected may be a cold regretted! Don't expose yourself to serious complications. Adopt a sensible treatment of colds. Remember, a cold is an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment. Remember, too, a preparation good for half a dozen things besides colds can't be equally effective for colds. A cold calls for a COLD remedy!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct. It is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary.

First, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. Anything less than that is taking chances.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good druggists won't try to talk you into a substitute for the sake of a few pennies extra profit.

When you feel a cold coming on, don't wait or delay or bother with makeshift methods, but go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet.

Dialers Pan Audiences In Studios

By AIRCASTER

This is the way six out of eight average radio listeners in the Pittsburgh area feel about the presence of audiences inside the radio studios:

"Like a child sent to bed during a party of grownups."

"Like being cheated, or slighted, as performers play up to those who can see, as well as hear what's going on."

"As if the man at home didn't matter at all, as long as the jolly folks on the inside 'got' all the funny lines, and promptly drowned them out for outsiders, by laughter and applause."

"If there was a station that banned inside audiences, it would gain exclusive patronage of the army of resentful fans."

GILFEATHER

My enterprising assistant, Jimmy Gilfeather, set himself last night to dialing 112 telephone subscribers, in scattered sections of Greater Pittsburgh.

Only 60 of them had radios turned on. Of these, eight said they didn't care whether anybody is present in the radio studios, including comedians.

The other 52 were practically unanimous in their resentment of studio assemblages.

Not one of them objected to applause on the inside for music, but they figured comedy programs, with audiences present, were making more enemies with each performance.

* * *

FREE SHOWS

One particular gent, who may be a prophet, insisted that it wouldn't be long before the NRA code would be invoked by the theatrical interests to ban such audiences as unfair to the theater.

He himself, had witnessed a continuance of a radio show for the studio gathering, a full hour after the broadcast was over—and at this show, an entire orchestra of union musicians played—for nothing.

Roger Wolf Kahn will shortly emerge at WEAF, with a new commercial program and a new idea.

Globe-Trotting

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Mrs. H. W. Davis, Pittsburgh, is heartily co-operating in our campaign to make homes safer for children.

She doesn't want to read about babies being scalded and advises every mother to make sure while she is cooking that the handles of the pots and pans are turned toward the wall and not extending over the edge of the stove where baby hands might grab them or where they may be accidentally brushed against and upset while passing the stove.

She also points out that it is not necessary to set a pail of scalding water on the floor. Water that hot can't be used for household purposes anyway.

* * *

She heard the interview with Susan B. Rhodes, president of the State Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

She also bawled me out for asking questions of Miss Rhodes that gave evidence that my opinion was that men are the rulers of the earth.

Dear "Listener," those were the questions Miss Rhodes wanted me to ask. I personally know that women have all the brains.

(Phew! That straightens me out with the women. Now what am I going to do to square myself with the men?

* * *

Thirty-six years ago the Battleship Maine was blown up in Havana Harbor taking the lives of 260 American seamen.

Although I haven't been able to find any survivors in Pittsburgh I have found out that one Globe Trotter, Walter Wynn, Hastings street, was in Havana, in service, at the time, and engaged in rescue work.

Mrs. Anna Hammer, Pittsburgh—Our Art Editor says that for the present he isn't taking any "Remember When" pictures. He's got more than he can use for some time.

There is little excuse, these days, for "regular" pain—or even being uncomfortable at this time. Every girl who hasn't learned how she can keep her dates, and keep comfortable, should read this:

Watch the calendar. Just before your time, take a Midol tablet and drink a glass of water, and you may escape the expected pain entirely. If not, a second tablet should relieve it in seven to ten minutes. That is how rapidly this remedy works!

Midol relieves even those who have always had a difficult time. Relief is such that two tablets should see you through the worst day. Yet they contain no narcotic, nothing injurious. They're as harmless as the aspirin you take for an ordinary headache. But don't be fooled by ordinary pain tablets offered as a specific for such suffering! Midol is a special medicine, for this special purpose. Your druggist has it on the counter—or just ask for Midol.

The proper dosage is one-fifth glass Pluto in four-fifths glass hot water. It is gentle, effective and practically tasteless.

PLUTO WATER

America's Laxative Mineral Water

FROM FRENCH LICK SPRINGS, INDIANA—AMERICA'S GREATEST SPA

Physicians Recommend Non-Irritating Flush

Do you know that most medicine-laxatives work by irritating the delicate membranes of the digestive tract?

Physicians warn against this unnatural method. First—because the intestinal muscles become sluggish, lazy. Second—because when taken regularly the drug soon loses its effect, compels you to take more and more.

Nature's Way—a Flush
(The Water Way)

Nature's way is far more simple. It is merely to flush out the wastes and poisons—without impairing the intestinal muscles in the least.

That's why more than 50,000 physicians recommend Pluto Water. For Pluto is not a drug or medicine-laxative but a saline mineral water. The same amount each time—no need to increase it—always performs, does not gripe, gives positive action in less than one hour. And it cannot give you the laxative habit!

Pluto Water is gentle—but speedy. That's because the proper dilution—one-fifth glass Pluto in four-fifths glass hot water—promptly opens the pylorus valve... permits the flush to enter the intestines and complete its work without anxious hours of waiting.

Pluto Water Ends Asthenia

If you feel achy, listless, only half-alive, that is nature's warning of Asthenia—a condition usually caused by the poisons of constipation. Pluto's famous ten-day treatment ends it promptly—makes you feel like a different person.

Get a bottle today from your nearest druggist. Two sizes: Splits (8 ounces)—large bottles (3 times the quantity).

+ ON BROADWAY +

If I had Aladdin's Lamp.

Husbands wouldn't forget that they once were lovers; on balmy nights the clouds would have to stay away from the moon; I'd put more benches in every lovers' lane—and I would make every orchestra play "Kiss Me Again" at least twice a night.

I'd fix matters so that the President never even caught a cold.

I would assemble all the crooked booking agents, who deal in white flesh, and then I would hand out a thousand baseball bats to a thousand Johnny Brodericks—and let them hit homers!

On Christmas I would present everybody with a new set of 32 perfect teeth.

I would convince the Japanese that a million dead Russians would not bring three million Japs back to life. (Ask the Kaiser!)

And professional labor agitators would have to go to work!

What a thrill it would be to make every phoney stock promoter eat his own stock—but without coffee!

Every female who had a passable pair of pretties would never be without sheer hose (whether or not she could afford the best, too), and the gels who have parentheses for legs instead of exclamation points would wear long skirts, and still be in vogue, poor things.

There'd be a Gary Cooper or a Clark Gable for every girl who has always been a bridesmaid—and never a bride.

I wouldn't forget Broadway, either—and all the side shows on it would be sent back to Coney Island where they belong.

I'd make every woman as beautiful as she thinks she is.

I would arrange things so that the last ten minutes in bed (on these cold mornings) would seem like ten hours.

And as Shaw argued—Youth wouldn't be wasted on the young.

I would restrict the nudist colonies to people whose physiques look good in profile. Those with tummage would be banned.

Other people's kids who told mine that there was no stork or Santa—would have to eat spinach for breakfast for a year.

Love would always be new—and each kiss an inspiration.

I'd straighten out a billion crippled limbs; nobody would be blind (and have racketeers in City Hall charge them high fees for newsstand locations)—There would be no "Forgotten Men," and little children wouldn't die while they were little children.

Among other saints who would never be allowed to die would be Mme. Curie, who carries on her illustrious husband's radium research work—Dr. Banting, who gave us insulin and Dr. Roentgen—the X-ray.

Oh, yes! And Charles Chaplin would be among those so privileged—because the world needs a laugh.

But only on the condition that Charlie promised that he'd make a flicker every three months instead of every three years.

Nobody would ever have a toothache or an earache.

I would thrill the world by apprehending the Lindbergh baby kidnapers.

I'd fix it so that a feller wouldn't be ashamed of an honest emotion, such as kissing his mother—even when people were lookin'.

Contributors to columnists would always be clever.

If a child at school just couldn't pass an arithmetic exam—that would be the end of it, instead of making him ill from worry and fear. And no school would teach Latin—unless the pupil wanted to be a doctor, who uses it for prescriptions that can't be read, anyhow.

Rockefeller would have my digestion and I'd have his money.

Beautiful women wouldn't be somebody's girl or wife. Beautiful women wouldn't have to be wooed. They'd woo you! (I mean me!)

And when a so-called sportsman shoots at a deer—I'd fix it so that the deer could shoot straight back.

There would be more butterflies and fewer mosquitoes—more orchids and fewer scallions—more Bronx Cocktails and fewer Bronx Cheers—more nightingales and fewer nightmares and more "breaks" than heartbreaks.

People would never cry—except for joy.

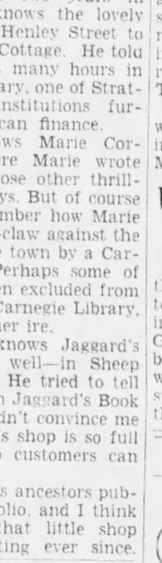
Keeping Alibi Clock Going One Important Task Of Stage Manager

By GEORGE SEIBEL

About the most important person in the company that is playing "Ten Minute Alibi" at the Nixon Theater this week is the stage manager, who is invisible. If he took his finger off the mechanism that runs the clock, the play would come to a disastrous finish. Everything depends upon that clock. If the clock were to run fast or slow, or stop entirely, Bramwell Fletcher, the genial murderer in this mystery melodrama, might be dragged off to the Bow Street Police Station and executed for his highly commendable crime. But the clock does not stop—it keeps going—it is always on time—the stage manager sees to that.



Mr. Seibel

It would be a pity to have Bramwell Fletcher executed. Not only because he's the champion of imperiled innocence, in the person of Daphne Warren Wilson, but he is a very likeable person himself as well as a good actor. I've never seen a scene in melodrama done more perfectly than the murder he commits in the second act. Although he dreamed the murder in the first act, by way of rehearsal, he is so flustered and awkward when it comes to the actual homicide, that several times during this week an audible voice from the parquet told him he was forgetting his hat.

Perhaps Mr. Fletcher does not know it, but such voices are a high tribute to the naturalness of his acting.

Why shouldn't he act natural? He started his theatrical career at Stratford-on-Avon, where the world's first playwright was born, who was also a very respectable actor.

KNOWS HIS STRATFORD

Fletcher spent two years in Stratford, and knows the lovely little town from Henley Street to Ann Hathaway's Cottage. He told me he has spent many hours in the Carnegie Library, one of Stratford's various institutions furnished by American finance.

He also knows Marie Corelli's house, where Marie wrote "Thelma" and those other thrillers of by-gone days. But of course he does not remember how Marie fought tooth-and-claw against the desecration of the town by a Carnegie Library. Perhaps some of her books had been excluded from the shelves of a Carnegie Library, and that roused her ire.

Fletcher also knows Jaggard's Book Shop very well—in Sheep Street, I believe. He tried to tell me he had been in Jaggard's Book Shop, but he couldn't convince me of that. Jaggard's shop is so full of books that no customers can get in.

One of Jaggard's ancestors published the First Folio, and I think those books in that little shop have been collecting ever since. You have to crawl over the piles to get in.

Jaggard, who looks as if he remembered Shakespeare very well, and might have played shuffleboard with him in the Falcon Hotel, has compiled a bibliography of Shakespeare which is as fat as two unabridged dictionaries.

ABOUT THIS AUTHOR

Bramwell Fletcher tells me "Ten Minute Alibi" is Anthony Armstrong's first play. Armstrong is quite a young man, but reveals an uncanny melodramatic instinct. Either he is a born dramatist or a born criminal.

But maybe he worked in a clock-shop when he was a boy. That might account for his appreciation of the value of time.

There are a number of things about this thrilling play that invest it with glamor. Daphne Warren Wilson is the only female character and does a very difficult piece of work making the audience believe she could love the villain. She has been in Pittsburgh once before, in that charming comedy of Drinkwater's, "Bird in Hand," so she is no newcomer. She left England at the age of 13, and so is practically American by now.

It is delightful to hear these actors of English origin speak in the accents of the cultured Briton. But it is dreadfully infectious. The other night, when Mr. Fletcher and Miss Wilson were on the air, Allan Trench, who officiated as announcer, signed off with a very good echo of our Bow-Bells speech. Of course, Allan has a right to do that, having been born in Kent himself—but he should remember what happened to Thomas a Becket.

That was a famous murder, too, which Alfred Tennyson turned into a drama, without any Ten Minute Alibi.

Fun, Tunes

'Mazeppa' to Be Sung In Mosque Tonight

In Syria Mosque tonight Tschaikowsky's opera, "Mazeppa," will be sung for the first time in Pittsburgh, under the auspices of the Ukrainian Art Theater, Dimitri Chutro, director. In the cast are Lola Monti-Gorsey, soprano; Elena Bussinger, mezzo-soprano; Nicolai Karlash and M. Dubinsky, baritones; Dimitri Criona and M. Didovitch, tenors, and Mihail Shvetz, bass. The orchestra will be under the direction of Paul Ouglitzky.

Writer, Pirate Heads To Be Legion Guests

Lawrenceville Post No. 531, of the American Legion, will meet tonight at the Boys' Club Building, Forty-fifth and Butler streets. Guests will be Chilly Doyle, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph baseball writer, President William Benswanger and Honus Wagner, of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Mrs. Sarah C. Pettit, whose new full length drama, "The Guest," will be given its first public performance by the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Players Tuesday evening, February 27, has long been an inspiration and active worker in the local dramatic field, especially in Little Theater endeavors. Twenty-three long and short plays from her pen indicate that she has been a prolific creator. Yet she also has found time to act as director and producer of plays from manuscript staged in her home for invited guests and fellow members of the Drama League. She frequently has acted as one of the judges of the annual one-act play contests conducted under the auspices of that organization, hence her views about the theater have angles from both sides of the footlights. It is whispered that, in "The Guest," Mrs. Petitt delves into those things hinted by Hamlet when he said there are "more things in heaven and earth, Horatio than are dreamt of in your philosophy," and that she has brought them within the scope of understanding. Louis Isaacs is directing the players, who, this season, are concentrating largely on original manuscripts for their productions.

* * *

The Y Playhouse, 315 Bellefield avenue, Mayflower 6500, invites participation in its activities of mature persons interested either in acting or directing, and has prepared a special program of instruction for those concerned about these branches of dramatic work.

* * *

Program changes in theaters today include "Devil Tiger," wild animal film with a dramatic continuity, in the Fulton. The Harris Family will present Eddie Cantor in a musical comedy, "Roman Scandals."

* * *

"Children of the Moon," play by Martin Flavin, based on heredity, told in terms of romance, will be given by the Pitt Players, student organization of the University of Pittsburgh, in the Hotel Schenley Theater tonight.

* * *

The next (fifth) production of the Golden Triangle Players for Children will be "Ali Baba," by Beatrice Lewis, in the Twentieth Century Club, Saturday morning, February 24. Ted Mason, Vincent Masselli, Raymond Neyhart, Frances Heckert and Eugenie Miller are additions to the cast.

College for the Week End

(PART ONE)

WHEN I reached home one night last week, my wife smiled at me. I looked at her suspiciously.

"You're smiling," I said. "What have you bought now?"

"Nothing," she replied. "But I have some good news for you. I just had a long talk with your brother on the phone. We're going up to Cornell for the week-end. The junior prom takes place on Friday night."

Now it just so happens that I have never been particularly enthusiastic in a collegiate direction. I do like Columbia University because the authorities permitted me to remain there almost four months before tossing me out. That was four months longer than any other college would have me.

Accordingly, I am not very familiar with college life. I don't know a Signa Delta Pi from an Epsilon Alpha Upsilon. Furthermore, I never learned to play a ukelele or a mandolin—and gin doesn't agree with me. So you can readily see that college years were never meant for me.

No, the honors of the family in that direction must all go to my younger brother who is about to graduate from Cornell. To my regret, I do not see him very often. But I do hear about him frequently.

As I understand it, the young man is the columnist on the Cornell Daily Sun. In addition, he writes pieces for other college papers and contributes a one-act play to the dramatic society every now and then. He is very active in fraternity life and he enacts a role in any play in which a heavy villain is needed. He slings a nasty hoof on a dance floor, is able to drive a car with but two fingers on a wheel and will travel to Michigan or Pennsylvania if there is a football game to be seen.

I never hear much about his studies. I guess he works at those in the mornings while he brushes his teeth . . .

Where was I? Oh, yes. The wife had just told me that we were going up to Cornell.

"Nothing doing, baby," I replied. The "nothing doing" was for my opinion. The "baby" was for my protection. "I've got too much work to do these days and——"

My voice trailed off because I was practically talking to myself.

"Let's see," my wife was saying, "you'll take along the blue suit and the brown. I'll call the tailor in the morning and have him let out your tuxedo trousers a little more. If you get much stouter, you'll be able to wear those tuxedo pants as arm bands."

At this point, I was slowly but surely choking to death.

"Listen," I gave out vaguely. "I don't want to go to any Cornell. I don't know what a Junior Prom is and, even if I did, I wouldn't like it. The place is away up in Ithaca, New York, and I'll freeze up there.

"I'm not as young as I used to be. The orchestras will probably be none too hot. I've got corns and I hate to dance. How do I know I can get good brandy up there? Maybe there'll be a railroad wreck on the way up. You really don't want to go, do you?"

The little woman—who invented that phrase?—tossed me an icy glance.

"I want to go,' she asserted, "to the Junior Prom at Cornell. Any further argument from you and I will remind you of the fact that I am still waiting for the Christmas present you promised me almost——"

I gathered her in my arms.

"Baby, darling," I cooed, "hush yo' pretty mouth. Didn't you know that I wanted to go all the time? I just wanted to find out if you really wanted to make the trip."

The train ride from New York to Ithaca was uneventful. Our train was only one hour and a half late, which made everything practically perfect. Eventually, however, we arrived at the Ithaca railroad station, which is a cross between a Bowery flophouse and the lion's cage in the Singapore Zoo.

Cold? I want to tell you, my six readers, that I was never so cold before—and never expect to be again. There was a stove in that railroad station and I half expected Admiral Byrd to leap out and greet me.

But I didn't get the Byrd. Instead my brother came forward and mitted me warmly.

"Glad to see you, buddy," he cried as he kissed my wife, which wasn't at all necesary. "Welcome to Cornell. Boy, are you going to have a swell time! We have at least eight bands up here, and they're all great. Is your leg well enough for you to dance yet? It isn't, eh? Well, ha, ha, ha. That's one on you!

"What's the matter? You're cold? Don't be silly. It's only 20 below zero. You should have been here last night. It was 36 below then. It was so cold last night that some of the fellows had to wear coats and hats.

"Everything's arranged for you," he went on as he kissed my wife again. "I hired a car for you and it's very cheap for Junior week, too. Only 25 bucks a day. And I've got the best room in Ithaca Hotel for you, too. You can go right up there and rest."

"Yeah?" I returned. "And what are you gonna do?"

"Oh, I'm taking your wife right over to meet some of the boys on the football team. They heard Gladys Glad was coming up here, and they're all anxious to meet her. You don't mind, do you?"

Fine business! I was so burned up by this time that I forgot the temperature.

Split of Laurel and Hardy Appears Imminent

By LLOYD PANTAGES

THUNDER OVER HOLLYWOOD AND I COULDN'T BE SADDER. It looks VERY MUCH as if the comedy-team of STAN LAUREL and OLIVER (BABE) HARDY will be dissolved because of the dropping out of MR. LAUREL. His ALIMONY to his EX-LITTLE WOMAN is so steep that he has decided to give it all up and return to ENGLAND where he has personal appearance offers.

* * *

KITTY O'DARE, the rich little EX-SHOWGIRL, who is in Hollywood doing SNAKE HIPS in one of our more unrefined NIGHT CLUBS, threw a little cocktail party in honor of her BLUE BLOOD BROTHER-IN-LAW (Mr. Gillette, the razor blade king), her step-father (late of Uncle Sam's Marines). ALL very social, if you get what I mean.

MORE notes on the "QUEEN CHRISTINA" opening. MARION DAVIES' tribute to GARBO was the loan of her own special studio orchestra (a lovely string quartet) which played in the fore-court. TED HEALY smuggled his gal friend, BONNIE, in the SIDE DOOR on a'count of she looks SO MUCH like the DEVOONE NORDIC he was afraid they'd get mobbed while making an entry.

The M-G-EMMERS are making overtures to NOEL COWARD to come out and see them sometime, and VERY QUICK, to be whipping up a scenario. WEZEL SEE . . . IRVING THALBERG has been closeted in the projection room with tests of EVELYN LAYE, and it looks very much as if SHE might do "THE MERRY WIDOW" instead of LA BELLE GLOW (that SWANSON girl) . . . W. C. FIELDS will not celebrate his birthday because he actually can't remember when he was born.

CECIL B. DEMILLE loathes, destests AND HATES painted finger-nails. BUT on a'count of because CLEO and her lady friends, away back in B. C., tinted not only their finger-nails but their TOE-NAILS, he's allowing the ladies in "CLEOPATRA" to do likewise (HE'S THAT TECHNICAL).

RICHARD ARLEN is having a terrific JINX follow him throughout the making of "COME ON MARINES." First he faw down and got water on the knee PLUS a sprained knee-cap, then he contracted practically DOUBLE pneumonia, THEN he sneezed the other day for one hour WITHOUT cease and a little extra gal (wishing to be helpful) rushed over to him with a bottle of some sort of INHALENT cold remedy, TRIPPED and threw the contents of the bottle in his face, which made him CRY for the rest of the afternoon.

JEANETTE MacDONALD (that prima donna) may go East to give herself to a ONE-ETHER hookup . . . BUSTER CRABBE has made an application to the A. A. U. for reinstatement as an amateur athlete. If they readmit him BUSSIE will compete in the Olympic Games in 1936 . . . JOAN CRAWFORD has been taking lessons in opera singing. Just whether she expects to DEBUT HERSELF at the Metropolitan, I wouldn't know.

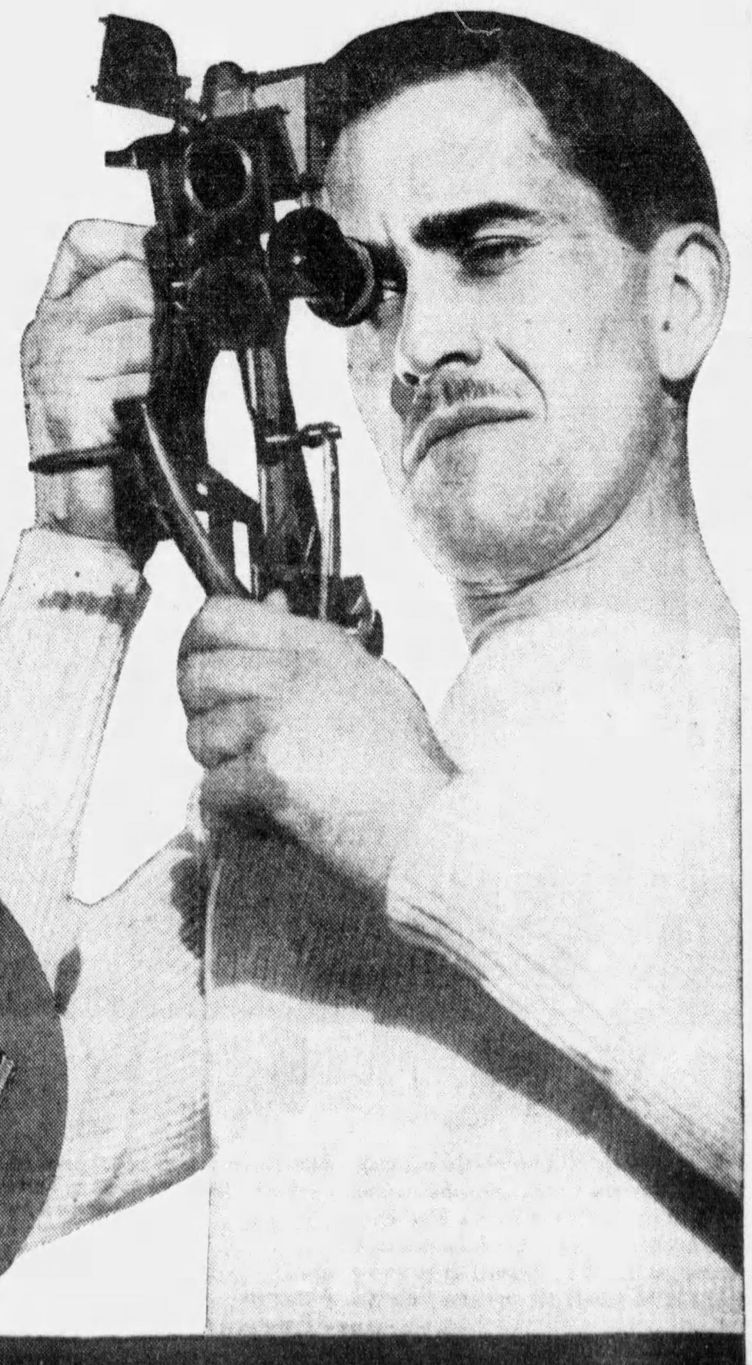
"—MY KIND OF TRAVELING TAKES HEALTHY NERVES, TOO"

Earle W. Schoonmaker of Nutley, N. J. travels thousands of miles every year as a commuter. He says:

"I'm quite a traveler, too! And I think I know something of nerve strain. Rushing through breakfast, racing for the 8:04, then facing the same old trip again at the end of a hard day...six times a week, fifty weeks a year. I'm a constant smoker. Morning, noon, and night. My brand? Camels, of course. Because I can enjoy Camels steadily and I never have to worry about jangled nerves. To me Camels are the mildest cigarette. They've got what I call real flavor!"

Thomas Olsen, who sailed a 26-foot boat across 9,000 miles of ocean, says:

"There's one cigarette that I can smoke steadily without getting nervous or 'fed up' with smoking. I mean Camels. They taste mild—never flat—and there is a delicate flavor to Camel's costlier tobaccos that certainly does set Camels apart from other cigarettes."



How Are YOUR Nerves?

Most all of us know jangled nerves by these telltale signs—jumping when doors slam, scolding, worrying, nail-biting, frowning, foot-tapping. No wonder "nerves" are being put forward as one of the great questions of the day affecting men and women in every station of life. If you are the nervous type, check up on your eating, your sleeping, your recreation. And be on the safe side about smoking—take up Camels now.

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand.

Thousands daily are turning to Camels. And finding a new zest for smoking...an enjoyment that each Camel refreshes and renews.

Enjoy Camels as often as you wish. Your taste will always respond to their finer flavor. And they never get on your nerves.

LONG LINES FOR THE FIGURE

It is the flared V revers on the suit coat, left, narrowing into the trig belt, which makes it the pet of figures slightly buxom. The three-quarter length also carries the eye down with a slimming notion. The material is a spring weight flecked tweed; the top revers are detachable, and made of white pique. Right, a plaid homespun and tweed suit which will become the heavier figure because it has mandarin lines to conceal disproportionate curves, and gaiety tempered with a plain, dark tone. Note the box pockets, wide rolled collar and frog fastenings.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE JUNOESQUE woman knows that she looks well in tailored clothes, but the headache to her is to sleuth out one which does not fit the form too tightly. What she wants is the impression of the streamline without moulding it too closely to give away the secret of her bathroom scales.

So what? Raglan sleeves, three-quarter length coats, drop shoulder sleeves, swagger lined coats and the discreet use of color are some of the answers.

* * *

THE FINGER TIP jacket is not for her; neither is the hip length. If she wishes to wear colorful homespuns in plaids or plain colors, let her top it with a long coat of a dark, harmonizing shade. If the coat is closed together only over the bust, and swings loose to the hem of it, so much the better—the flash of color from the skirt will be a long, slimming line up and down her costume.

* * *

THE LENGTH of every detail on the suit must be its yea or nay for approval: revers must taper, not flare sideways; sleeves must hang down and away from the shoulders, not perk up above them, or mould over them, and if the waistline is indented at all, it should be indicated at the longest possible line.

CLUBS DEMAND SALES TAX ENACTMENT

More organizations today had joined in the campaign for Congressional enactment of a manufacturers' sales tax to replace the income tax.

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Pittsburgh and the Travelers' Club of Zelienople, holding that the income tax discourages industrial and commercial enterprise, lessens re-employment of labor and reduces payrolls and purchasing power, voted to ask Congress to replace it with a manufacturers' sales tax.

The resolution contended:

"A manufacturers' sales tax, as has been adequately demonstrated in other countries, will produce a larger national revenue with a minimum of disturbance to the economic structure of the nation and without interference with individual welfare and convenience; that such a tax while producing a greater revenue, would be less expensive to administer and more equitable in its incidence."

Many of the individuals and organizations who have taken similar action are sending members of Congress from Allegheny County telegraphic demands for action on the proposed legislation.

The Woman's Club of Oakmont yesterday wired the county's representatives that it favored enactment of a sales tax. The telegram was sent to Congressmen Twing Brooks, Clyde Kelly, Michael J. Muldowney, Henry Ellenbogen, Matthaw A. Dunn and Senators David A. Reed and James J. Davis. It was signed by Mrs. L. P. Forman, president, and Mrs. Mae B. Colledge, legislative chairman.

Announcement of the action of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Pittsburgh was made by Marie A. Maloney, president. Jessie N. Kloffenstein announced the action of the Zelienople organization.

Sales tax advocates pointed out today that the tax would be imposed upon the manufacturers' prices of all goods produced or imported.

One plan for tax collection proposed by sales tax proponents involves licenses for all manufacturers.

The tax would be collected on the amount of gross sales monthly, but to prevent "pyramiding," sales from one licensee to another would be exempted when the commodities were sold for further fabrication or assembly.

The experience in Canada, it was pointed out, has been that on the great majority of commodities the tax has been absorbed before it reached the consumer.

In any event, it was pointed out, the tax would be paid only by those having money to spend. The rich buy more than the poor, and pay more, and therefore would contribute proportionately more. A man worth $500,000,000 could not completely escape this tax as he escaped the federal income tax, it was declared.

BLASS, EVANS ON WCAE

Andrew H. Blass, business consultant and editor of Modern Finance, a Pittsburgh financial magazine, will continue the radio discussion of the proposed manufacturers' sales tax in an address from station WCAE at 6:20 tonight.

Raymond D. Evans, assistant to the potentate of Syria Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., whose membership embraces 20,000 Western Pennsylvanians, will speak over the same station at 6:20 p. m. Friday. Mr. Evans is a former assistant United States district attorney.

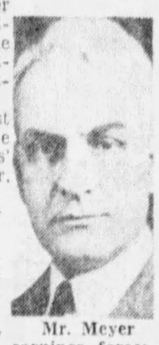
Trucks, Buses Must Carry Night Signals

State highway patrol stations in this district have been ordered from Harrisburg to open a drive on buses and trucks which fail to carry red and yellow danger and caution signals for use when stalled on highways at night.

A number of accidents have resulted from failure of motorists to see stationary trucks or buses, according to Sergt. A. A. Kratzke, of the sub-station of the highway patrol at Aspinwall.

Immediate Payment Great Advantage Of Sales Tax

The tardiness of the government in calling for income tax payments was blamed by John D. Meyer, former United States attorney, for the numerous attempts at evasion.



Mr. Meyer

Speaking last night on the manufacturers' sales tax, Mr. Meyer asserted:

"No matter how honest a man may be, the tardiness of the call from the government for a portion of his earnings forces him into a frame of mind where he will do everything in his power to evade a part or all of the tax. Dead horses are never easily paid for."

The former federal district attorney said:

"One of the greatest difficulties of the bona fide and honest taxpayer under the income tax law is the fact that the tax on profits made in a given calendar year is not due and payable until well into the next year.

"Many times it has happeneud that a man or corporation which has been very successful in one year meets with reverses in the next year and yet out of the meager receipts of the second year they must pay for the profits made the previous year.

"With the sales tax the situation is entirely different. The man who has the money and buys, is the man who pays the tax. Anyone who is about to make a purchase, whether substantial in size or minor in character, does so realizing that part of the price he must pay for the article wanted will be a tax to his government.

"Weighing the advantages against the disadvantages he makes his decision to purchase and pays with the money he has at the time. In a few days that money is in the hands of his government ready to be used for the upkeep of the various services which we demand and receive from the government."

LOCAL WORK FOR THE BLIND VICTIMIZED

We desire to warn the public against sharp practice in connection with the sale of rugs and other products alleged to have been made by the blind.

In recent months many persons have purchased rugs that were claimed to have been made by the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind, only to discover later that they were made by midwest manufacturers.

We request those who are asked to buy blind-made products to make certain that they are dealing with our Association. Our agents sell principally by telephone and always will state that they represent the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind.

Orders taken by these midwest manufacturers generally require a deposit and the rugs are delivered by parcel post. On the contrary, orders taken by our agents DO NOT require a deposit and the goods are delivered by our agents. When your order is delivered, ask to see the agent's identification card.

We earnestly solicit the co-operation of the public in eliminating this sharp practice of certain dishonest midwest manufacturers.

SALES TAX HELD 'INEVITABLE'

By HAMILTON FISH, JR.
U. S. Representative from New York.
(Written Expressly for the Hearst Newspapers)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The general manufacturers sales tax is inevitable, and if it is not adopted at this session of Congress it will be at the next.

It is the fairest and most equitable excise tax because it treats all industries equally, and is the easiest to collect.

I am in favor of repealing the discriminatory taxes on specific industries and treating them all alike, through a 2½ per cent manufacturers' excise tax.

There is no way of raising more money from income taxes without practical confiscation.

Actual confiscation serves no sound purpose, as the government could make only 5 per cent on the money, whereas the income taxpayer might pay anywhere up to 50 per cent annually to the government.

The budget cannot be balanced without a sales tax, even insofar as the interest and a slight amortization of the stupendous spending and anticipated ten billion deficit is concerned.

We are not only drifting, but rapidly approaching the issuance of printing press greenbacks that would destroy what is left of American credit and cause the collapse of the 59-cent dollar and make the inflation and financial panic of 1929 look like a piker.

There is no other way out except through a general manufacturers' sales tax.

COPELAND AND PHILLIPS IN RACE FOR GOVERNOR

POLITICS

G. O. P. Regulars Test Shannon Strength

By MARK SHIELDS

Republican State Chairman Edward Martin, according to reports from Philadelphia, will announce in that city at the end of the week that he is not a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. At the same time he is expected to say some kind words for Gen. Edward C. Shannon, the state's Lieutenant Governor, and a gubernatorial aspirant so far backed only by soldiers.

Mr. Shields

That will put Shannon officially in the field, but only tentatively the organization candidate. He will be permitted two or three weeks to develop strength and demonstrate to the organization that he can become a formidable candidate. If he does so the regulars will label him their candidate. If he does not, search will be made for a more available man.

The organization, however, will not have the cohesiveness which has marked its efforts in some previous campaigns.

Differences within the party in Philadelphia have communicated themselves to the two big adjacent counties, Montgomery and Delaware, where the old-line leadership is a serious plight.

Delaware is perhaps in worse shape than Montgomery, though in the latter county the feud between Charles Johnson, veteran leader, and Senator Jim Boyd is not conducive to that harmonious front which is imperative in the next election if the party is to hold its place.

So serious is the situation in Delaware that the Legislative seats of Speaker of the House Grover Talbot and Representative Ellwood Turner, recently named chairman of a Republican Legislative bloc which plans a concerted campaign in the state, are threatened.

Both are identified with the discredited faction of State Senator John J. McClure, though neither was involved in the sweeping graft and corruption charges which resulted in the conviction of McClure and scores of his aides by a federal jury.

* * *

Defeat of Gen. Price Laid to McClure Help

An example of the handicap facing any candidate identified even remotely with McClure is furnished by the defeat of Gen. William G. Price as a candidate for sheriff in the election last November.

Gen. Price, a National Guardsman of long service, a man of unimpeachable reputation, was backed by the McClure wing of the Republicans at a time when the Senator's fortunes were being exposed to the verdict of a jury. No personal attack could be made on Gen. Price, but the McClure tag was hung on him, and he went down to defeat at the hands of a Democrat.

A similar tag on both Speaker Talbot and Representative Turner places them under a handicap in the primary. If they vault that then they must face another vigorous fight in the general election.

Even though the Supreme Court ruling whitewashing violators of the prohibition law convicted after repeal may save Senator McClure and his aides from jail terms, the Senator has pretty well shot his bolt as a political leader in his county. It is conceded that any candidate affiliated with his political organization in the past, no matter how far above suspicion his personal and public life starts with two strikes on him.

Similarly in Montgomery there is unrest and the rumbling of insurrection. The Johnson and Boyd factions are making farces at each other to an extent which may jeopardize the re-election of the state's biggest senator—figured in avoirdupois.

In the November elections last fall Mr. Johnson failed to elect his candidate for Common Pleas Court. There are explanations that some of this was due to the bad strategy of the candidate himself, but the fact remains that he was defeated, and that he was backed by the Johnson organization.

* * *

Unity Lacking Among Republican Factions

The situation in these two counties, joined to that in Philadelphia illustrates the lack of cohesion the Republican regular organization will have in putting over its ticket in the primary, and the following handicaps the party will face in November, no matter who its nominees against whatever state and local tickets may be in the field as the representatives of the Democrats.

Going back to Philadelphia, there is a belief among impartial observers that the Democratic legislative delegation will be materially swelled at the November elections. This will come about not so much through any material increase in registration of bona fide Democrats, but because of schisms which will be created among the Republicans in the primary, and the newly-discovered fact to Philadelphians that they can vote as they wish.

In connection with the fact that George H. Earle, the regular Democratic gubernatorial aspirant, is an enrolled Republican, though he was unreservedly for Roosevelt, an interesting story is told respecting his father, unsuccessful candidate for Mayor on the Republican ticket in 1911.

Just as now some Democrats assert Earle is really a Republican, so did William S. Vare, his father's primary opponent in 1911, assert that the elder Earle was really a Democrat, and not even a resident of the city. So Mr. Vare after being defeated in the primary, contended that no Republicans should be for the elder Earle, entered an independent candidate, and defeated the father of the present candidate for Governor.

SHIFT IN LOCAL RULE URGED BY SCHNADER

Present Plan Costly, State Chamber of Commerce Told

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 15.—Complete renovation of the system of local governments in Pennsylvania by revision of the 60-year-old Constitution was urged today by Attorney General William A. Schnader, in an address before the State Chamber of Comemrce, holding its seventeenth annual convention here. Schnader asserted that the people of this commonwealth have no problem more serious—and perhaps more difficult—than to reorganize local government in an efficient manner.

Regarding changes in the Constitution, Schnader declared:

"Our Legislature is hamstrung in a number of respects by constitutional provisions adopted years ago and adapted to a very different period. There can be no question that 5,611 separate, independent, unrelated, tax-levying and money-spending agencies of local government in Pennsylvania impose on real estate many, many millions of dollars of unnecessary expense every year."

SEES BIG SAVING

Schnader declared that the tax-spender has occupied the state much too long and it is time for the taxpayer to have his day. He continued:

"Expenditures for local government purposes in Pennsylvania in 1930 aggregated $400,000,000. A saving of 10 per cent in the cost of local government would mean a saving to real estate taxpayers of $40,000,000 a year—more than $4 for each man, woman and child in this commonwealth."

The speaker ended his address by stating that if anything worthwhile is to be accomplished, the State Constitution must be revised.

Consolidation of school districts in the state was urged by Representative Ellwood J. Turner, of Delaware County. He declares greater state appropriations to schools will have to be made and that there will have to be a revision in the present school code. He declared local units would have to clean house and school districts would have to be consolidated.

BACKS CONSOLIDATION

He continued:

"It has been estimated that such a consoliudation of school districts on teh basis of one to a county will bring about a saving of $10,000,000 a year."

M. J. Shortley, manager of the Schuylkill-Northumberland Taxpayers' Asociation, also urged consolidation of school districts. He stated:

"I believe the consolidation could be worked out by legislation in such a manner as to gain the support of the people, but this cannot be brought about until excessive costs in many school districts are reduced to a proper level."

Shortley also attacked the system of tax collection in the state, terming it as "out of date, costly, amazingly inefficient, and an outrageous political grab-bag which is fatally defective."

Police Revive Man Gassed in Garage

Overcome by carbon monoxide fumes while repairing an automobile in Anderson's Garage, at 26 Larimer avenue; Alex Johns, 22, of 8 Orchard avenue, Etna, was revived by East End police late yesterday.

Wagonmen John McCullough and Michael Cahill administered oxygen to the victim more than an hour. Revived, he was taken to his home.

JACK BURKOWSKI (LEFT), 34, AS A POLICE COURT HEARING WITNESS

FRANK RITZ MILTON ECKEL GEORGE LANGFITT

Detective Ritz, Assistant Prosecutor Langfitt hearing young Mr. Eckel's story of how he was shot down in an Indiana Township hoax holdup, fatal to one.

BOXER TARGET; WHO SHOT HIM?

John Burkowski, 34, erstwhile sparring partner with Jack Dempsey, insisted in Police Court today that it wasn't Peter Domeroski, 30, of 219 Main street, who shot him, but Peter insisted he did.

The difference of opinion arose when Domeroski was arraigned before Magistrate Charles McCall in Lawrenceville Police Station as an aftermath of the wounding of Burkowski, known in the ring as Jack Burke, in Penn avenue last night. Burkowski was shot twice in the left leg.

Domeroski said he fired the shots when Burkowski attacked him. Burkowski said an unknown Negro shot him as he walked along the street.

Domeroski was held for further investigation. Burkowski was turned over to a deputy sheriff. He is accused of failing to pay fines and court costs in connection with his conviction in 1930 on a liquor charge. Judge W. Heber Dithrich later directed him to pay in 90 days.

Judge Ambrose B. Reid yesterday appointed E. Z. Smith, A. A. Henderson and S. A. Merkel viewers to assess damages and benefits arising from the construction of a sewage treatment plant in Penn Township. The plant was constructed on private property.

BRADDOCK BOY KILLED BY AUTO

Frank Oddo, 12, of 853 Washington avenue, Braddock, died last night in Braddock General Hospital from a skull fracture suffered a short time before, when he was struck by an automobile driven, deputy coroners said, by Stephen Ziemianski, of 838 Washington avenue, Braddock. The accident occurred at Eighth street and Talbot avenue.

William J. Weiss, 33, R. D. No. 9, Brookside Farms, and Clyde Daugherty, 24, of 114 Baldwin street, were injured when the automobile in which they were riding struck a pole in Sawmill Run boulevard, Overbrook, late yesterday, according to a police report. They were taken to Mercy Hospital.

JUDGE SETTLES SUIT OVER JOB

Judge Ambrose B. Reid yesterday played the role of peacemaker in a court suit and got Roy Merwin, of Banksville, back on his butter and egg route after his employer, the Corliss Creamery Company, had attempted by injunction proceedings to prevent him from working for anyone else.

Merwin said the company last December charged him $50 for an automobile accident which happened three years ago. He quit, and under the terms of his contract, the company claimed he could work for no one else on the same route. Merwin maintained the firm had violated its contract with him.

Judge Reid suggested that the company re-employ Merwin, adding:

"He appears to be a good man and I think you ought to give him back his job, if he will take it."

Attorneys for both sides agreed when Merwin said he would return.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Feb. 15.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Austria? Say isn't that down there about in shooting distance of where the other war broke out? England has told Germany to "lay off."

Will Rogers

Now, what if Germany didn't "choose" to lay off?

The boys are looking around now, kinder choosing up sides again. Russia would like to look down that way, but she can't take her eyes off Japan long enough. Mussolini is waiting for the best offer. France has got every propeller a spinning.

Now is one of the best times in the world for us to fight among ourselves. It will at least keep us out of some bigger devilment.

Yours, WILL.

YOUTH YIELDS STOLEN RING

A $250 diamond ring was recovered from a bucket hidden under a bed in the home of a Criminal Court prisoner by deputy sheriffs late yesterday, after which the prisoner was sentenced two to 10 years in the Western Penitentiary.

Bernard Zack, 18, of Butler street, and Patrick Shannon, 22, of Cyphers street, had pleaded guilty to robbery before Visiting Judge R. R. Lewis. They admitted on December 27 they had robbed the O. K. grocery store in Forty-fourth street of $130 cash.

Zack first said he knew nothing about the ring which Earl Conklin, of 1606 Worthington street, clerk in the store, said the robbers had taken. On further questioning Zack admitted he had hidden it in the bucket. At the court's direction he was taken to his home by two deputies and the ring was found.

Shannon was sentenced one to 10 years in the workhouse.

YEAR FOR SALE OF FATAL DRINK

The maximum jail sentence under the new liquor law of one year, with a $300 fine added, was imposed on a convicted bootlegger in Criminal Court by Visiting Judge R. R. Lewis, of Potter County, after it had been related that the moonshine sold by the prisoner had caused the death of one man and the illness of another.

Sergt. Samuel Wheeler, of the homicide squad, probing the death of James Meighan, 23, of Lawrenceville, December 30, testified he raided the home of Frank Cinek, 34, rear 4500 Butler street, where he had learned Meighan had bought a pint of liquor for 25 cents a few hours before he died. James Mullen, who was with Meighan, drank some of the liquor and became ill, but recovered in a hospital.

Wheeler testified Cinek had a tank containing moonshine buried in a hillside back of his house, with a pipe running to the kitchen sink, where he could open a tap and draw a drink. Chemist F. C. Buckmaster testified to finding a small quantity of zinc chloride in the liquor.

Tavern Man Denies He Was in Fight

Cesare Fileppo, proprietor of the Garfield Tavern which is to open soon at 5025 Penn avenue, was explaining today to friends and prospective patrons that he was not involved in a fight in which a customer of another similar establishment in the neighborhood was killed. The use of the term, "a Garfield tavern," in a news story involving the other establishment, Mr. Fileppo fears, might confuse that establishment with the one he proposes to open. Mr. Fileppo has no connection with the place involved in the fight.

STUDY SCHOOL LEGISLATION

Dr. Marion K. McKay, of the University of Pittsburgh, was to preside at a meeting of the Civic Club's school study group at 4 p. m. today in the Hotel William Penn.

Committees representing seven organizations were to present information compiled on school problems discussed at the last session of the State Legislature and expected to be introduced at the next session.

Each of the seven groups has been assigned a separate phase of the public school program to investigate. A complete report of their findings will be available when the Legislature convenes.

Charge, Delivery System Approved

The Businessmen's Association of the East North Side at a meeting yesterday approved a new credit proposal which would place business houses in that section of the city on a department store basis. Principal features of the new plan are inauguration of a charge account and delivery systems, devised by W. A. Stoehr, real estate operator.

Man Rescues Wife Overcome by Gas

Overcome by gas fumes while doing the family washing in the basement of her home at 513 Union avenue today, Mrs. Mildred Lorenz, 20, was taken to Allegheny General Hospital suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning. Her husband, Joseph, carried her from the cellar to safety.

2 CANDIDATES FIGHT PARTY BOSSES

Democratic Jurist to Place Ticket In Field

By MARK SHIELDS

Two vigorous threats to regular organization domination in both major parties were actively in the field today, Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Westmoreland County, announcing as a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler, seeking the same place on the Republican ticket.

Phillips has announced independently of candidates for any other office, but Copeland is expected to head a complete ticket which will battle it out at the primary with the slate designated by the Democratic State Committee at Harrisburg last Saturday.

The next step in the formation of the anti-organization Democratic ticket will be the announcement late this afternoon or tomorrow by Roland S. Morris, of Philadelphia, that he is a candidate for nomination to the United States Senate.

SNYDER CANDIDACY

An understanding has been reached whereby State Senator Henry L. Snyder, of Lehigh County, will become a candidate for Lieutenant Governor, but announcement of his candidacy may be delayed a few days.

For Secretary of Internal Affairs, Representative Norbert Fitzgerald, of Erie, may become the anti-organization candidate. Fitzgerald has announced as a candidate for Lieutenant Governor, but it is believed he can be switched.

Morris and Judge Copeland conferred in Greensburg prior to the jurist's announcement. Campaign strategy was discussed and, while it was determined efforts should be made to avoid the appearance of a slate, it is agreed by opponents of Joseph F. Guffey, boss of the state committee, that the drift together of Copeland and Morris is inevitable.

A small gathering of anti-organization Democrats is scheduled for Harrisburg Saturday, but agreement on no slate will be announced. Plans will be laid for a later meeting, to which hundreds of independent Democrats will be invited, and on that occasion it probably will be definitely decided to back the Copeland-Morris ticket.

Representative Chester H. Rhodes, of Monroe County, slated for Superior Court by the Guffey faction, may be accepted by the insurgents.

BONNIWELL POSITION

The position of Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell in the Democratic picture is uncertain. Judge Bonniwell has been talking of becoming a candidate for Governor, and conferred with Copeland last week. No agreement could be reached and efforts now will be made to keep Bonniwell out and enlist him against the regular ticket composed of George H. Earle for Governor, Guffey for the United States Senate, Thomas Kennedy, of Hazleton, for Lieutenant Governor, Thomas A. Logue, of Philadelphia, for Secretary of Internal Affairs, and Rhodes.

Earle is returning to his post as minister to Austria, and may be out of the state during the primary. Before leaving Philadelphia he made arrangements with the assessor in his voting district to change his enrollment from Republican to Democratic.

Judge Copeland noted Earle's past Republicanism in his announcement today, asserting that he had always been a registered Democrat. He attacked Guffey, without mentioning his name, as having hand-picked the regular slate through the influence of patronage on members of the state committee.

COPELAND'S STATEMENT

Declaring himself an ardent supporter of President Roosevelt, Judge Copeland said:

"My decision to stand as the Democratic candidate for Governor has not been arrived at hastily. Laying aside the fact that I have been importuned from every nook and corner of Pennsylvania to be the Democratic candidate for Governor, my primary reason for arriving at this decision was the action of the state committee last Saturday in indorsing a slate set up by one man who had himself selected as the candidate for the United States Senate as well as the balance of the ticket, thus arrogating to themselves the free and untrammeled rights of the voters of the Democratic party to choose their own candidates at the primary election."

Phillips is the first Republican formally announced as a candidate for Governor, though petitions are being circulated for Senator Frank J. Harris, Judge Harry S. McDevitt, of Philadelphia, Benjamin G. Eynon, of Scranton, and Judge George A. Welsh, of the United States District Court. The Welsh supporters are backing

Streamlined Train Gets 'Preview' at Glenwood

A small crowd, mostly Baltimore and Ohio Railroad workers and officials, witnessed a pre-view of the streamlined Deisel-engined Union Pacific train as it rolled quietly to a stop at Glenwood yesterday. The train passed through the city on its way from Chicago to Washington. It returns Monday for a formal showing at Pennsylvania Station.

Looking remarkably like a long tan and yellow caterpillar, the new train is reminiscent of the new automobiles and airplanes. An auto siren and an electric bell herald its way. There is a solid rubber bumper instead of a cowcatcher.

Wheels are concealed beneath metal skirts. Shining clean behind plate glass windows in the first coach, the Deisel engines were quiet as mice, even as the train started.

Both passenger coaches appeared well filled with officials and trainmen. In the tiny kitchenette in the streamlined tail, two cooks were busy preparing lunch.

A number of B. & O. officials traveled as interested observers of the train's performance. They included C. W. VanHorn, general manager; A. O. Herman, assistant to the general manager; A. H. Keys, master carbuilder; A. K. Galloway, superintendent of motive power; George H. Emerson, chief of motive power, and J. J. Tatum, superintendent of the car department.

W. M. Jeffers, Union Pacific vice president, was the chief official on board. He announced that the train's performance was highly satisfactory.

VanHorn said the new train would observe all the usual railroad speed limits on its way to the capital, keeping down to a maximum of 60 miles an hour. Its top speed is supposed to be twice that.

PETITIONS FOR WATERS

Petitions have been taken out for State Treasurer Charles A. Waters, but are not yet in circulation. No move has been made to put either Attorney General William A. Schnader or Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon officially in the gubernatorial fight, but both are on the verge of announcing.

Supreme Court Justice George W. Maxey, urged by some Philadelphians to become a candidate, said today he is satisfied on the bench.

Phillips comes into the fight without alliances with any other candidate, but some of his backers predict he will demonstrate such strength that he will be picked up by the Republican organization, now friendliest to Shannon. Phillips was an unsuccessful candidate for Governor in 1930 on a wet ticket, running because he was disgusted by the straddle of the regular Republicans on the prohibition question.

In his announcement Phillips said he was a "conservative- progressive," and continued:

"Today the forgotten man is the taxpayer, and any deal, be it old or new, that hamstrings that taxpayer invites social, industrial and political disaster. Serious evils and intolerable conditions that have followed in the wake of our industrial machine age can be eliminated only by legislation.

"Sweatshops, child labor, destructive competition and ruthless exploitation call for government intervention, regardless of any ancient or modern theory of government.

"The burdens of taxation, the furnishings of employment and the support of church, college and charity are already breaking the backs of the thrifty, and therefore the thriftless should not be permitted to unduly add to these burdens.

"Some substitution should be made for the major portion of taxes now levied against homes that are occupied by their owners. One of the most important subjects for consideration is the encouragement of home owning and home building, therefore fostering a happier, more wholesome home life."

Phillips pointed out that government spending for industrial revival could only be a temporary remedy, citing recent utterances of President Roosevelt, and pledged himself to co-operate fully with the President in measures which would aid in constructive industrial recovery.

MANY DEVIL'S ISLAND FUGITIVES DIE IN JUNGLES

Hundreds Bolt, But Few Succeed in Going Free

By GORDON SINCLAIR

CHAPTER XIV

Half are dragged back in chains to face the dungeons within a month. Of the others less than five per cent are ever heard of again.

Where do they go?

Do they fall victims to the sharks in the sea? To the snakes in the jungle? To the quicksand in the swamplands?

Not likely.

The true terror of Guinan's interior is not the clouds of poisonous insects, not the snakes, the quicksand, the vampire bats or the unmarked waterfalls.

Desperadoes who have made their break only to find themselves out of the frying pan into the fire, prowl Guiana's interior like beasts of prey.

So frightened are natives of their attack that gold in Guiana streams is seldom mined. Cocoanuts in the interior are not harvested. Explorations are not carried out and maps of the interior are sadly incomplete.

Typical of what happens to the stranger who invades the Guiana jungle is that of William Thompson, Canadian explorer, who landed at St. Laurent de Maroni in the summer of 1929, and with two natives went on a big game hunt. He was never seen or heard of again.

Neither were the natives.

Yet Thompson was by no means a stranger to the country. He had the best available maps, a good rifle, expert guides, a good boat and knowledge of the language.

None of his equipment was ever found.

Thompson, strong, athletic, 22, was a Presbyterian missionary. In 1927 he was sent from Toronto to New Amsterdam, British Guiana, as a high school teacher and sports master. He worked there two years studying the country, learning the bush Creole tongue and making notes on native customs. Occasionally he went deep into the jungle after jaguars and the huge South American boa constrictor. He was a good shot and a strong, wiry man.

In 1929, during the school vacation, he decided to go into French territory—which is much wilder than either the Dutch or British—in search of the real big stuff.

Journeys Into Unknown

He came on to St. Laurent, which is distribution and transportation headquarters for 12 Guiana convict camps and gathered his gear together, dashed off a few postcards to friends in Canada and paddled up the Maroni toward nobody knows what.

Weeks later his mother got a card. About that same time school officials in British territory wondered why Thompson had not turned up for the new term. They made local inquiries but found no trace of him. They cabled Dr. A. S. Grant, secretray of the Presbyterian mission board, Toronto.

Dr. Grant immediately got in touch with what few British connections could be found in French territory where there is neither British nor American consul.

Bush bloodhounds—mostly Indians—went on a man hunt through the mahogany forests and down speedy rivers.

No trace of Thompson, his boat, his guides, or his rifle was ever found. Cables buzzed from Canada to Paris and from Paris to Guiana.

Expert bush trackers reinforced the so-called human blood hounds in their search, but Thompson had disappeared just as thoroughly as had Col. H. P. Fawcett in the Brazilian bad lands just a three-hour flight to the south.

Regarded as Dead

Insurance companies who had policies on Thompson's life joined the search through their own agents, but nothing of any kind whatever was ever found. Last month the insurance companies paid off and wrote William Thompson into the record books as "missing; presumed dead."

Meantime the French governments sent formal regrets and that, for the moment, is that.

Peculiarly enough two elaborate and expensive search parties, led by noted explorers, have crashed through Brazilian jungles in search of Fawcett. They even took radio outfits to acquaint the outside world with progress of the hunt. But no expedition, other than a purely local search, has been sent to seek Thompson, and this is the first time any story of his disappearance has been printed.

Of the hundreds of convicts who break for freedom from French Guiana almost all of them jump from St. Laurent. Royal, Joseph and Devil's Islands, home of man-killers and incorrigible convicts, are immediately off that port. Dutch territory, goal of the escaped men, is only 300 yards away.

The river, which has many miles of dangerous rapids and a series of falls higher than Niagara, is one of the few streams on earth to contain fighting fish and the overpowering electric eel.

Aside from the general air of hopelessness and depression the thing that struck me most about Sir Laurent was the number of gold and butterfly buyers. Practically every merchant has a bit of a cubby-hole tucked off in a corner where he dickers with bushmen for loose gold and with convicts for butterfly wings or essential oils from which perfume is brewed.

Several times while in Guiana I was astonished to hear the gold buyers carry on their trade in English.

I asked the buyers:

"Why English?"

"Because these men are English."

I went on:

"Obviously; but why don't the French hunt their own gold?"

The buyer shrugged fat shoulders:

"Perhaps they are afraid?"

"Afraid of what; the snakes and the jaguars? Afraid of the vampire bats perhaps?"

"No. These forests are filled with escaped convicts. They are blood-thirsty and vicious men. First of all they want food, boats and rifles. More than 90 per cent of all the gold miners up country are British or Dutch. These men don't travel armed."

Footloose Desperadoes

You will recall the story of Louis and Marcel Dron, the Edmonton prospectors who had lost their stake in a search for Guiana gold. They had met a camp of convicts out in the wilds. But those convicts had fed and sheltered them through a stormy night when their boat engine failed. Perhaps Thompson was not so lucky. Certainly the greatest risk in prowling around the interior is that of meeting footloose desperadoes, for no sirens scream and no blood hounds bay when a convict or group of convicts make a break. It's almost a routine affair.

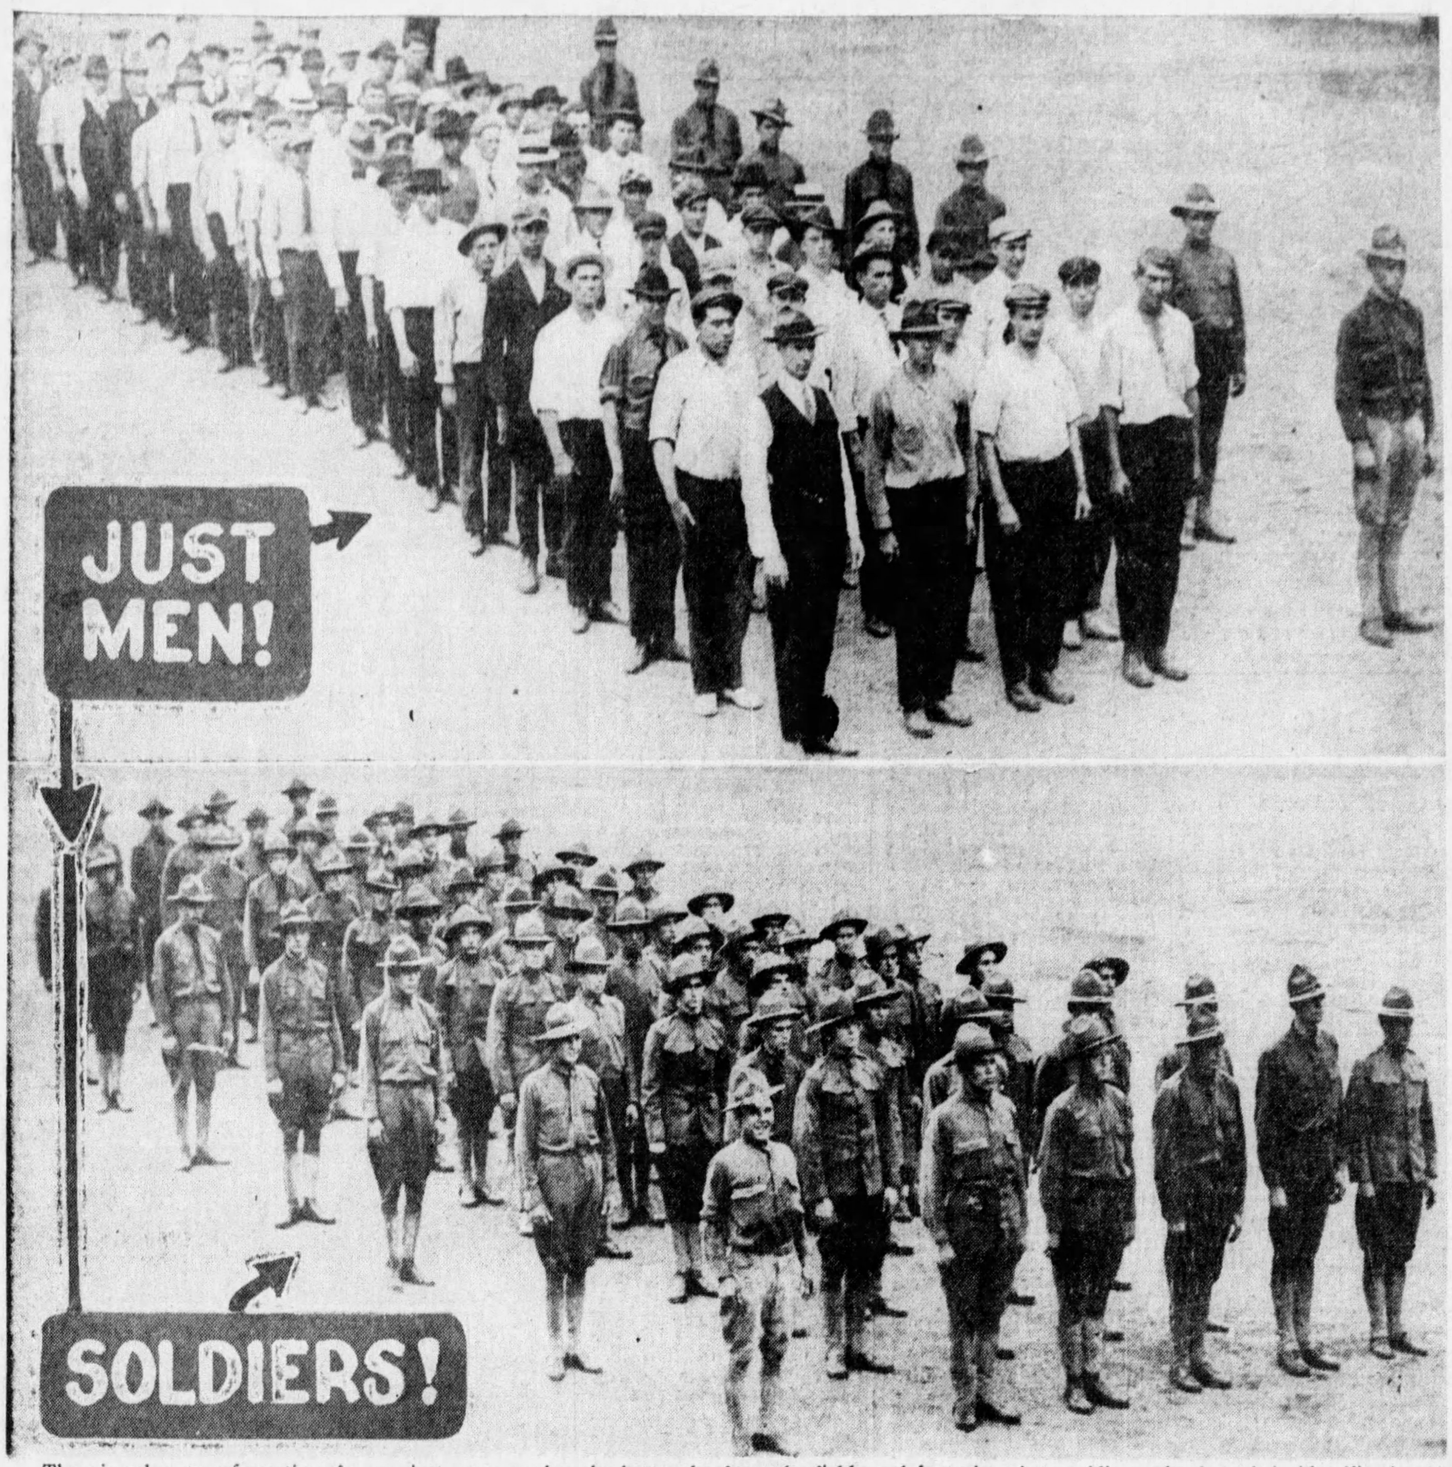
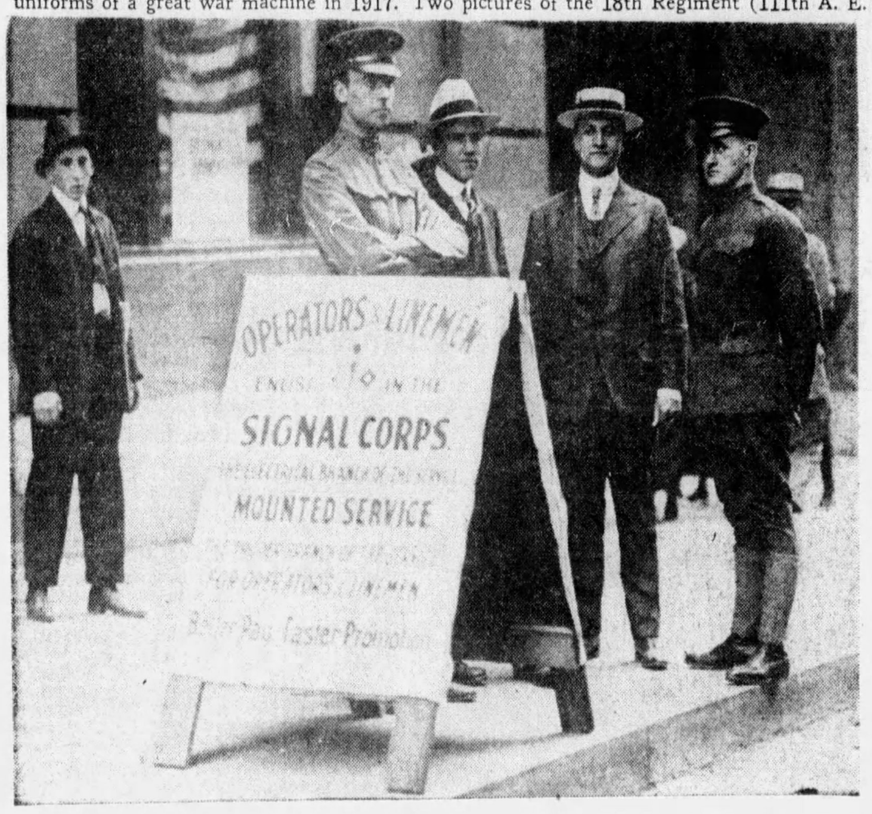
CAMERA'S STORY OF ACTUAL WORLD WAR AIR COMBAT!



The miraculous transformation of men—just any men, but the best only, from the fields and factories—into soldiers who lost their identifications in uniforms of a great war machine in 1917. Two pictures of the 18th Regiment (111th A. E. F.) recruit company in Pittsburgh—BEFORE and AFTER.



Wanted: Men! Men for this, men for that, but especially men who were willing to go out and die for their country on battlefields of France. This was in downtown Pittsburgh.

"War"—Lord Kitchener said—"is not made with rosewater."

His grim phrase was uttered in the first days of the World War, when Sir John French and England's trained little army, the famous "Contemptibles," were holding back the German legions at Mons.

For the "Contemptibles" had to sacrifice themselves so that their country could get ready really to fight in Flanders, and the British people were aghast at their losses. And Kitchener's irony was intended to "buck the people up."

England, it will be remembered, was PREPARED on the sea when the Great War broke out. And Germany risked the Belgian invasion, drawing England into the war, only because England was UNPREPARED on land.

That degree of unpreparedness wasted the few regiments of British land veterans, and compelled England to improvise a civilian army, just as later we were compelled to do. Moreover, if England HAD NOT BEEN PREPARED on the sea, England itself might have been invaded and conquered, as Belgium was.

The pictures on this page show what it means to GET INTO war.

Too Many Visiting In-Laws Disillusion Wife

You're on edge, and it is on account of that letter from one of your in-laws.

It came in the mail all the way from one of the Western states, and was from an aunt by marriage. She is lonely and almost destitute as so many of her bonds and mortgages have paid her no income, and she wants to come and have a visit with you.

She worded that paragraph cleverly when she referred to your kind heart, and the fact your husband always does exactly as you say.

Babe Ruth couldn't have swung a better one. For although you are not a fly that drops right into the jelly of flattery, yet you don't mind being called a generous soul. And even though you know your husband generally does as he pleases, yet it gives you a comfortable feeling to be called a home ruler.

PLANNED FOR FUTURE

Even so, you are trudging around with your dust cloth, and looking glum. You had planned the months ahead to be star ones in companionship with your man. He has always liked your reading out loud to him, and you have several good novels laid aside. Also he is beginning to take an interest in bridge. And there are neighborhood parties to enjoy.

You did not marry all your husband's relatives, you mutter as you clear away the debris of cigarets.

Yet these in-laws have been butting in ever since your honeymoon.

It was directly after your marriage, that your husband passed over a letter from his younger sister, Molly, while you and he were eating breakfast.

"Read it," he said.

Molly was unmarried then, and she was asking to come and spend the winter with you.

"But we had planned to be alone," you sobbed over the coffee cup.

ONE AFTER ANOTHER

"I know," your man admitted. "But Molly has landed a job in Pittsburgh, and we can't let her live with strangers."

There it was . . . strangers. And yet weren't you a stranger to her?

Molly came, and occupied the entire house, strewing her belongings everywhere. Something you had never been raised to do. And having boy friends in the sittingroom and playing the piano until all hours of the night. Until you married her off in sheer desperation.

But Molly was scarcely out from under your roof until Uncle Henry, the last of the brothers of your husband's father, came all the way from Texas to be with you.

And so Uncle Henry stayed on, and he changed the course of events for you. He led the van in every conversation. And it was always with Sherman on his march to the sea or beside Grant when he demanded unconditional surrender.

But just before the old fellow died he said something you remember.

"You've been better to me than any of my own folks," it was.

And yet even those well-meant words listed you an outsider.

AFFECTIONATE GREETINGS

Next came your husband's younger brother. He was taking a post course at the university, and he walked right in over your rugs and brought a hoodlum crowd of fellows with him.

But now he sends you messages on your birthday, and always calls you "sis." And you like him for it.

But you aren't one of them. And what's more, you wouldn't be for the wealth of Golconda. You've taken too much backtalk from your husband's people. They have been downright mean even when they were eating food out of your cupboard.

And now when you were sure at least you and your husband were to be alone, along comes the widowed aunt.

Yet she has put you on your honor, and so you are taking your good clothes out of the cupboard in the guest chamber. And washing the curtains in that room.

Your in-laws have you under their thumb.

Your husband is all bound up in them.

Illusions of the Desert Provide a Text for Fay King's Story

By FAY KING

It is quite common for desert travelers to behold a chimera. That is, weary and thirsty, they suddenly seem to see at a distance a beautiful green oasis with promise of sparkling water.

But experienced desert trekkers hold them back, by force if necessary, when they would make a dash for this illusion.

To eager, impatient youths, life may seem an endless trackless desert, and they, too, behold chimeras. They also would dash off to these images of romance, and imagined sparkle of success.

They are fortunate if an experienced traveler in life will hold them back and guide them along the true path which alone leads to the rightful, worthwhile goal of every caravan.

Avis, Utterly Cowed, Is Turned Over to Mother

I acquitted Lillian of any deliberate intent to taunt Avis when she spoke of wanting a chance to kiss "the lovliest bride and the happiest bridegroom" that she had seen "in a long and mis-spent life." But I knew that Avis knowing full well that everyone of us was fully conversant with her scheme for upsetting Noel's wedding and of that scheme's undoing, must be inwardly writhing in the belief that Lillian had uttered the words with the intention of "crowing over her."

But she said nothing, and as I left the room with Harry and Lillian, I wondered if, perhaps, I had finally reached the end of this particular chapter with her, and whether Noel and Mary would have a chance to depart upon their wedding trip with no further sight of the girl so hateful to both of them.

As I entered the living room I saw Mrs. Arlen looking anxiously around, while Philip Veritzen was talking to her in a patient attempt to reassure her. Both of them started toward me as soon as they caught sight of me, and I hurried directly toward them, followed by Lillian and Harry.

"Have you seen Avis?" Mrs. Arlen asked before she had reached me.

ANXIOUS MOTHER

"Yes, I was just coming after you," I answered, my mind so full of Mary and Noel that I am afraid I was lacking in courtesy to an anxious mother. After all, she was not to blame for her daughter's "cussedness," even though she had grievously spoiled her as a child.

"Oh, what—?" she began frantically, but Lillian interposed swiftly.

"She is not ill, Mrs. Arlen," Lillian said emphatically. "Please don't be worried. But she has had a headache ever since she arose, she said, and just now she felt a little dizzy, so I took her into the little study and Mrs. Bickett is there with her now. Shall I take you to her?"

"Oh, please! You're sure she is all right?"

"Absolutely sure," Lillian replied, offering her arm to the anxious mother, and the two left the room, Mrs. Arlen's voice floating back to us.

"My poor, sensitive darling," she was saying. "This has been too much for her." And I wondered if she could possibly mean to imply that Noel's marrying someone else had been too much for Avis.

PREPARE TO LEAVE

But as I saw the door close after her and Lillian, I drew a long breath of relief. Avis was in her mother's hands now, and I was sure that Katherine, with her matchless tact and resourcefulness, would be able to keep both women in the little study until Noel and Mary should have departed.

Jerry Ticer's old flivver, with Jerry himself at the wheel, was waiting outside our own barn. Jerry had been there, swollen with importance, ever since the last words of the wedding ceremony had been concluded. I knew what quick changers Noel and Mary, especially Mary, were, and knew that before the guests had time to miss them after the first course of the wedding supper, they would be well on their way.

"Well!" Philip Veritzen's voice sounded beside me. "I have not seen you kiss the bride yet."

"I haven't had that privilege yet," I retorted. "Have you?"

"Oh, yes; I have gone through all the proper motions," he rejoined sardonically. "But I am surprised at your defection. You, the dea ex machina of this wedding, to be laggard in congratulations. It is possible that you are beginning to regret your share in it?"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Facts About "Caissons" Disease

A newspaper clipping tells of the unfortunate death of a diver, one of a group engaged in the building of a San Francisco bridge. This man was the victim of a disease commonly called "bends." It is known medically as "Caisson's disease," but it is also referred to as "divers' paralysis," or "tunnel disease."

Dr. Copeland

At one time, the disease was common among those engaged in work carried on under increased atmospheric pressure, such as is necessary in diving or in tunnel building. Fortunately, the disease is not now encountered as frequently as in other days. This is due to our increased knowledge of the condition and familiarity with the methods necessary for its preservation.

If you have ever visited the observation tower of a high building, you may recall that as you went up or down in the elevator, you had unpleasant sensations in your ears. They come from the changes in pressure at different altitudes.

Under normal conditions, the body automatically adjusts itself to moderate changes in atmospheric pressure. But when the body is too quickly subjected to a change in atmospheric pressure, it is unable to adjust itself. This difference in equilibrium between the internal and external pressure of the body leads to serious changes in the blood circulation and in the blood itself. As a result, certain distressing symptoms occur and even permanent damage may develop.

When a person is exposed to a change of atmospheric pressure, the voice alters. The victim complains of pains in the ears, headache and dizziness. If the change in pressure is sudden, the sufferer complains of excruciating pains in the muscles and joints. This explains the name, "bends," the victim being unable to stand because of the severe discomfort.

The pains may continue for a few hours, or may last as long as two or three days. Other symptons are bleeding of the nose, severe pains in the abdomen, nausea, vomiting, dizziness, difficulty in breathing and unconsciousness. In severe cases, death can be traced to progressive paralysis.

How can this disease be prevented? It can be done by gradually decomposing the air by which the men are surrounded while working. This is accomplished by the building of special chambers in each of which the pressure can be regulated. The men go from one chamber to another, gradualy adjusting themselves to the increased pressure. When work must be done under very high pressure, the men are only permitted to work in short shifts, usually changed every two hours. I am glad to say that as a result of this control, Caisson's disease is now rare.

Great credit must be given to the men who are engaged in this hazardous work and who made possible such gigantic structures as the Holland tunnel in New York City. But certainly credit should also be given to the scientists who have minimized the dangers to the men engaged in such work and who indirectly made possible great engineering feats.

Hints for the Household

Add a little vinegar to the water when poaching eggs. It will hold the white from spreading.

To remove fresh fruit stains from dresses, aprons, napkins, tablecloths, put the material over a bowl and pour boiling water over the spots, holding the kettle high.

A few blasts of air from the ordinary automobile pump will dry the inside of bottles almost instantly.

Contract Bridge

:-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

An Interesting Squeeze

The recent Grand National Tournament of the United States Bridge Association, held in the city of New York, produced an enormous number of interesting hands. All the plays about which the experts love to talk were available in large number, and many brilliant hands were added to the ever-growing collection of Contract gems.

Some hands presented interesting problems both in bidding and play. One of these was a hand played by my husband, Mr. Ely Culbertson, and his partner, Mr. Theodore A. Lightner, in the Semi-Finals of the Pair Championship Event.

South, Dealer.

	♠ A K 5 2 ♡ A 2 ◇ K 9 5 4 ♣ 5 4 2
♠ J 7 ♡ K Q J 10 7 ◇ 10 6 ♣ A 10 8 7	West North East South	♠ Q 9 6 4 3 ♡ 8 5 3 ◇ A Q J 3 ♣ 6
	♠ 10 8 ♡ 9 6 4 ◇ 8 7 2 ♣ K Q J 9 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♡ (1)	Double (2)	Redouble (3)
2 ♣	2 ♡ (4)	Pass	3 ♡ (5)
Pass	4 ♡ (6)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—Some players passed this hand but it is a perfectly sound bid.

2—North is amply prepared for a spade response. The hand contains 3½ honor-tricks and the Takeout Double is sound.

3—Mr. Lightner knows that South cannot respond with spades, and in view of Mr. Culbertson's Opening bid and his own possession of 2 honor-tricks, it seems possible that South may have great difficulty in finding a satisfactory response. The Redouble is correct.

4—The solidity of the trump suit justifies the Rebid.

5—This is a much better bid than to show the very weak spade suit.

6—By plastic valuation Mr. Culbertson visualizes that at worst he should have a finesse for ten tricks. The game bid is fully justified in either rubber or tournament play.

North's Opening lead was the spade King, and when the Dummy was spread on the table, disclosing a singleton in clubs and a five-card suit in spades, North correctly shifted and led the Ace and another trump. At this point Mr. Culbertson won the second trump trick and led the diamond Ten, which North covered with the King. The trick was won in Dummy with the Ace, and a small spade returned. North permitted the Knave to hold this trick, and this was, of course, a very good play; otherwise, it would have been a comparatively simple matter to make the hand, as North, in the lead, could not return a trump, and the return of a club would permit South's trump to be drawn and enough discards secured on the spades to assure the fulfillment of the contract, while the lead of the spade would, of course, prove equally ineffective.

When this trick was won with the Knave, Mr. Culbertson laid down a high trump, drawing the last trump from the South hand. Upon this North discarded the club 2. The fulfillment of the contract was now assured, provided as seemed certain, that North held the spade Ace and had held four diamonds originally. The Club 7 was now led, and South, of course, won the trick. A diamond return might have proved very difficult, but South returned a club, and from this point on the contract could not be defeated. Mr. Culbertson won with the Ace and laid down the two remaining trumps, and North was without defense. He was forced to retain the spade Ace, and hence had to part with one of his remaining diamonds. Thus the contract of four hearts was fulfilled.

TOMORROW'S HAND

If the contract is four spades, reached after an Opening bid of one club by East, and East and West cash two club tricks, how should South play the hand to fulfill his contract?

West, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

	♠ K 7 3 ♡ J 9 7 5 4 3 ◇ A J ♣ 6 3
♠ 2 ♡ 10 6 2 ◇ 10 8 7 5 4 2 ♣ 9 5 4	West North East South	♠ J 10 8 6 ♡ K O ◇ 9 ♣ A K Q J 10 7
	♠ A Q 9 5 4 ♡ A 8 ◇ K Q 6 3 ♣ 8 2

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Make this lip test

LOOK at them . . . and your cheeks, too, without make-up. Do they possess the natural glow of health, which comes from a sufficiency of rich, red blood? If they do, make-up is simple . . . if they don't, read on . . . you may find one of the reasons why your skin is not clear.

It is well to remember that a probable reason why you do not have red lips, rosy cheeks, good health, energy and cheerfulness is that your blood is in a run-down condition. Lack of hemo-glo-bin, the red coloring of the blood, may also indicate a weakened condition of the body . . . loss of strength . . . poor appetite.

Neglect of diet, worry, overwork, colds or sickness, frequently break down and retard the natural development of the red-blood-cells and their oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin.

Why not set in motion the rebuilding of those all-important blood-cells instead of procrastinating and sacrificing your appearance and the feeling of being well and fit?

Though you have no organic disease,* you may have a lowered red-blood-cell count with deficient hemo-glo-bin. When this occurs, and it is very common, you need a tonic. Not just a so-called tonic, but a tonic that has the virtue of stimulating gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on" without exhaustion, as you should naturally.

If your condition suggests a tonic of this kind, we recommend S.S.S. because its value has been proven by generations, as well as by modern scientific appraisal.

S.S.S. is truly a blood and body tonic. It is carried by every drug store in America in two sizes—the larger being more economical.

*Consult a physician, of course, if you suspect any organic trouble.

Some interesting facts about the Blood

About 8% of the body weight is blood. It circulates over the entire body something like 200 times daily. On each trip it passes thru the lungs, before entering the heart, to throw off dead air from the tissues and to take up the vitalizing oxygen to convert food material into tissue repair and energy. The only way food can be utilized in the body to give it heat and energy and replace worn out tissue is to combine it with the oxygen released from the blood in the tissues. Hemo-glo-bin of the red-cells carries the oxygen. It is just as important that the hemo-glo-bin be kept up to Nature's standard to insure that the body tissues get their oxygen and can remove the waste matter as it is to eat nourishing food. Constant rebuilding of the red cells is necessary, as their ordinary life is only about 80 days, and extra help is needed when they are below normal.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Ousting of Carey Denied. Contract Keeps Job Safe. Rusie Rated Hurling King. | Allen Defensive Asset. Flaws in Ring Scoring. Donnelli Tops Kickers.

Evidently the boys who started the story that Max Carey was to be fired at once as manager of the Dodgers, with Casey Stengel or Marty McManus replacing him, had forgotten the official announcement made by the Brooklyn club several weeks ago—that Carey's contract does not contain the 10-day clause and that he can't be released before the end of the 1934 season without being paid in full for the year. Business Manager Bob Quinn denies the latest yarn about a pending dismissal of Carey and tries again to make that point clear. He repeats that Max signed a manager's contract, with the release clause missing, and will be entitled to his salary in full if not retained for the whole season. Otherwise, Carey can be separated from his job only by resignation.

Max Carey

The story also said Carey was displeased because he had not been consulted when Quinn signed Marty McManus, who managed the Boston Red Sox under the Quinn presidency. Max, it was said, suspected Quinn had signed McManus with the idea of making him manager eventually. Quinn produced a telegram in which Carey, reported as not consulted, told him to go ahead and sign McManus. As to Marty's having been taken on with a view to putting him in Carey's place as manager eventually, Quinn says he is positive that if Carey resigned tomorrow, McManus would not get the appointment.

RUSIE RATED ABOVE MATTY AND JOHNSON

At least one of baseball's old-timers doesn't rate Christy Mathewson as the greatest of all pitchers. The exception is Jack Warner, catcher for the Giants and Senators in the long ago. He caught three of the mightiest right-handers of all time—Amos Rusie, Mathewson and Walter Johnson—and thinks Rusie was the best, with Matty and Johnson on a par for second place. Warner says Rusie had the most bewildering curve ball and speed he ever saw, and such perfect control that it was nothing for him, with the count three and two, to blaze a curve over the plate for the third strike.

The old catcher admits that Matty had a world of natural skill, possessed brains and physique, iron nerve and endurance, knew the value of control and made an exhaustive study of every batter in the National League. Yet Matty, at his best, Warner asserts, never showed the speed and curves that Rusie delivered with scarcely an effort. When Warner caught Johnson, the latter was strictly a speed merchant, with unusual strength and plenty of courage, but Jack holds he can truthfully say that Walter's speed did not surpass that of Rusie. In 1890 Rusie set two major league records for a season that still stand. One was 345 strikeouts, the other 276 bases on balls.

PHILS BUY ALLEN FOR DEFENSIVE VALUE

If you're still wondering why the Phillies went to the trouble of getting Ethan Allen, often shifted outfielder, from the Cardinals, you can find the answer in the livelier ball. Manager Jimmy Wilson, who was one of Allen's teammates in St. Louis, says he grabbed Ethan for his defensive value. Wilson believes the new ball is going to do some tall and fancy flying in the Phils' alleged park, and thinks Allen, with his speed and fielding ability, will save more games in the Quaker outfield than a stronger batter would win with extra-base hits.

Ethan Allen

It is Jimmy's plan to use Allen in center field, Chick Fullis in right and Wes Schulmerich in left. They are all fast men, even the heavy Schulmerich being able to get over the ground. Fullis is one of two players the Phils won't trade. The other is Shortstop Dick Bartell. Efforts to swap Don Hurst having failed, Wilson says he intends to use him at first base again.

STILL SEEK SATISFACTORY RING SYSTEM

The absurd-rounds-won system of giving boxing decisions being again on the spot, New York's fistic solons have resumed their hunt for a satisfactory scoring method. They don't like the Illinois system of dividing 10 points between the boxers for each round, and insist that there is no really dependable plan in use anywhere. Once they gave special instructions to three supposedly well-qualified officials and three different decisions were turned in. You'd expect the right answer with former fighters of long experience working as judges, but New York complains that this hasn't worked out, either. The old fighters favor the men using their own styles.

It is held that an official who was a clever boxer unconciously gives the clever boxer the edge over the rough slugger, and that an official who fought along slugging give-and-take lines himself will lean to the principal who goes in and slugs. It is related that Tommy Loughran and Jack Dempsey, for instance, watching the same fight, have been in violent disagreement as to the result. Loughran naturally scores heavily for science, while Dempsey likes the hard hitters.

CALLS DONNELLI SOCCER'S HARDEST KICKER

If the question were to be decided by the vote of Joe Somers, veteran goaltender of the Cleveland Slavia team, the distinction of being the hardest kicker in soccer in this country would go to Buff Donnelli, who plays center forward for Curry. In the 2-to-0 victory over the Slavias at Greenlee Field last Sunday, a win that qualified Curry to play the Stix-Fuller champions at St. Louis next Sunday in one of the semi-finals for the National Challenge Cup, it was a penalty kick by Donnelli that gave the locals their first goal, and Somers declares it was the hardest drive he ever saw. The ball shot past Somers and into the net like a bullet, and he never had a chance to raise a hand. That never happened to him before, Somers says. The veteran goalkeeper has played soccer in fast company in England and Scotland, as well as for many years in this country, and says he never has faced any kicks having the speed of those that Buff drives home, to say nothing of their remarkable accuracy.

Buff Donnelli

In St. Louis Sunday there will be a chance to compare Donnelli with the highly-touted Stix-Fuller center forward, Luiz Gonzales, held to be the best in the country. The Cleveland players, as well as Donnelli's teammates, insist that Buff is every bit as good as Gonzales and under equal conditions would outshine him. Gonzales may have an edge this time, they admit, but only because he has greater players in the forward line to help him. Reverse the conditions, they say, give Donnelli the support that Gonzales receives, and Buff would make the soccer world forget all about the St. Louis star.

Sun-Telegraph to Stage Big Softball Tourney for Amateurs

Soft ball is coming to Pittsburgh!

The new game, much like mushball, will be introduced to thousands of players and hundreds of teams through a mammoth tournament to be staged by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph beginning late in May or early in June.

The winning team from the Pittsburgh district will be sent to the national finals at Chicago by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, which is affiliated with other Hearst newspapers from coast to coast in staging eliminations.

M. J. Pauley, president of the Amateur Softball Association of America, was in Pittsburgh yesterday and today to lay the groundwork for the proposition.

Further details will be announced as soon as they are worked out.

The college basketball team that has shown the greatest improvement of any in the district during the past couple weeks, West Virginia's now formidable Mountaineers makes its second invasion of the campaign of this city tonight. The Mountaineers meet Duquesne on the Bluff court.

The last time the West Virginians were in town they took a sound licking from Pitt. On that night they couldn't do anything right. But since then, they have put Wash-Lee, Wesleyan, Bucknell, Temple, Georgetown and Wash-Jeff over the jumps, have clambered into second place in the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference and apparently are going as strong as any varsity in the section.

TEAM IS TIRED

The boys will have to battle the Dukes with less than 24 hours rest since they bumped Wash-Jeff at Morgantown last night, but so easy were the Presidents that Coach Glenn was able to rest his first strangers and will have a fairly fresh outfit to toss into the path of the Dukes tonight.

Duquesne will not be able to present its regular lineup tonight, either, although the revised battle array that Coach Davies has in mind is no slouch. Dudey Moore, the veteran guard, is limping about with a sprained ankle which has been slow to respond to treatment, and will be on the bench at the outset of tonight's struggle. The lineup shift will bring Paul Birch back to Dudey's guard position and insert Jim MacDougal into the forward job usually handled by Birch.

The freshmen fives of the rival institutions will clash in the preliminary.

Maxie Hannum, Tech's basketball coach, didn't lose two men as a result of the mid-term examinations. No, sir, not a bit of it. He lost four.

TWO MORE GONE

Following on the heels of the announcement, made exclusively in yesterday's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, that Johnny Ewalt, center, and Joe Macalka, sophomore forward, were out as a result of losing decisions to the faculty, came the word that two other Tartan varsity squad members had been dropped from the rolls and that a fifth might also be numbered among the lost sheep. The two who are definitely out are Charley Vukovich and Mike Breve. The doubtful one is Charley Spisak, who, as late as last night, had not registered for the second semester.

A hurry call was sent out for varsity candidates yesterday, and resulted in the appearance in uniforms of Dutch Croft, Steve Trbovich and Frank Sanford, all members of the football squad. As a result, Coach Hauum was able to put two teams on the floor for the drill and to count on at least 10 players for use against Penn State tomorrow night. If Spisak returns to school, he'll make the eleventh.

SILVERMAN AT FORWARD

Capt. Red Silverman has been moved to a forward, Brad Edelblut to center, Ted Riggs and Freedel placed at the guards with Paul Gibson placed at the other forward post.

Tomorrow night, Pitt's varsity squad will depart for South Bend, Ind., and another tough ball game with Notre Dame. The Irish are setting themselves for this one, and will be as much "up" for the Panthers as were the Panthers for the Irishers when they came here a couple weeks back with a 22-game winning streak.

Bill Rihanek, Former Pitt Star, Married

Dr. William James Rihanek, former University of Pittsburgh basketball star, made St. Valentine's Day one to be remembered. He was married at noon to Miss Evelyn Jeannette Harper, of Castle Shannon boulevard, Mt. Lebanon. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. E. Dozer at the home of the bride's parents.

Schmeling Gets $12,000, Hamas $9,000 for Go

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Steve Hamas, the Passaic (N. J.) youngster, who battered Max Schmeling to defeat in 12 rounds, has gone home, carrying the spoils of his conquest—a check for $9,000 and the boxing gloves he wore in victory.

With his wife, he hurried to his North Jersey home, where his father is seriously ill. The boxing gloves go to his father. From there he plans to go to Miami, possibly in time to witness the Loughran-Carnera title bout, February 28.

Schmeling, meanwhile, collected $12,000 as his share of the proceeds and went to New York, whence he sails for Europe Saturday. His destination is Barcelona, Spain, where he and Paulino Uzcudun battle in April.

Coach Stagg Predicts More Thrilling Football

A. A. STAGG . . . GRAND OLD MAN . . . HERE TO TALK TO SCHOOL CHILDREN

Veteran Coach Here For Series of Addresses

By JULIUS LEVIN

Dr. Amos Alonzo Stagg, the "Grand Old Man" of football, on his way back to the College of the Pacific from the annual meeting of the Football Rules' Association, held recently in Atlanta, is a visitor in Pittsburgh and will make a tour of the local high schools to talk on his experiences as a football coach.

The local tour got under way this morning and will continue until next Wednesday. While in Pittsburgh, Dr. Stagg will be the guest at a dinner to be given by the Western Pennsylvania Alumni Association of Springfield College, in Skibo Inn tomorrow evening at 6:30. The majority of the local high school athletic instructors are members of the Springfield Alumni Association.

FAVORS NEW RULES

Commenting on the changes in the football playing code adopted at the Atlanta gathering, Dr. Stagg predicted that the game would provide more thrilling plays than ever next fall. He said:

"I always have been in favor of the changes made in the football rules at Atlanta, and I feel certain they will have a tendency to open up the game next season. We are going to see plenty of scoring and some fine goal-line stands as well. The changes place a premium on a good quarterback."

The veteran football coach, who is now director of athletics at the College of the Pacific after serving the University of Chicago in a similar capacity for 40 years, said that he was well pleased with his position on the coast. Dr. Stagg continued:

"The College of the Pacific is a school of small enrollment, but the spirit among the student body is excellent. We have a lot of trouble getting material for our athletic teams, as most of the high school athletes enroll at Stanford, Southern California, Santa Clara, Washington, California and the remaining bigger universities."

BREAK FOR LAYDEN

Regarding the appointment of Elmer Layden as athletic director at Notre Dame, succeeding Heartley (Hunk) Anderson, Dr. Stagg said that Elmer was fortunate in that he did not succeed the late Knute K. Rockne. In connection

RING SANCTIONS IGNORED BY COMMISSION

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Amateur bouts, Sixth Ward Progressive Club, McKeesport.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

A. A. U. sanctions for boxing shows or tournaments throughout Pennsylvania are under State Athletic Commission ban and will not be recognized until the A. A. U. authorities arrange a meeting with the commission to settle the status of the sport.

Action to this effect was taken by the commission at its meeting in Philadelphia this week, Dr. W. D. McClelland, Pittsburgh's commissioner, announced upon his return home. The commission voted to suspend Rule 1 of its code covering amateur boxing, which reads:

"All amateur bouts must have the sanction of the Amateur Athletic Union before a permit will be granted by the State Athletic Commission."

TO DISREGARD SANCTIONS

As matters stand now, the commission will approve a permit for any amateur show or tourney it deems fit, regardless of whether it meets with the sanction of the A. A. U. If the A. A. U. decides to suspend any contestants in these bouts, or their handlers or the promoters, that is up to the A. A. U. The chances are that there will be no amateur boxing until the entire matter is adjusted, for few boxers will run the risk of long suspensions.

The commission acted upon a report by Dr. McClelland of the situation which wrecked the Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U. junior tournament at the Keystone A. C. last Saturday night. Other complaints were in from other parts of the state, and the board decided to close down on all permits for shows sanctioned by the A. A. U. In leaving the door open for the granting of commission permits to unsanctioned shows, it clearly divorced its relationship with the amateur sports governing body.

MEETING IN PHILADELPHIA

The meeting between the commission and state A. A. U. officers, when arranged, will be held in the Philadelphia office.

A permit already has been issued for next Monday night's inter-city show at Motor Square Garden, which will not be affected by the drastic ruling.

Dr. McClelland, who witnessed the defeat of Max Schmeling by Steve Hamas, said the former Penn State football player shaped up as a real threat throughout the bout, while Schmeling was his old methodical self, perhaps slowed down a bit, but still a better than ordinary heavyweight fighter. Hamas' improvement was the amazing feature of the battle, he said.

A. A. U. AWAITS NOTICE

President William S. Haddock, of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U., said today his organization has received no official notification from the State Athletic Commission of any action directed against it by that body. He added:

"Naturally we can make no statement or take cognizance of the situation until we are duly informed. However, I have no hesitancy in stating that the A. A. U. will be able to justify any of its actions and stand on its own feet in any investigation which may be made."

U. S. G. A. NAMES LOCAL MEN

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The sub-committees of the United States Golf Association, which carry on the specialized work of the organization through the year, have been appointed by President Herbert Jaques to serve for 1934.

All of the 1933 chairmen were reappointed except two, Leo S. Bauman, replacing William H. Aston, of Detroit, as head of the greens section advisory committee and Arhur M. Wood, of Princeton University, heading the intercollegiate affairs committee in place of John E. Parker, Jr., of Yale.

John G. Jackson, of New York, again was named head of the rules of golf and implements and ball committee; Prescott S. Bush, of New York, head of the championship committee; J. Frederic Byers, of Pittsburgh, of international relations, and Ganson Depew, of Buffalo, of public links and green section executive.

Serving with Vice President Jackson on the rules of golf committee, are Bush, Byers, William C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburgh, Angus V. Hambro, of London; former President H. H. Ramsay, of New York; Secretary Reid, Wynant D. Vanderpool, of Morristown, N. J.; Alan Wilson, of Philadelphia, and R. Arthur Wood, of Chicago.

M'Neely Purchases Sacramento Club

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The Sacramento Baseball Club has been purchased by Earl McNeely, manager since 1932 McNeely completed a deal with the banks which took the Pacific Coast League club away from Lewis Moreing because of failure to meet financial obligations.

McNeely is 35 years old. He started professional ball with Sacramento in 1922. He went up to the Washington Senators in 1924 and played eight years in the outfield for the American League team.

OLD CARNEGIE PREPARED TO CLINCH SOCCER LOOP TITLE

CLAN DOUGLAS TO BE MET AT BEADLING

By TOM BIRKS

Old Carnegie will make an attempt to settle, once and for all, the Central District Soccer League pennant Saturday afternoon as the Beadling eleven tackles the invading Clan Douglas booters at Beadling.

Last Saturday the Arsenal eleven had its last opportunity to nose out Old Carnegie, but failed to take advantage of it, Carnegie winning by a one-sided score.

At the conclusion of the league race, it is likely that the Saturday teams will swing into the competition for the charity cup, with the proceeds of the games to be devoted to the fund for the Scottish room at the Cathedral of Learning.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has offered an excursion rate for the game if 50 fans will make the trip. The cost for the round trip will be $10. The train will leave at 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening, returning at 6 o'clock Sunday evening.

The St. Louis management is paying the expenses of 15 persons, so 13 players and two officials will make the trip. Players Barowsky and Williamson, recently signed by Curry, will not be taken along, according to Manager Johnny Brace.

On Sunday, Heidelberg and the Castle Shannon Riehls hold the local spotlight in the national amateur cup replay scheduled for Greenlee Field.

STAGG SEES NEW THRILLS

with Layden's elevation to the position at Notre Dame, Dr. Stagg said:

"Anderson was unfortunate in that he was chosen to fill the shoes of the greatest coach of modern football. He did as well as could be expected under the conditions that prevailed at Notre Dame. I do not think that any man could have done better. Layden, starting at Notre Dame, will have a chance to rebuild. Had he succeeded Rockne he would have suffered the same fate as Anderson."

Dr. Stagg stopped off in Washington, D. C., on his way to Pittsburgh. While in the capital he visited Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, and Donald R. Richberg, attorney for the NRA, both of whom starred on his track team at the University of Chicago. Stagg also revealed the fact that Attorney William B. MacCracken, central figure in the air mail scandal, was a cheer leader at the University of Chicago.

Stagg began his tour of the city high schools with talks at South and Peabody today. Langley and Allderdice will be visited tomorrow. Perry and Allegheny next Monday, Westinghouse and Schenley on Tuesday and Carrick and South Hills on Wednesday.

Leon See's 'Inside Story' Of Carnera's Career

EDITORIAL FOREWORD

Returning to America in February, 1931, Carnera—despite two broken ribs—outpoints Maloney at Miami and breezes through another quick K. O. routine. He is signed for a match with Max Schmeling after the latter wins the championship in June, but the German returned to his Fatherland and did not come back for the expected bout. So, the author matched his giant with Jack Sharkey, the fight was postponed 15 days because the American hurt a finger, and then Primo—shortly before the battle—was knocked cold in an auto accident . . .

CHAPTER XXVII

By LEON SEE

Developer and Former Manager of Primo Carnera, World Heavyweight Boxing Champion

But let us go back to the accident and to the lone knockout in Primo's career thus far:

Two days before the Carnera-Sharkey fight at Brooklyn, N. Y., Primo was motoring from his training quarters at Orangeburg, N. J., in a car which he had rented for several days while his own was being repaired. Driven by his Japanese chauffeur, Carnera was accompanied by two New York newspapermen, by his trainer, Maurice Eudeline, and by my eldest son.

Jack Sharkey

At a turning in the road, Primo's car and another met with a terrific side-swiping jolt. The shock was extremely violent. The other car was overturned and the occupants of the boxer's car were shaken up and tossed about. The two journalists were considerably battered, and Eudeline was wounded in the head. Fortunately, my son, who was seated on a bracket seat in front of Primo, seeing the inevitable accident, had quickly turned around and pushed with all his might against the giant behind him. Without this opportune gesture, the fight might not have taken place two days later.

In spite of my son's action, the 260-odd pounds of Carnera were thrown forward and Primo lost consciousness from the shock. He was carried into a neighboring gas station, where it was possible to restore his senses and to hide him from the curious. It took half an hour to bring him to.

Strangely enough, Carnera did not have any visible wound and just how violent the nervous shock had been to him is a matter of conjecture . . . Certainly it must have been great indeed. However, I did not ask for a postponement. The open-air boxing season was far advanced (we were in October) and it would have been impractical to put off that fight any further.

The two newspapermen (Joe Williams and Harry Grayson, boxing experts both) made but a brief report of the accident. They may disagree with me as to its effect on Primo, but . . . I repeat, I am still of the belief that Carnera had not recovered from that severe nervous shake-up when he fought the man who was to become world champion the following June.

CARNERA ESCAPES KNOCKOUT

The details of the battle are still fresh in mind. I will simply recall that in the fourth round Carnera went down from a brilliant left hook to the jaw, he managed to box at least evenly through the tenth round but from then on it was all Sharkey, who was at his best that night. Primo bravely stayed the limit of 15 rounds by holding off Jack with a long and clever left while retreating, and by avoiding as many exchanges as possible. It was after Primo's wonderful left tired a bit around the tenth round that the sharpshooting Sharkey got under my Big Boy's defense.

My pupil learned much in that long and hard battle. He showed that when he knocked out Sharkey in their second bout, a year and a half later.

Though Sharkey soundly whipped Carnera in October, 1931, that setback gave me the definite conviction that Primo would be champion of the world. I knew how that auto accident, two days before the fight, had upset him tremendously; in spite of that, he made a very good showing against the best boxer in America—a master who was at his best that night.

DEVELOPS RAPIDLY

My Ambling Alp had only a little more than three years' actual ring experience, and I know full well that a boxer does not reach his fistic zenith within five years.

Based on my chimerical idea of making a ring champion and its almost incredible method, Carnera had progressed infinitely faster than an average heavyweight; neither ambition nor youthful vitality had been pounded out of him, and he could not help but grow better during the remaining two years of—you can call it—a "Fistic Five-Year Plan."

It was very evident at the end of his third year (1931) of apprenticeship, that he was already almost equal to the best and that, before 12 months had passed, he ought to be invincible.

Against Sharkey, he received (so to speak) the first exceptionally hard blow of his career. For the first time in more than 50 bouts, my Big Boy was knocked down cleanly and took his full nine-second count while clearing his head.

KEEPS HEAD IN CRISIS

When Primo was floored by Jack's smashing left hook to the chin in that exciting fourth round at Brooklyn, N. Y., it was the first time that Carnera had ever been toppled by a clean blow. That hook surely was "a Sunday punch" as the experts term a fighter's best wallop.

Yet Primo responded nobly when that knockout was so near. He landed flat on his back, but got to his knee quickly, looking to his corner while the referee tolled the count. He started to arise at "six" but—and this is proof that Primo kept his head—he saw Sharkey had merely tagged the neutral corner and had returned in a second or two, poised in back of the referee, ready to sock as soon as Carnera got to his feet.

To Primo dropped down again to one knee, otherwise he might have got what Dempsey gave Firpo. Sharkey and others raised a stormy protest, but the referee knew the prevailing rules and lived up to them. Sharkey, in anger, tried to run from the ring, but his manager, John Buckley, blocked the way; Primo got to his feet before the count of 10, and was never off them for the remaining 11 rounds.

PRIMO KEEN THINKER

Had my Big Boy been the crude novice of two or three years before, he would have completely lost his head and have arisen when Sharkey, "set for the kill," was not in the neutral corner, but right in back of the referee. Yes, he would have tottered to his feet as Firpo did with Dempsey on top of him . . . and he would have met a like K. O. fate, then and there.

There was no question of Primo's fighting head after the Sharkey fight. And I never doubted the champion quality of his heart.

In the ring, he might look dumb and awkward to many, but, I assure such critics, that never will casual observation deceive them more. If you know Jack Sharkey well, he probably would tell you the same. He should know . . . he should know. . . .

After the Sharkey setback, always in keeping with my original idea, I decided to give Primo several months' rest. He wanted to visit his people, and so we returned to Europe. He hurried to his beloved village, where he enjoyed a family reunion and public acclaim for weeks.

Carnera's next bout was in January 25, 1932, more than three months after the Sharkey defeat. After his long rest, he resumed training. He had kept in his usual good condition. The time had now come to let him fight on his own. A new era was opening for him—that of real contests, inasmuch as his defensive ability had become close to perfect.

See's 'French' Lesson Saves The Preem

Although Bill Duffy and I never had one argument of any kind re financial questions or about Carnera's training, we were not always of the same opinion when it came to handling him while in his corner. Of course, I knew Primo better and I could better judge how he was to be advised during a fight.

During Carnera's first bout with Sharkey, my Big Boy was very much shaken by that fourth-round knockdown, though he boxed instinctively in admirable form. I kept urging him to keep retreating, with his long left out to hold Sharkey off. I also urged him not to let the American mix it—all these instructions voiced in French; otherwise, the first hard punch would have finished him and that would have been the first K. O. of his career, a thing I was most eager to avoid. But Duffy, also in Primo's corner, wanted the giant to attack.

"How do you say 'fight' in French?"

There was no time to argue, so I flashed this answer:

"Gauche! Gauche!"

It was a little lesson in French for Friend Duffy and I hope he will forgive it when he reads it here. LEON SEE.

ALL-STARS BOW

TORONTO, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The Toronto Maple Leafs, a brilliant group of players themselves, overwhelmed the hastily assembled National Hockey League all-star team, 7 to 3, last night in a benefit game for Irvin (Ace) Bailey, injured Toronto hockey player.

A crowd of 14,074 paid $20,909 to see the wide-open contest which set an all-time high for the number of famous players assembled on one rink. The entire "gate" went to Bailey, who suffered a fractured skull in a collision with Eddie Shore, of the Boston Bruins, at Boston, December 12, and who is not expected to play hockey again.

Bailey and Shore received a great ovation when they came out on the ice before the game. The injured player faced the puck to start the contest and distributed to the members of both teams medals presented by Leo Dandurand, of the Montreal Canadiens. When Shore's name was called and Ace handed him the medal and chatted with him for a while the roar of the crowd nearly lifted the roof. It was Bailey's first public appearance since his injury.

FEMALE CHOSEN DOG CHAMP

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The reigning queen of American dogdom is a wire-haired fox terrier, Flornell Spicy Bit of Halleston, descendant of a long line of distinguished prize-getters, varmint slayers and old slipper chewers.

Spicy Bit was crowned last night at the Westminster Dog Show, climaxing three days of competition during which she confidently frisked through one ring battle after another.

Her supreme triumph left no doubt as to her quality. Three judges acclaimed her, one in the fox terrier division, another in the terrier division, another in the final struggle with five other dogs which represented the best in the six main groups.

LAFRANCE TOPS LACROSSE SCORERS

Harry LaFrance, tireless center, will be sporting a 10-point lead in the individual scoring race when the Yellow Jackets, winner of the first half title, pry the lid from the American and International Lacrosse Association's second half campaign at Motor Square Garden tomorrow night.

The Chicago Blue Ribbons, who finished third in the first half race, are to provide the opposition. The fray originally was billed for Saturday, but the date was changed in order that the locals might get a day of rest before playing in Detroit, Sunday night.

LaFrance, figures for the first half of the campaign show, has tallied 50 goals and assisted on eight others to roll up the impressive total of 58 points. Albert Vincent, sharpshooting forward, strengthened his hold on second place by boosting his total to 48 points, 12 more than Al McLean, in third place, and 19 more than Claude Jennings, in fourth position.

Percy Langevin, whose 10 assists attest to his ability as a play maker, leads the defense men with 21 points, two more than his younger brother Norm.

Norm, however, leads in another department. He has drawn 10 minor penalties to set the pace in the matter of time spent in the cooler. The individual scoring records:

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Steve Swetonic should win regularly for Bill McKechnie, provided his arm in O. K. . . . Braves Field is a pitchers' paradise and, therefore, a big sandtrap for the good and bad hitters . . . It seems the wind currents off the ocean are hampering the batters most of the time . . . It is unusual for a Boston regular to hit .300 or better at the big Wigwam. A lot of "long outs" are recorded at the home of the Braves.

Pie Traynor would rather see Swetonic in the box in the last two or three innings nursing a one-run lead, in preference to almost any other hurler you can name . . . Steve's bad elbow often goes haywire during the course of a regulation battle, but he's one tough hombre in reeling off a few closing chapters, especially if his club is in front. He goes to town under these conditions . . . Traynor says it is courage plus smartness.

Braves Field is not as large now as it was in the days before the advent of the lively ball . . . The Boston boys used to take up a large part of a week to get as many as two runs off Wilbur Cooper . . . The star southpaw in Boston was generally at his best . . . Since Wilbur's day bleachers have been erected which give Home-Run Berger a home-run zone, yet one has to be a hefty socker to get the rocket as far as the seats.

George Gibson says he will rule medicine ball out of the Pirates' spring training curriculum . . . The players have so much sport in this form of practice they sometimes hurt each other . . . The big leather balls are passed about in a circle of almost any size . . . The trick is to catch one of the ball handlers off guard . . . When a player is struck in the head he feels bad effects for days . . . It is a fine limbering up stunt, although it didn't seem to do the Hoover cabinet much good.

SPORT VIGNETTES

A pun may be the lowest form of wit, but who was it that said an Englishman is the slowest form of wit?

"How," demands Jimmy Wilson, "can you compare Ted Yarosz with Harry Greb, as you did yesterday in discussing a 'dream bout' between the pair? You know very well Greb would have slaughtered Yarosz, as he did all of the other fellows he met during his brilliant career. Greb fought them at all weights and even wanted to tackle Dempsey, and he was only a middleweight. Can Yarosz do that?"

Glad you brought that up, Jimmy. How many of our present crop of heavyweights, or the heavyweights who were around in Greb's time, would have a picnic with our Teddy Yarosz, who is one of the hardest fellows to hit we've seen in many a year? And, with his fast-moving style, wouldn't Teddy smack them around a lot?

Another reader says he wants to see Yarosz in there with some of the hitters before he'll join the "coming champion" bandwagon. Tut, tut. A fellow on the order of Yarosz is right at home among the hitters. He beats them easier than he does the boxers. Makes them strike out, as he did Smith and Sammy Slaughter. You can't hit what you can't see unless you're lucky.

A rather bright idea that, comparing Yarosz and Greb. Stirs up a controversy, and there's nothing like a good old controversy to fill columns and columns and columns and columns. Why didn't we think of that before? Everybody has an opinion and likes to express it. Here's your chance.

You couldn't help but feel sorry for Jimmy Smith in his bout with Yarosz. There he was, the hero of a bout with Young Terry, who holds a win over Yarosz, looking like a chump for a night. No one knew it better than he. His right is his best punch and he couldn't reach Teddy with it, so he started rushing in with lefts to the body and was warned no less than four times in one round for hitting low. It was the only way he could score and he couldn't get home without running the risk of disqualification. He finally got over it, but that fifth round will go down in his memory as one of the most embarrassing moments of his young life.

Elmer Layden says he has signed Chet Grant, a South Bend sports editor and former Notre Dame quarterback, as his backfield coach because he is an old head who knows the Notre Dame system. Bologny. Didn't Hunk Anderson say a couple of years ago that the local sports scribes beat the Irish in their game with Pitt? Anybody will tell you a football scribe can coach a team. Didn't you ever read their Monday stories?

Glenn Cunningham and Bill Bonthron run against each other in the mile feature of the New York A. C. games Saturday night. The winner will finish on Friday.—HARRY KECK.

UPSETS MARK PIN GAMES

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI

Several upsets were registered in the Metropolitan Tenpin League last night. The Iron City team made a clean sweep of three matches from the second-place Fort Pitt outfit. Cerie's 640 score enabled the Elba team to surprise the Ko Ko Mo Kids by taking two out of three games, and the last-place Keystone Athletic Club, led by Hamilton, upset the dope bucket by copping two out of three from Auditorium No. 2. St. Michaels snagged two out of three from the Braddock Colts.

The E. M. Tuckers increased their lead on first place by registering a clean sweep over the Pittsburgh Athletic Club team. In other games, Lawlors annexed two out of three from Mucks, while the Silver Toppers took three from the Nuss Brothers and Roxian won two out of three rfom Auditorium No. 1.

The Metropolitan League rolls again Friday night.

LOCAL TENNIS LEADERS IN SESSION

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

J. Howard Moore, of College Avenue, and Frank S. McClintock, of the University Club, have been appointed to the executive committee of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, according to President J. Phillips Davis. The two new members are past presidents of the local net body and are thus under a hitherto uninvoked by-law, eligible for selection to round out the executive group, which until now has been composed entirely of incumbent officers of the association.

POSITION LEFT VACANT

Accompanying announcement of the choice of Moore and McClintock, comes word that the executive committee will convene today in a session for consideration of problems left the district outfit by the recent Middle States L. T. A. meeting at Philadelphia and the annual conclave of the U. S. L. T. A. here last Saturday. The chief matters up for discussion are the choice of another Western Pennsylvania delegate to the Middle States executive committee; tentative date for the proposed Allegheny Country Club grass court invitation singles event, and determination of a policy for pursuit of the National Public Parks championships in 1935.

Elevation of Davis to the Middle States vice presidency last month accorded the Pittsburgh leader ex-officio position on the sectional executive board. The traditional Steel City spot on the committee was thus left unoccupied and, in order to build up West Penn representation in Eastern net circles, P. T. A. authorities deem it expedient to fill the vacancy at once.

The Allegheny invitation affair and the National municipal tourney will be given plenty of thought. Difficulty in finding a suitable week for the A. C. C. get-together prevented its sanction at the Philadelphia pow-wow, but it is likely that the Pittsburghers, disappointed by failure to land the 1934 National parks classic, which was voted to Mineapolis over the P. T. A. bid last Saturday, will push the Sewickley Heights proposition hard and it is just as probable that Middle States moguls will be disposed to slip their Western confreres a break after the municipal mix-up, in which the M. S. L. T. A. balloted solidly and alone for the local cause.

LOCALS DISGRUNTLED

It is no secret that the shunting of the 1934 public parks tournament to Minneapolis disgruntled hopeful Pittsburgh racquet potentates no little, not so much the loss of the event as the fact that the P. T. A. request, filed through apparently regular channels, was never recorded at U. S. L. T. A. headquarters.

President Davis indicated displeasure at and after the U. S. L. T. A. seance and has already formally asked for the 1935 parks gathering. Today's meeting will be requested to ratify this move.

STOCKS CLIMB IN CAUTIOUS TRADING

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—The stock market again put a foot forward today, but, with the feeling that governmental eyes were still upon it, discretion continued to be the watchword.

With the exception of the aircrafts, which further reflected the airmail controversy, most groups advanced fractionally to around 2 points. Various specialties found followings. The activity was more pronounced than yesterday. Cotton got up about $1 a bale, grains were steady and silver and rubber were firm. Foreign exchanges were narrow. Bonds moved up moderately.

New highs for the past year or more were reached by shares of Montgomery Ward, American Can and some others with advances of a point or more. The rails regained popularity. The utilities and alcohols generally lagged. United Aircraft and Douglas Aircraft were off fractionally to around a point.

While some brokers looked for further irregularities in equity price movements during the hearings on the exchange control bill at Washington, others spoke of the "gradual return of confidence" and anticipated an early resumption of public interest in stocks as well as higher grade bonds.

The observation was made by some analysts that actual business news, which has been of the brightest recently, may have lost some of its importance as a market weathervane due to other factors.

At the same time, various statisticians were predicting that, according to present indications, February industrial production may score the largest percentage advance over the January level since the war boom of 1915. In addition, the current month was expected to make the best showing, as compared with the corresponding year-earlier month, since 1932. Considerable significance was attached to the February advance in view of the expanded consumer demand which was said to have substantially reduced excessive stocks built up last summer.

A number of operators in the market were said to be holding back further commitments for the moment because of the unsettled poliutical situation in Continental Europe. Some buying of the metal shares, however, was understood to have been based on the European disturbances, the expectancy of trouble between the Russians and Japanese and that Washington will make good on what has been termed "the rehabilitation of silver."

FRENCH BANK LOSES GOLD

International News Service.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—A new record for withdrawal of gold from the Bank of France was established during the week ending February 9, according to the bank statement issued today.

Since February 9, however, withdrawals have diminished and there was no indication of serious alarm regarding the situation.

The statement said that gold reserves held against the paper franc had been reduced by the withdrawals from 79.10 per cent to 77.79 per cent.

Will Canada Get Security Business?

By B. C. FORBES

I hear that certain large New York Stock Exchange brokers are investigating the feasibility of establishing a thoroughly-equipped branch, or branches, in Canada in case Washington passes legislation unduly hampering the doing of commission business in this country.

Mr. Forbes

Toronto and Montreal are being looked over.

It will be recalled that when excessive taxes on stock trading in New York were threatened, the exchange authorities immediately planned to set up another institution in Jersey. This move was interpreted as having had something to do with inducing taxleviers to recant.

Whether ways and means could be devised by brokers to get from under an ultra-restrictive federal law by setting up facilities in Canada is open to question. But, apparently, this possibility is being thoroughly investigated by forward-looking brokerage firms.

Certain it is that, regardless of statutory restrictions, people will find, or invent some way of giving vent to their penchant for speculating.

NEWSPAPERS are devoting their largest headlines to Austria. But a much more common theme of conversation is the cancellation of all air mail contracts by Washington and the official attitude toward Lindbergh's protest.

The White House criticism that Lindbergh apparently was eager for publicity recalls to my mind the advice his father-in-law, Dwight Morrow, gave Dwight, Jr., when the latter attained manhood. He said:

"You will find, my boy, that the world is divided into two main classes, those who are anxious to do things and those who are more anxious to get credit. I hope you will decide to belong to the former class. The competition is far less intense than in the latter class."

Dwight Morrow, himself, was among the most modest and unassuming of men. Thus far his only son, now assistant to the president of his alma mater, Amherst, has followed in his father's footsteps. Several workers on the Morrow estate sport a more expensive car than young Dwight's.

As for Lindbergh, he would rather "walk a mile" than face people or publicity. He carries shyness to unbelievable lengths.

His whole life is wrapped up in aviation. His most intimate cronies are fellow-aviators. His latest action, so different from any other step he ever took, is accepted by his intimates as having been prompted by the feeling that many of his aviator friends would suffer if deprived of their customary means of earning a livelihood.

SENTIMENT IN Wall street lately has undergone modification. Bullishness has given way to more or less uncertainty.

JUDGING BY the numerous requests for permission to reprint what was recently said in this column on "how to sell," very keen interest exists today regarding the whole subject of selling and salesmen. A new slant is given in the following letter:

"Has it ever occurred to you how many manufacturers are financing the sales of their business at the expense of the salesmen?

"Did you know that the salesman has been unable to obtain recognition in Washington with reference to a code for his craft?

"Why should a salesman be expected to go out and cover his territory at his own expense and wait from thirty to ninety days for his commissions?

"A manufacturer will set aside money for his executives; he is obliged to pay his operators and all of his help weekly or semi-monthly; he must pay for his machinery and his rent; yet, when it comes to paying for the selling of his merchandise, he passes the burden to the individual salesman.

"If, as you say, the return of prosperity depends on the salesmen, why in the name of good common business sense don't some of the bright minds of business get together and get the traveling man started right? Just as soon as manufacturers will finance the salesmen themselves, just that soon you will see a very appreciative expansion in sales."

Surely it is permissible to reason that spring should bring still more pronounced improvement.

ASKS BANK ACT REVISIONS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—(AP.)—Broad revision of the 1933 banking act was recommended today by J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of the currency, in his annual report covering a period "which seriously threatened complete collapse of the banking system of the nation."

O'Connor proposed more than a dozen changes in the important law of last June which directed national banks to divorce themselves from investment affiliates as an aftermath of exposures of interlocking practices before the Senate Banking Committee. He said:

"This legislation as a whole is sound and contains many much needed provisions of law, but like most major legislation, application by administrative officers reveals certain features which in practice work in a cumbersome manner or bring about situations which its framers did not intend.

FOURTH DEGREE

By K. S. DAIGER

"Of Cleveland and Paige, I have never been dead sure. Both of them heard Tim Stokes' yarn. If either of them is guilty, he has left behind him a fatal clue in the shape of that electric bulb. What is he likely to do under the circumstances?"

"Go after it, you mean?" I asked Anderson.

"Certainly. He will believe that all suspicion has been diverted from himself—that's why I accused Stokes of the murder—and that we have abandoned our investigation. He knows that upon this night alone there will be no one in the Paige house. Some time after dark and before morning, he will go into that cellar and put a fresh electric bulb in that socket."

"And we'll be there to nab him," I exclaimed with enthusiasm.

Anderson smiled.

"I'll be there. I don't think you will."

"Why not?" I cried. "You promised to let me see this thing through. Why won't you let me be in at the finish?"

"I don't believe that you'll be able to stand the strain, let alone the possibility of a hand-to-hand encounter with a desperate murderer. For that man will be armed and ready to let us have it."

Anderson Consents

"I'm fine," I answered childishly. "And as for a fight, why I have a license to carry a revolver and to wear an official police star." And then seeing that Anderson wasn't wavering, I added recklessly and untruthfully, "and besides I'm a dead shot. I've taken all kinds of prizes at rifle shooting and I can kill any man with the first bullet. You're making a great mistake in not taking me."

"Really?" said Anderson beginning to laugh. "Well, if you promise that you won't faint on my hands, I'll consider it. If you feel able, drive your own car out the Towson state road tonight. After dark. After dark, mind you. Park it in the woods somewhere, a good distance from the house and cut through the country to the first cellar window on the right. It will be unlocked. Give a soft whistle when you drop into the cellar. If you don't you're likely to get a bullet through you. If we're not there hide behind the furnace or in the coal bin. Be certain that you are armed. Under no circumstances are you to make a light, not even a match. Understand? Remember this particularly for one glimmer of light will ruin us."

I nodded in understanding.

And then I saw Anderson do one of those things, so unusual in a police official, one of those tender comprehending things that had endeared him to the hearts of his men.

To Accuse Stokes

He walked over to the cot where the burglar Stokes was beginning to revive.

"It was all right, wasn't it?" he asked weakly as he saw Anderson.

"Right as a trigger, Tim," he said heartily, pretending not to notice the mystification of Dr. Dandy. "It was fine. You told us exactly what you did before, and I'm sure that it was the truth. You gave us one important fact which you didn't mention before and I think that it is going to save your life."

Tim heaved a great sigh of relief.

"Only for a little while, Tim," went on the Inspector, still holding his hand, "for a little while the whole world is going to look mighty black for you. We're going to accuse you of this murder——"

"Accuse me, Cap?" with a little moan.

"Yes, Tim, we've got to accuse you. And we've got to abuse you and make out that we think you are guilty. And let the newspapers say unkind things about you. But that's because we don't want the real murderer to get any idea that he's suspected. You'll play up, won't you?"

"Betcher life," answered Tim promptly. "If you say so, Cap. You're sure it's all right?"

"I'm not certain, Tim, but I hope it is—and I think it is. Try to trust me for a little while, will you?"

"Cap," said Tim, looking pretty sheepish and coloring, "if I ever get out of this mess, I promise you one thing—I'm going straight, so help me!"

"That's fine, Tim," said Anderson heartily, leaning over and patting him on the shoulder. "That's spoken like a man. And when all this is over, you come to me and we'll get you a job and see that your friends let you alone!"

Prepare for Story

I rushed back to the office and wrote three columns concerning the injection of the truth serum. Reynolds drifted in when I had almost finished.

"Don't go, Bob," I stopped long enough to say. "I want to talk to you a minute."

Then I sent a copy boy after sandwiches and coffee, for I wasn't taking any chances on being too late for my rendezvous with Anderson.

When the last line had gone up to the composing room, I turned to Reynolds who was perched on a neighboring chair and watching me thoughtfully.

"Come close, Bob," I said, with ill-suppressed excitement. "Don't let a breath of this out, will you?"

Then I told him of Anderson's plan for that night.

"Maybe it's a dud and maybe we're going to catch the murderer," I finished. "But this is what I want to know: can you keep a couple of men on tonight just in case the big story does break? God, wouldn't it be a scoop!"

"I'll stay myself," exclaimed Reynolds, whose excitement almost equaled mine. "I'll come down at 10 and I'll write all the first part of the story—description of the cellar and all that. At midnight, I'll turn in on the lounge in the dressing-room. Send down there for me when you get back."

"Bully!" I said, with real pleasure, for Reynolds before becoming managing editor of my paper had been the star reporter for several other sheets. He could write the most thrilling and dramatic stories I have ever read.

ARCHITECTURE THROUGH THE AGES—MAN'S MARCH AS BUILDER

By Permission of the Book of Knowledge and of the Grolier Society.

Architecture is an art and science always progressing with the rising needs and living standards of civilized men. While some architectural works of ancient grandeur and beauty, the great people never were surpassed in office buildings, public structures, modern residences equipped with all improvements, are milestones of man's march towards architectural perfection.

SHOT UPON FORT SUMTER STARTED THE CIVIL WAR (April 12, 1861)

President Lincoln's inauguration speech implied that no compromise could preserve the Union, endangered by secession. Only unconditional submission of the South or that of the North or decision by arms could accomplish this.

The bombardment of Fort Sumter by the Confederates from Fort Johnson in the Charlestown harbor and Sumter's fall (April 14, 1861), set the country afire. The relief ships of the North had arrived too late to save the fort. They returned with the defeated commander, Maj. Anderson, and his garrison. (U. S. History)

UNITS OF NERVOUS SYSTEM—NEURONS

The units of the nervous system are the nerve-cells or neurons (shown above), consisting of the irregularly shaped cell body and its many fine thread-like processes. The cell body contains a large nucleus and a group of granules (Nissl bodies) abundant in rested nerve cells, reduced in number or disorganized in exhausted ones. The cell body is center of nutrition of the neuron and determines the condition of that unit. Short fibers radiating from the cell body are dendrites, the stimulus-receiving structure. The single, long, soft thread containing nerve fibrils is the axon, the impulse transmitting process. The axon, which may have side-branches, is covered by the segmented medullary sheath (joints called nodes of Ranvier) and often by a second covering of connective tissue, the neurilemma. Both provide also nourishment for axon. (Gen. Science)

GRAPHITE—SPACE LATTICE—MANUFACTURE

WILLIAM OF ORANGE—BATTLE OF LA HOGUE (1692)

This battle checked France's expansion on the continent and Louis XIV's attempt to restore James II, his cousin, to the English throne. James II, brother, successor of Charles II, was driven from England by William of Orange, who was invited by English nobles to end James' autocratic rule that favored Catholicism (1688). William and his wife Mary (daughter of James II) were crowned (William III) after consenting to considerable extension of liberties.

James II, who had escaped to France, warred with the help of Louis XIV unsuccessfully against William, and was defeated decisively in the battles of De La Hogue and later Namur (1695), leading to the Treaty of Ryswick (1697).

During King William III's reign (1688-1702) the succession to the English throne was bestowed upon Anne, daughter of James II; if she should have no heir, the crown would pass to descendants of Sophia of Hanover, granddaughter of James I. (World History)

JUNIOR PATROL

"I read your comic strip every day and enjoy it very much. I am getting along very well in my school work. I am seven years old and I am in the third grade. My sister is writing this letter for me.

"I am going to have a Junior Patrol Club. I will send new members to you in a few weeks. Please send my membership card and official emblem. I promise to be a 100 per cent Junior Patrol member."

Isn't that an encouraging letter, fellows? We'll be looking for your other pledges, Edward, so that we can mail an armband to your captain when he is elected.

And we have a note from Dorothy Smith, of Central School, Cambridge, O. We are hoping that Dot can start a patrol there. Did you know that "Ohio" means beautiful, Dot? And that Cambridge is the name of a great university in England?

Now here is another dandy letter from William Rush, of 1025 Rue Grand Vue, Elliott, Pittsburgh. He writes:

"I am back with the latest news. We attended a birthday party of John Wuenstel. He is 10 years old. My birthday was February 11. We have held 14 meetings and have 30 members. We are living up to the pledges and we added 'I promise to avoid fighting,' because the members do that most. The members' mothers and fathers are taking great interest in our patrol. Our patrol is called the 'Up and Doing Junior Patrol.' My armband is dusty now. May I have a new one? We are going to hold a show soon and all children in Elliott are invited. Admission will be 1 cent. Who won the motto contest?"

That's what we call progress, Bill! Keep up the good work. Sorry, but we didn't have a motto contest. We just suggested that every patrol should have a good one. But maybe we will have a motto contest later. We'll find out about the armband right away. That's a very good idea about adding a new promise to avoid fighting.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

If a woman can't take time for beautifying, Time will take his toll. Every day the complexion and neck should be creamed, laved afterwards with an astringent if the skin is oily. Once a week the scalp should have a five-minute friction; believe it of us, it pays. Finger nails are kept in normal and happy condition by applications of olive oil every night. And elbows cry out for creams.

Don't be afraid to pat in your tissue cream at night; massage is a splendid rejuvenator and beautifier. It's the patting that does the biggest part of the job, restoring tone to tissues, getting the skin to function normally, making blood streams march and dance.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.

It's a Game of Skill

It is very difficult to prove anything against a man who can talk faster than you.

First, of all, you ain't breaking anything but yourself when you engage in a game of skill.

That's where the buzzers have the beveled edge on the law. You can throw a boulder through a plate glass window and your mouthpiece will prove you were practicing for the Olympic games.

There ain't room enough between chance and science to drive two fleas tandem.

So the lawyer proceeds to prove that his ivory hunting client was not gambling. He was merely figuring the laws of percentages. If the copper says he confiscated three pounds of silver coins the lawyer explains it was used as paper weights to prevent the documents from blowing away.

The possession of dice is not a crime. In fact, the longer you possess them the more rolls you will make.

So, in nine cases out of nine, the round-shouldered students of the law of averages are reprimanded with a dismiss. You can bet on anything at any time if you don't forget your school books.

Such things as bending down to the floor and snapping your fingers mean nothing. That's the way you train mice to sit up and beg.

Shaking two white cubes in your hand is also very innocent fun. You want to get your lump sugar hot before you drop it in your coffee.

That's why gambling is not a crime in some states if you do it in the city and live in the country. The officer must catch you in flagrant delict. And what copper is going back to college for four years just to arrest a freight yard hokey? Next case.

Constructive Taxation

Public and Congressional attention should be focused now on economically sound fiscal measures.

At this stage of the business cycle, recovery may be impeded by the persistence of fallacious tax policies.

The major blunder is to approach the question of revenues in a punitive, emotional spirit.

Well meaning but hazy thinking legislators have been contaminated with the false notion that they somehow can favor the masses by dealing brutally with constructive business.

As a matter of fact, the self-supporting citizen has no interest in such political booty; he prefers an opportunity to earn an income.

When oppressive and needlessly burdensome income and corporation taxes cripple and discourage employers of labor, vast numbers of men and women, whose income depends on the continuity of their jobs, are directly injured.

On the other hand, any economic improvement, resulting from relief from destructive imposts, will be widely diffused throughout the entire population.

When labor is fully employed at high effective wages, moderate sales taxes are cheerfully borne, especially if the necessaries of the poor, such as foodstuffs, are exempted.

But it was deterred from taking such a constructive step by a demagogic revolt led by a know-nothing group.

Instead, the House Ways and Means Committee has concerned itself with adhering to the old mistakes and adding to the existing burdens.

With the public credit strained by extraordinary peacetime expenditures and deficits, it behooves the administration to insist on the best possible system of taxation.

At best, the public spending program necessitates taking an unduly large portion of the national income for federal taxes.

It therefore becomes all the more necessary to use the comparatively painless technique of collection, namely, the general manufacturers' sales tax.

The finest tribute to this form of taxation inheres in the fact that the National Association of Manufacturers advocates the tax, despite the fact that collection of this impost would fall on their own shoulders.

Last year, however, at the extraordinary session of Congress, the Chief Executive let it be known that, if Congress passed a sales tax, he would not veto it.

In view of the urgency of the need for collecting a maximum of revenue with a minimum of injury to job-giving industry and commerce, the time has come for Mr. Roosevelt affirmatively to sponsor the general manufacturers' sales tax.

The idea behind national taxation week is to encourage equitable taxation to replace the existing imposts, which tend to paralyze efficiency, enterprise and creative industry.

The History Challenge

The Public Would Like to Know What the School Authorities Intend to Do.

A few weeks ago there was a movie at the Nixon in which Greta Garbo played the part of Queen Christina of Sweden. That movie should have special interest for Pennsylvanians, because it was under Queen Christina's auspices that the first settlements were made in Pennsylvania. The royal chancellor of Sweden, Count Axel Oxenstierna, impersonated in the screen play by Lewis Stone, was president of the company that financed the expedition.

But not one Pittsburgher in a hundred, we suppose, was aware of Queen Christina's and Count Oxenstierna's connection with the history of Pennsylvania.

Most of us know next to nothing about New Sweden because Pennsylvania history is neglected in Pennsylvania schools. Dr. Ben Graham, superintendent of Pittsburgh's schools, recently announced that new textbooks had been ordered which would treat Pennsylvania "adequately." But examination of the books shows that the Swedish settlements, Gen. Forbes' campaign against Fort Duquesne, the birth of the oil industry, and scores of other important things in the state's history receive little or no mention.

One reason why the story of the first settlements in Pennsylvania is important is because the Swedes planted the principle of religious liberty, a principle which was not recognized in any of the other colonies except Rhode Island, and Maryland, where the Catholic Lord Baltimore granted freedom of worship to all.

Now that the deficiencies in the new textbooks have been exposed, a good many people would like to know what the school authorities intend to do about it.

It will not do to say, as one educator feebly suggests, that research must be made to determine the facts of our history. That implies that the researches of Donehoo, Sipe, Craig, the learned Monsignor Lambing, and Fleming—just to mention a few local historians—are of no value, which is ridiculous.

Publishers consider a novel a commercial success if as few as 10,000 copies are sold. Hundreds of thousands of school children in Allegheny County offer an attractive potential market for a history text compiled particularly for their benefit; and such a book would sell, not just for a year or so, like the average novel, but for many years.

Starlings vs. Senators

Greek Meets Greek.

That's what the starlings think. The Senators think otherwise. Smudge fires dislodged the flocks of little birds from their roosts under the eaves in the Capitol, but they came back twittering brazenly at the annoyed statesmen. Buzzers, meant to terrify them, had no effect.

"Oh, yeah," say the starlings, "men who talk as much as you do shouldn't object to our chirping."

"Wars and rumors of wars" continue to be the sad fortune of all mankind.

On the mainland of Asia, pacifist China beholds a "friendly" enemy occupying her northeastern provinces and preparing the coronation of a puppet emperor.

That same power which seized Manchuria and Jehol also holds defiantly the "mandated" islands of the Pacific as a strategic wedge between our own insular possessions; and across the Manchurian border, Soviet Russia feverishly mobilizes men and munitions in fatalistic anticipation of conflict.

Europe, quarreling over armaments, is visited again by violent revolution, and wherever statesmen speak their minds, they speak "Cassandra-like, prognosticating woe."

Those old enough to remember will recall that portents far less alarming than these preluded the World War—a war in which America became involved BECAUSE OF OUR UNPREPAREDNESS.

We must be ADEQUATELY prepared for war in order to have any assurance of either a just peace or a lasting peace.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—No celebrity ever vanished so quickly and completely from the Broadway scene as Jean Schwartz, or so voluntarily. Twenty-five years ago he was the fair-haired boy in Tin Pan Alley's bingo-bango. And a first nighter comparable to even Diamond Jim Brady.

Schwartz was a Ghetto sprout who wrote the most popular tunes of his or almost any other era. One of his wintry tunes, appropriately called "Winter," with an accompaniment of sleighbells, is used to this day in pictures and vaudeville to suggest that season.

His "Chinatown, My Chinatown" is also used invariably for an Oriental scene "when the lights are low." But his best known song was "Bedelia." Schwartz, an engaging fellow, made enormous sums, hobnobbed with headline figures of the day and was married to and subsequently divorced from one of the Dolly twins.

Four watchers of the Broadway parade to whom I phoned for news of Schwartz were vague. "I think he is around," substanced each nebulous answer. While he dropped out with the speed of a bullet, few were more highly regarded or better known along the White Way.

* * *

I mean no disrespect. He is highly and deservedly bespoke for the high place he holds in Washington. Yet every time I see Speaker Henry L. Rainey's picture in the news reels I think of a big Stetson hat, a black-faced banjo picker, the open barouche and kerosene torch. You remember—the fellow in the public square near the courthouse who sold Dr. Jones' Pain Killer, good for man or beast.

The late Dr. Frank Crane, who mastered languages as a hobby, had occasion to write a very erudite letter to William Hayes Ward, editor of the old Independent, and put it in purest Greek. Hayes replied in Latin, whereupon Crane came back in perfect German. Hayes then wrote in French, was answered in Spanish and thought he could choke-off the battledore and shuttlecock with a letter in Italian. But Crane was thorough. He came back in Hebrew and the curtain fell.

One of the successful international free lances is Basil Woon, who has served as correspondent in many European capitals for American newspapers and press associations. London born, he has turned out books about Hollywood, Paris, the Riviera and Atlantic travels. There are few sections of the civilized world he has not invaded and always he finds the unusual twists to life which he manages to sell. And then be off again. His wife, Fleurette, is a Parisian.

Not many on the legitimate stage show their years so lightly as Donald Brian. Past 60, he is still in good voice, with erect carriage and a rosy glow of health. He lives in a town apartment, lunches daily at a theatrical club, skates and plays golf. And is among the few actors who prepared for the rainy day when the sailing was good, which may account for his sprightliness.

As a gag, Paul Whiteman slipped into the orchestra pit where his wife's beautiful niece, Dorothy Atkinson, is playing, and performed on the bass fiddle for the rendition of the musical selections. But the contagion of the players' amusement so spread to the audience when the bandman was recognized that a sudden burst of applause almost disrupted the show. He has decided to be a straight man the rest of his career.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

'Never Take From Any Man His Song'

I started to send a ruthless answer to her letter the other day. Exasperating creature—how she has pestered us all with her desire to be a writer! But she can't be a writer! She hasn't a particle of talent! And she would never stand the drilling if she were given a chance. Yet, year after year, she keeps making her futile attempts—sending them around—asking for criticism.

Well, I wouldn't stand it any more. Why should she waste my precious time with her tiresome yammering? I'd tell her the truth—that's what I'd do! Tell her to forget all about writing, and settle down to her housework like a sensible woman, and cook and sew.

Paper in the typewriter, irritated fingers on the keys, I began to type. Then suddenly—as plainly as though his dear, scarred hand were laid on mine, as clearly as though his kindly voice spoke above the clatter of the machine—something stopped me. Something called. And across the years and the darkness I heard my father saying, once again:

"DO NOT TAKE FROM ANY MAN HIS SONG."

How puzzled I had been when he first said that to me. What had caused it? Some ten-year-old foolishness. We'd been laughing at the old man next door—the old man with the long white hair and strangely young eyes, who still thought he was fighting Indians, though he hadn't seen a Sioux for half a century. Giggling—jumping up and down—pointing with childish squeals of derision at the queer old muzzle-loader he carried—until, suddenly the old man's face had seemed to crumble. The light had gone from his eyes. He stood there, looking vaguely around bewildered.

It was then that my father, coming upon us, had put his hand on my shoulder—given me that long, deep look of his—said those strange words:

What did he mean? The words had no meaning for my brain, yet somehow, in my heart, they made sense.

Was I taking his song away from the old man with the young eyes; taking from him the one thing that put music in his heart and fire in his blood? Was that why his face had crumbled so, in sudden loss and fear?

Suddenly I saw—felt the thing my father was feeling—caught, through his tired, tender eyes, a glimpse of the beauty and tragedy and immortal wonder of life.

And now once more—from across the long trail—he had reached out; stopped me.

Yes, that was what I had been about to do. She had so little in life to sustain her—that drab, childless, shabby little woman. There had always been so little! Poverty, hard work, the poor leavings for more colorful lives. Not even courage or wit enough in her own nature to fire her days. Only one dream to sustain her—the dream of being a writer.

No talent. No training. No chance of success. But what did all that matter? THAT DREAM WAS HER SONG!

What does it matter how we are kept living as long as we live? A ridiculous ambition? But, in the eyes of God, all our ambitions must be ridiculous. Only life, itself, matters—the hungry reaching of the soul toward greater growth.

"NEVER TAKE FROM ANY MAN HIS SONG."

I had been about to take her song from her. How many times had I taken their one bit of song away from timid, shabby souls? How often had I broken their music by the clamor of my ridicule, my impatience, my disdain?

The paper was crumpled on my machine. The little, clattering, cruel keys were lost in a blur of tears. Across the distance I saw his dear face fade—heard his voice fail.

But if only my heart could remember—always!

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Sea Hunger

One hunger stirs forever
Within the heart of me,
And all day long
Its urge is strong,
The hunger for the sea.

The salty, sea-wind blowing,
The great, resistless tide,
The spray and spume
I cannot be denied.

Though many ties would bind me
To one dull, inland place,
I will arise
As white gull flies
And seek the ocean's face!

The sea's unnumbered voices
Are all of song I need;
By night and day,
The way and spray,
The drifting foam and weed!

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

You have had a serious loss.

It has been a shock and you feel shaken to the limit.

But you have other members of your family still with you.

Don't you suppose it has shocked them also?

You have not considered anyone else—it is enough to you that the world will never be the same.

Meanwhile the rest of your family are doing all they can to console you.

They do not mention their grief and the additional unpleasantness you put upon them when you neglect your share of the work.

Everyone is keeping quiet so as not to disturb you.

Everyone is afraid to even mention the loss because to do so sends you into hysterics of some kind or another.

Suppose you brace up, Mr. Man or Woman, whoever you may be.

Snap out of it and begin to act like a normal person; you are no better than anyone else, that you should be spared.

He Painted Himself and Was Good

Michelangelo Never Thought of Himself and Was Better.

SIR WILLIAM ORPEN PAINTED HIMSELF THUS AT 30.

In an exhibition of pictures by recently-deceased members of the British Royal Academy Sir William Orpen, the one whose portrait of himself you see above, "stole the show," and had more pictures than anybody else. Among "recently-deceased" British painters that need not be so difficult.

Orpen painted himself often; that is one of many reasons why he was a good deal smaller man than Michelangelo, who made a picture of himself but once, and then by accident. This picture, true to life, shows his broken nose, result of a boyish quarrel, and does not flatter him. He went to see Raphael. Raphael was away, and in place of a visiting card Michelangelo left a sketch of himself on the wall of Raphael's studio, thus making it clear who had called.

The moral of this picture is: "The less you think about yourself the more posterity, PERHAPS, will think about you."

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

MALVINA HOFFMAN waits a bit impatiently to take the road again. She needs six more heads for her collection, and she will find them among the Indian tribes of our own southwest. This done, she will have completed a task begun six years ago, a task which has taken her into strange corners of the earth; among the most primitive of men.

About six years ago Miss Hoffman received a commission from the Field Museum of Natural History, in Chicago, to execute for its Hall of Man a group of bronze, life-size racial portraits. She pursued her fascinating quest from Siberia to Sumatra, from Manchurae to Mandalay.

One million, four hundred thousand persons went to the Field Museum last year to marvel at the life-size bronzes executed by Miss Hoffman to depict the known races of the earth. This writer thrilled with admiration as he strolled through the Hall of Man, marveling at the imagination and understanding of primitive and savage racial characteristics worked by her cunning fingers—the Afghan money-lender, the Australian Black Fellow, the African pigmy—ninety types secured under conditions that would have discouraged and baffled most sculptors, men or women.

All over the world she ranged on her fascinating quest. She modeled a pigmy in the heart of Africa when the temperature read 120. With freezing fingers and freezing clay she did the head of a Mongol chieftain in North Asia. She modeled one winter in China when the mercury held to 26 below zero.

Professionally the name of this tall, silvery-haired, charming, aristocratic lady of the gifted fingers is Malvina Hoffman, but she is Mrs. Samuel Grimson and travels as such in private life.

The most exciting experience that came to her was while she was working on the model of the head of a pigmy chief. Things were going smoothly when, all of a sudden, the grizzled dwarf quit his pose and whizzed a knife at Miss Hoffman's foot. Startled, she glanced from him to the knife, and found the weapon had pinned to the ground a venomous snake which had been about to strike at her ankle when the pigmy discovered it.

Among the most interesting people she came upon were the natives of small islands off Japan. The Grimsons were the only white folk who had visited these natives in many years. They are a forlorn race, doomed to extinction at an early date. Their islands are shaken by earthquakes every two weeks or so, as a dog shakes a rat, and they live in paper houses, preferring the cold and pneumonia to death by a falling wall or a collapsing roof.

Abbe Lemaitre Discusses the Bible

CURIOUS and most impressive, how science is continually supporting the truth of the Bible, notably the very ancient and remote stories and traditions that have come down to us in the pages of the Old Testament. There is, actually, no conflict between science and the Bible, between religion and the Bible.

Listen to the Abbe Lemaitre, priest and physicist, holy man and one of the foremost scientists of the world, for this is what he says:

"Do you know where the heart of the misunderstanding lies? It is really a joke on the scientists. They are a literal-minded lot. Hundreds of professional and amateur scientists actually believe the Bible pretends to teach science. This is a good deal like assuming that there must be religious dogma in the binomial theorem. When they find the Bible's scientific references wrong, as they often are, they repudiate the Bible utterly.

"The writers of the Bible were illuminated more or less, some more than others, on the question of salvation. On other questions they were as wise or as ignorant as their generation. It is utterly unimportant that errors of history or scientific fact should be found in the Bible, especially if the errors relate to events that were not directly observed by those who wrote about them. The idea that because they were right in their doctrine of immortality and salvation they must also be right on all other subjects, is simply the fallacy of people who have an incomplete understanding of why the Bible was given to us at all."

Tower of Babel Is Discovered

SO much for the great Abbe LeMaitre. But archaeologists, those eager gentlemen who dig history out of the earth in which it is buried, are continually turning up indisputable proofs of Old Testament history. The Tower of Babel has been found, and even the ruin is 60 feet high. The walls of Jericho are where the Bible says they are, and even if they did not fall down at the blast of Joshua's trumpets, they seemed to have been leveled by an earthquake at a moment most providential for the Hebrew children.

At Samaria they have uncovered the actual palace of King Ahab, who was married to that very, very wicked lady, Jezebel, the one who caused the Prophet Elijah so much distress and vexation, and in the Museum of Harvard University you will find some of the very ivory figurines which the slim fingers of Queen Jezebel may have fondled.

But the most striking and dramatic of all recent discoveries was made by an aviator flying over the Dead Sea. For he reports that he made out, deep down in that lake of poisonous abominations, a submerged city. Probably the city of Sodom which we read about in Genesis, in the nineteenth chapter—the story of the two angels that came to Lot and warned him and his wife and daughters out of the wicked, doomed city."
